POPE MAY END RELATIONS WITH FASCIST REGIME

Calls 24 Cardinals Into Conference.

ROME, June 1.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has dissolved all organizations of Catholic youths in Italy by decree and according to good sources tonight Pope Pius XI. is expected to recall the papal protest to Rome. It is said the pontiff may even sever diplomatic relations with Italy.

JOHN GARRETT. (Harris & Ewing Photo.)

Since the pope regards the concordat with Rome as violated and as he holds this concordat and the Lateran treaty to be inseparable, many observers believe there might arise the question of denunciation of the Roman settlement. This might result in the pope's returning to the state of "voluntary prisoner" in the Vatican.

Call Of Press Campaign.

This new development followed an order from the Vatican that the editor of the semi-official newspaper Osservatore Romano should discontinue its anti-Fascist editorial campaign and a similar order to editors of Fascist papers to stop publishing anti-Catholic editorials.

These orders were issued following a secret two hour meeting which the pope had with 24 cardinals, members of the papal government. The curia was called into special session by the pontiff to consider the Vatican's policy in the crisis with the Fascist government. Simultaneously Premier Mussolini was consulting his advisers.

Cardinals Back Pope's Stand.

Several of the cardinals were said to have encouraged continuance of the pope's stand. It was said the pontiff told them he had no desire to break the concordat with Italy, but he wished the Italian government would regard that agreement not as one which could be violated by either party but as an international treaty subject to the regulations of international law. If Italy takes that view, it was said, the Vatican will not think of renouncing the concordat.

Mussolini is said to have signed his decree dissolving the organizations last night and all prefects were immediately charged with its enforcement. This was done quietly by summoning club officers and notifying them of the action.

Basis for Pope's View.

The decree, which has not yet been published, was announced this evening by means of a short communique, which does not mention Catholic clubs but announces dissolution of those organizations not connected with the Fascist party or its subsidiary, Balilla for boys.

Article 43 of the concordat, which the Vatican considers is violated by the government's order of dissolution, reads as follows:

"The Italian state recognizes associations affiliated with the Italian Catholic Action, always provided that they pursue their activities in conformity with provisions issued by the holy see outside of any political party and under direct control of the hierarchy of the church, with the sole object of propagating and realizing Catholic principles."

Adult Groups Untouched.

Several fine points were hidden in the government's brief report that the dissolution had been effected. The communique specified "juvenile" organizations, indicating that the order did not apply to groups of men and women of the Catholic Action.

For this reason the premier considers his action as technically only ending the juvenile groups which are not affiliated with Fascism and he has been careful not to dissolve the Catholic Action society.

U. S. Playgrounds to Reopen.

The government today decided to permit the reopening of the American Knights of Columbus playgrounds, which were closed last Saturday. The decision was announced at the moment that Edward Hearn, papal count and director of the Knights' activities in Rome, filed a protest with United States Ambassador John W. Garrett against the closing order.

In his protest Hearn called the closing the clubhouses "unjustified and unjustifiable." He pointed out that the playgrounds were engaged merely in the physical development of Italian youth, that they did not come under the jurisdiction of Catholic Action, and that they were without political color.

MINNESOTA ACT QUASHED BY U.S. SUPREME COURT

Free Criticism Held Nation's Safeguard.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court handed down today a decision that constitutes the great charter of the freedom of the American press.

In a five to four decision the court held unconstitutional the Minnesota law authorizing suppression of newspapers and other periodicals publishing matter deemed by the authorities to be defamatory of public officials or other persons or institutions.

The majority of the court, composed of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Associate Justices Oliver Wendell Holmes, Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan F. Stone, and Owen J. Roberts, held that the Minnesota statute, in so far as it authorized suppression of such publications, is "an infringement of the liberty of the press guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment" to the constitution.

Written by Hughes.

In the majority opinion, which was written and read to a crowded courtroom by Chief Justice Hughes, the court took the position that the freedom of the press to criticize public officials is one of the bulwarks of our institutions, that for any abuse of this freedom there is the remedy of punishment under libel and other laws, and that the suppression of periodicals because of the character of the matter published would amount to the setting up of a censorship of the press.

The decision is a sweeping victory for the American press, which was championed by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE with the earnest support of the American Newspaper Publishers' association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors. In the interest of newspapers throughout the country THE TRIBUNE entered the case after the Minnesota Supreme court had held constitutional the state law under which the periodical in question, the Saturday Press of Minneapolis, had been suppressed.

An initial reverse was suffered in a rehearing of the case by the Minnesota Supreme court. The court again held the law valid. Following this decision THE TRIBUNE enlisted the aid of the Newspaper Publishers' association in carrying the case to the United States Supreme court. The association passed resolutions condemning the gag law and contributed $5,000 to the fight. THE TRIBUNE has expended over $35,000 already on legal work on the case.

How Test Began.

The test of the Minnesota law began when the county attorney of Hennepin county sought to enjoin the publication of the Saturday Press, which he described as a "malicious, scandalous, and defamatory newspaper." His complaint alleged that the publisher, J. M. Near, published in the fall of 1927 certain scandalous and defamatory articles concerning the mayor, chief of police, and other officials of Minneapolis.

The articles charged that a gangster was in control of gambling, bootlegging, and racketeering in Minneapolis and that the law enforcing authorities were not doing their duty. A member of the grand jury was accused of being in sympathy with the gangsters.

Sees Danger to Press.

Eventually the court enjoined publication of the Saturday Press as a public nuisance under the state law. The Minnesota Supreme court sustained the lower court. THE TRIBUNE saw in the case a dangerous threat against the constitutional privilege of free speech and on the invitation of one of the editors of the Saturday Press sent members of THE TRIBUNE'S legal staff to Minneapolis in October, 1928.

A month later the publishers' association met in convention at Norfolk, Va. Attorney Charles F. Rathbun, retained by Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE and chairman of the association's committee on freedom of the press, explained the Minnesota situation. The association passed a resolution calling on "all free and loyal Americans to demand restoration of right of free speech," and declared the Minneapolis case a "menacing precedent."

Resolution of Publishers.

The resolution, adopted unanimously, was as follows:

"Whereas, the legislature of Minnesota has passed a law making it a nuisance to publish any matter which the court holds defamatory or malicious, which statute has been upheld by the Supreme court of Minnesota. Under this law the Saturday Press, a weekly publication in Minne-

BOY WANTS RIDE; STEALS ONE CAR AND WRECKS SIX

John Pallets, 14 years old, 1841 South California avenue, last night realized a long nourished wish to drive an automobile.

Earlier in the day he had asked his father for permission to operate the family machine. The father declined. Last night John took possession of the automobile of Jack Funk, 915 Washington street, Evanston, which was parked in front of St. Anthony's hospital.

As a driver John got along fairly well until he turned south in Paulina street. At 13th street he crashed into one car. Undaunted, he continued. At 14th street he bumped into another. Near 15th street he sideswiped three other unoffending autos. And at 15th street, John ended up against a pole.

Sergt. Richard Johnson and his squad took the amateur motorist to the Marquette station. "I just wanted an auto ride," the boy explained. He was put into a squad car and given a final ride to the juvenile detention home.

Cattle Stampede in City; Cowboys Stage Roundup

The wild west came to the south side for a few thrilling minutes yesterday when ninety head of cattle, tired of being penned in at the Illinois Packing company, 911 West 35th street, decided to go for a run around the neighborhood. While spectators fled for shelter a bunch of cowboys effected a record time roundup. Among them was Jimmy Mitchell, an old time plainsman, who with a lariat turned the last cow toward the pen again at Wallace and West 36th streets.

Spain Wipes Out All Titles of Nobility

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 1.—Grandees of Spain once upon a time could stand with their hats on in presence of the king, but from tomorrow on they are nobody in particular.

By decree tonight the nobility ceases to exist before the law. The country's 135 dukes, 1,230 marquises, 720 counts, 110 viscounts and 70 barons—about 400 of which are grandees—become simply Señor So and So in the eyes of the state. For instance, that engaging relic of the monarchy, Count Romanones, who today said that pessimists about the republic's future ought to be shot, will become simply Alvaro Figueroa.

May Use Titles Socially.

Titles, however, can be used socially as they do in France. The great ladies of the realm have been put out in favor of a group of women whom former King Alfonso surely never met, some of them intellectuals, some of them workers.

The peseta went lower today than when Spain lost Cuba and so Indalecio Prieto, the republic's minister of finance, had nothing to do but run up the white flag on its recent Russian oil contract. Some said that the great oil companies, one an American firm, were pounding down the peseta on the international market to bring Señor Prieto to time.

Whatever is the case the peseta today dropped to 12.60 to the dollar, worse than in 1898, and Prieto came to time.

Words His Surrender.

"I am quite willing to treat with all companies without distinction and on one single condition, that there be no intermediaries," he said in wording his surrender. He then answered the question as to whether negotiations with the North American oil trust had begun by saying:

"They have not actually begun. Possibly the point of view of the ministers would coincide with that of the great trust on some points."

He made another about face on the currency problem by announcing that the bank note circulation would be kept well below the legal limit of 6,000,000,000 pesetas. This contrived to arrest the dizzy drop of the peseta and send it back up six points on the pound and more than a point on the dollar.

The cabinet set July 14 for the opening of the first Republican national assembly.

Prison Population Highest in New York State Records

Napanoch, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—Walter N. Thayer, commissioner of correction, today stated that the New York state prison population is the highest ever recorded. There are 6,000 prisoners in state penal institutions, he said.

WOMAN KILLED BY STRAY BULLET FIRED BY BOYS

Mrs. Gladys Boyd, 27 years old, a maid employed at the home of Frank C. Wheeler, 1106 Seward street, Evanston, was fatally wounded last evewhen she was struck in the right temple by a stray bullet supposedly fired by a boy in target practice.

Mrs. Boyd was wheeling Franklin Wheeler, 2 years old, in a carriage, and holding his sister, Constance, 6, by the hand when struck by the bullet. With her was Leroy Chapman, 49 years old, of 428 Barton street, Evanston, a contractor. They were walking on Dodge avenue, near Mulford street and the North Shore line tracks. She collapsed suddenly and Chapman did not discover that she had been wounded until he picked her up. He notified police.

Investigation indicated the bullet came from a nearby clay hole used for rifle practice. Odis Libby, 16 years old, of 833 South boulevard; Ernest Witsiepe, 15, the same address; William Aldridge, 17, of 712 Washington street, and John Mabley, 17, of 911 Sherman avenue, all of Evanston, were questioned by police.

DR. BELL, WRITER, VICTIM OF OWN BURGLAR TRAP

Doylestown, Pa., June 1.—(AP)—Dr. Ralcy Husted Bell, 62, native of New York, nature writer, was found dead tonight in his bachelor home in the heart of the artists' colony at Centre Bridge, near here, a victim of one of his own burglar traps.

Dr. Bell had evidently been dead since Friday, the coroner said. His body was found by the caretaker at Sycamore lodge. A gunshot wound had blown away part of the right side of his chest.

Investigation revealed that Dr. Bell was killed when he opened the door of a closet in which a shot gun had been rigged as a burglar trap.

Some years ago Dr. Bell installed burglar traps after the destruction of most of his flower garden by Sunday motorists.

SEIZES ENGINE TO GET BACK TO "OLE VIRGINNY"

Trenton, N. J., June 1.—[Special.]—Charles Barbor was homesick for Hurt, Va. He had no cash and the railroads refused free transportation. Charles strolled into a roundhouse and there was a bright, shiny, new locomotive, steam up and headed out.

Charles hummed "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny" as he mounted to the cab. He trusted he could find the rails that headed for Hurt.

He jiggled a gadget and the engine snorted and grunted; he twisted a valve and there was a soul-satisfying hiss; he pulled a lever and the wheels began to spin.

Barbor was on his way, but he tried another thingamagig, and bang went the cylinder heads. Barbor is in jail and the railroad is out $1,000 damage to the locomotive.

Fair in 1933 Called Success 2 Years Ahead

Two years to the day before the opening of Chicago's Century of Progress exposition, Rufus C. Dawes, presented a word picture of what already has been accomplished and what remains to be done toward making this the greatest exhibition the world has known.

The occasion was a banquet sponsored by the Association of Arts and Industries, which drew 400 of Chicago's business and social leaders to the grand ballroom of the Palmer house last night.

After Mr. Dawes' address, Senator James Hamilton Lewis told how "these master builders call upon us to let our light of progress so shine that all of earth, seeing the wonders, shall glorify our mother on earth—the United States of America—and crown with praise her best beloved daughter — Chicago."

Time for Something New.

Then Harvey Wiley Corbett, chairman of the architectural commission of the exposition, said that Chicago in the World's Fair of 1893 gave something new to American architecture—and that now the time had come to give another new thing.

The applause of the guests was vigorous when Mr. Dawes, who is president of the exposition, brought out the two ideas with which the world connects Chicago. One of these is crime, he said, and that is unfortunate. But there is something for which Chicago is even more famous—the indomitable "I will" spirit. What Chicago begins, Chicago finishes. The citizens of the city, Mr. Dawes said, have time and again shown their willingness to forget party, racial, and religious differences in working together for the good of Chicago.

Mr. Dawes then compared the sound financial foundation upon which the exposition of 1933 is being built with the shaky base under that of the 1893 event. He said that it was only the public spirited generosity of certain citizens which made it possible that the gates of that earlier exhibition were thrown open by the officials and not by the sheriff.

Industries Aid in Work.

Now, however, the situation is entirely different, he pointed out, because the fair of 1933 is being financed along entirely different lines. The industries on display will benefit immeasurably, so it is upon the industries that the burden rests, not upon the taxpayers of Chicago. And these industries are showing their willingness to cooperate not merely with expressions of good will but with cash by way of payment in advance for space in buildings for which the contracts have not even been let.

Mr. Dawes brought out the fact that already, two years before the opening, the management is assured of $3,000,000 in rent from the buildings already constructed, whereas two years before the opening of the former fair, the architects were making their first visit to the grounds.

It was unfortunate, he added, that people associated the idea of a world fair with a world panic, in view of what happened after the fair of 1893. But he said that it was his conviction that "Chicago's fair had no more to do with the panic of 1893 than a pebble cast into Lake Michigan would have to do with a tidal wave along the shores of Norway."

Glimpse Into Future.

Before the evening ended Mr. Corbett, with the aid of lantern slides, conducted the guests on an advance tour of the fair, showing them the wonders which will unfold before them in 1933.

He said that the architecture of the exposition will be something entirely new because the problems are entirely new. This fair will not only be spread over an unusually large area, but it will also be built up to three or four levels. Then, too, the lighting will be entirely artificial.

William Nelson Pelouze, president of the Association of Arts and Industries, was toastmaster. Others at the speakers' table were Samuel L. Avery, B. E. Sunny, Daniel H. Burnham, Howard L. Cheney, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, E. H. Bennett, George W. Dixon, Frank G. Logan, Britton I. Budd, C. S. Peterson, W. S. Beird, and the Rev. John Rushton Heyworth of Unity church.

Dry Mayor Spurns Wine, but How He 'Drinks' Gravy

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DIJON, France, June 1.—Mayor John Porter, the dry as dust executive of Los Angeles, was caught by some of his fellow mayors here today "dunking" his bread in rich savory meat sauce made with "Coq Chembertin" wine. He is said to have ordered and consumed five extra portions of this delicious wine gravy. He has also developed a passion for "Crepes Suzettes"—a delicate variety of French pancake—which is served with rum sauce.

COUNTY FORCED TO DEFAULT ON SIX BOND ISSUES

Unable to Pay Total of $1,868,400.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Cook county, the taxable wealth of which has been estimated at 40 billion dollars, defaulted yesterday on the payment of $1,451,000 of bonds and $417,400 of bond interest, a total of $1,868,400 on six issues.

The reason for the default is that the taxes with which to pay the bonds and interest have not been collected, and the county has been unable to borrow on tax anticipation warrants.

To save the credit of the county, threatened by the default, seven large banks announced last night that they will pay the bonds and interest on coupons if presented before July 1.

How Credit Is Affected.

In certain states insurance companies and trusts are prohibited by law from investing in bonds of a municipality for two to 25 years after there is a default on bonds and interest.

In New York, where the bulk of funds for such investments are held, 120 days are allowed after a default for payment. If not paid in that time all bonds of that offending county or municipality are barred for 25 years as suitable for insurance and trust investments. Other states have like statutes with varying degrees of severity.

The Offer of the Banks.

The seven banks issued the following notice, which will have the effect of staving off such drastic legal restrictions on the county's credit:

"The county of Cook, Illinois, having defaulted in the payment of bonds and interest coupons, due June 1, 1931, the undersigned banks will purchase, if presented prior to July 1, 1931, such bonds or coupons at their face value. Holders of such bonds or coupons may present the same for sale at the bond departments of any of the undersigned banks."

The subscribing banks are the Central Trust Company of Illinois, the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, the First National Bank of Chicago, the Foreman-State National bank, the Harris Trust and Savings bank, the National Bank of the Republic, and the Northern Trust company.

Statement by McDonough.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough issued a formal statement indicating why the bonds and interest due yesterday were not paid. He said:

"The money for the payment of the bonds due today was levied for the years of 1929 and 1930. Only 58 per cent of the 1929 levy has been collected to date. The 1930 levy will not be collected until January, 1932.

"I have been endeavoring for the last three weeks to borrow money in anticipation of the tax collections. This I have been unsuccessful in doing. The only way I could possibly meet these bonds on maturity date would be to divert money held by me in trust, which, I am advised, I cannot do without incurring liability on my bond."

Other Bonds Coming Due.

The bonds due yesterday are only a part of those which the county government has promised to pay before the end of the year.

On July 1 there will be $55,000 due. On Aug. 1 one bond payment calls for $56,000 and another for $130,000, and on Oct. 1 $10,125 will be due on one set of bonds and $50,625 on another set.

On Dec. 1 one group of bonds calls for the payment of $63,000, another group calls for $35,380, another $48,000, and a fourth for $240,000.

County Treasurer McDonough and his advisers reasoned if they diverted cash from trust funds for the $1,868,400 due yesterday they would be pressed to divert the $688,130 due later in the year, and they therefore could not see the end of the situation.

Offer Partial Solution.

As a partial solution for its immediate difficulties the bankers have suggested that the county obtain from the legislature the right, which the city in part now has, to refund bonds and interest in new bonds; and also to obtain authority to invest its surplus funds in its own securities. That authority the also has, and a bill before the legislature seeks to confer it upon the sanitary district.

Despite the default, the county continued to do business about as usual yesterday. There was no indication that previous arrangements to meet pay rolls as far as possible from current income would be upset. Also, the county board went ahead with plans to sell new bonds. It ordered that bids be asked for the sale of $1,000,000 bonds to reimburse the treasury for cash spent during the winter on poor relief.

The bankers have insisted that they must be given more assurance regarding the 1930 assessment and its collection before they lend money on the 1931 tax anticipation warrants. They believe they can obtain that assurance if the tax machinery of the county is revamped. To accomplish that end they desire the abolition of the elective board of assessors and board of review and the substitution of one appointive board. This idea is embodied in house bill No. 28, which was presented to the state legislature on Jan. 14 last.

The bonds on which the county defaulted are described as follows:

SERIES K—$150,000 principal and $3,000 interest. These are bonds issued in 1911 and in 1913 in order to get money to erect the present county hospital.

SERIES M—$50,000 principal and $2,000 interest. These were issued in 1913 to build improvements at the Oak Forest infirmary.

SERIES T—$225,000 in principal and $67,500 in interest. These bonds were issued in 1925 to get money for the construction of the Criminal Court building and jail.

SERIES U—$126,000 in principal and $37,800 in interest. These were issued in 1925 for money to make additions to the county hospital.

SERIES V—$750,000 in principal and $255,000 in interest. These are road and bridge bonds, and the money was largely used in building concrete highways. These bonds were issued in 1927.

SERIES W—$150,000 in principal and $51,000 in interest. These were also issued in 1927 and were for the completion of the Criminal Court building and new jail.

No statement was available last night on what the county board and other officials in charge of the county's fiscal affairs will attempt to do with reference to the bonds due on subsequent dates this year. The board has anticipated the collection of cash by the fee offices for a considerable period ahead.

Controller Expresses Concern.

City Controller Szymczak issued a statement, before he was informed of the county's default in bonds, in which he said:

"The city's credit should, at this time particularly, be of great concern to the citizens of Chicago. This credit is largely dependent upon the retirement of the 1928 and the 1929 tax anticipation warrants.

"The money obtained through the sale of these warrants has long since been spent in the operation of the city government during the years of 1928 and 1929. These same warrants are long past due, and can be retired only through the collection of the 1928 and the 1929 taxes.

"It is therefore logical to conclude that some very quick action is required on the part of the taxing bodies in order to protect the city's credit."

AUSTRIA BIDS FOR GUINAN AS FRANCE DELAYS DECISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVRE, France, June 1.—The ministry of the interior today passed the buck on admitting Texas Guinan to the country to the ministry of labor, thus keeping Texas and her eighteen cuties languishing in their semi-prison for another 24 hours without the comfort of knowing their fate.

Meanwhile, the Austrian consulate today indicated that it would be willing to give Guinan's gang visas good for six months, implying that when they arrived in Vienna they could probably arrange for permission to give the Viennese a taste of [illegible]n "whoopee." Monte Carlo has also invited Miss Guinan to perform at a night club.

The revenue problems of the local governments became more troublesome yesterday from the tax spenders viewpoint and more complicated for the taxpayers.

JUDGE C. E. WOODWARD.

Two courts indicated an intention to investigate charges of irregularity in the 1929 tax assessments, because of the heavy burden placed upon real estate and the light load put on personal property.

United States District Judge Charles E. Woodward granted a temporary injunction prohibiting County Collector Joseph B. McDonough from collecting the 1928 and 1929 real estate taxes of the American Mutual Liability Insurance company of Boston pending a hearing on a permanent restraining order. This suit alleges violation of both the state and federal constitutions. The insurance corporation is required to pay taxes on North Michigan avenue property under the terms of a lease.

Tax Sales to be Held Up.

Judge Philip Sullivan of the Circuit court indicated that he will enter a stipulation next Thursday by which the county collector agrees not to sell about 15,000 parcels of real estate of 3,000 owners, pending a hearing on a permanent injunction. This suit is much like the one in the federal court in the character of charges made.

Attorney Ferre C. Watkins, attorney for complainants, said that the stipulation, practically agreed upon, is more satisfactory than a temporary injunction, which the judge said he hesitated to grant because of the demoralizing influence it would have upon other taxpayers.

Revenue Crisis Grows.

Of the 1929 county tax bill, due May 15 last, totaling $276,000,000, a trifle more than $155,000,000 has been paid and $120,900,000 is delinquent. The city, county, school board and other local governments are unable to borrow money for current expenses on the 1931 taxes because the 1930 assessment has not been completed and no start has been made to determine what the 1931 taxes shall be.

So serious is the outlook for cash that Mayor Cermak will appear in Springfield Wednesday at the legislative hearing on tax bills. The adoption of one of these, house bill No. 28, is insisted upon by the bankers before they will lend money on the 1931 taxes. It provides for the abolition of the elective board of assessors and board of review and substitutes a single appointive board.

Another development of the day was a conference between the board of assessors and the board of review on one side and the council committees of efficiency and legislation on the other. They discussed personal property assessments for more than two hours.

No plan was adopted, although there was considerable discussion by Ald. Burnet Hodes [7th] and others about "putting teeth" in the personal property tax laws. Ald. Thomas P. Keane [34th] and Assessor John Conroy expressed a fear that more teeth will drive personal property out of Chicago.

Edward Hughes, member of the board of review, said that considerably more taxes could be obtained if the present personal property laws were enforced.

"Why doesn't the board of assessors enforce them?" asked Ald. Irving J. Schreiber [5th].

"The county board does not give us sufficient money to get the personal roperty on the books," replied Conroy.

"Let's not put all the blame on the county board," interposed Edward R. Litsinger of the board of review. "The law of human nature cuts a large swath. There is not a public official in Chicago who has filed a sworn statement itemizing every piece of personal property he owns. If we do not file sworn statements, how can we expect others to do so. You can't disregard the law of human nature."

$15,543,201 BUDGET FOR 1931 ADOPTED BY FOREST PRESERVES

The Cook county forest preserve board yesterday adopted a budget for 1931 making appropriations aggregating $15,543,201. This is an increase of $4,986,570 over the 1930 budget. The increase, the commissioners explained, was due to an added appropriation of $2,500,000 for improvement work in the preserves, through the sale of bonds as authorized by the legislature, and the restrictions imposed by the new budgetary laws, which require that funds for uncompleted 1930 contracts be reappropriated. The budget provides for seventeen additional employés in the engineering department.

7 SOLDIERS DIE AS OFFICER TRIES TO TAKE BOMB APART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, June 1.—Entering a hillside grave near Damascus today, a French corporal and nine soldiers discovered an old bomb, apparently dating from the last Syrian revolution. The corporal began to take the bomb apart when it suddenly exploded, killing him and six of the soldiers. The other three were seriously wounded.

Boy Killed, Several Hurt.

KASCHAU, Czecho-Slovakia, June 1.—(AP)—Sixteen boys deserted the cattle they were tending today and crawled under a barbed wire fence into a field marked off by army authorities for hand grenade practice. One of them picked up a grenade. It exploded. He was killed instantly, three others were wounded mortally, and several more were injured seriously.

300 OFFICIALS, PAYLESS, UPSET CICERO COUNCIL

Hoot Mayor and Demand Election Wages.

Nearly 300 judges and clerks of election, five-sixths of whom were women, stormed the city council of Cicero last evening, demanded flatly that they be paid a total of $33,335 due them for services rendered the city since Jan. 1, 1930, and booed down city officials who tried to explain why there was no money to make the payments.

The city of Cicero owes each of the judges $101 and each of the clerks $131 for city election services.

Shortly before the time for the council to meet the angry clerks and judges poured into the council chamber. They interrupted the regular order of business with cries of:

"We want our money."

Mayor Is Shouted Down.

Mayor Joseph Z. Klenha rose and attempted to calm the tumult. He was shouted down. A woman, granted the floor by acclaim of the protesting delegation, began to speak.

"We have taxes to pay," she shouted. "Our husbands are out of work. We need that money. We're not rich like you politicians. You used to be poor, too. This is a disgrace."

Applause came from the unpaid election officials. Another delegate rose and wept as she recited the troubles of the poor and the necessity for immediate payment.

City Clerk James A. Pelikan then attempted to explain why there had been a delay.

"We can't sell tax anticipation warrants for 1930 and 1931," he said. "The banks and the Western Electric company won't buy any more warrants from us. We'll give you tax anticipation warrants if you want them and let you market them yourselves." There were boos and laughter.

"Our policemen and firemen, all our city employés, have been without pay for eight weeks," he argued. "Nobody can be paid until the taxes come in or we can sell some warrants."

The hubbub was so great that the council gave up all hope of transacting any business and adjourned after ordering the finance committee to take up the problem this afternoon.

Anxiety of the officials came to a climax two weeks ago when a special bond issue election for a new high school was held in Cicero, Lyons, Berwyn, and Stickney. All the other towns promptly paid off their workers. The Cicero polls officials tried to get the Berwyn council to pay them, but were told that Cicero alone was responsible for its own debts. There was a general notification of the whole group by telephone yesterday to join in the march on the council chamber last night.

After the council adjourned the election officials held a meeting of their own and appointed a committee to confer with former Gov. Edward F. Dunne, attorney for the Cook county election commissioners, this morning. The committee is composed of Mrs. Julia Vana, 1628 South 60th court; Mrs. Bessie Taranowski, 4925 West 23d street, and Mrs. Edith Marra, 2107 South 47th court.

MOVE TO INDICT BOYS TODAY IN POLICE SLAYING

Three Held for Murder by Coroner's Jury.

Punishment began yesterday for Varner Corry, 15 years old, 736 South Claremont avenue, who killed Policeman Edward Smith. Likewise, Varner's 13 year old brother, Earl, and the 14 year old chum, Schuyler Pearson, were feeling the hand of the law because of Varner's crime.

Here was Varner, the killer, a red haired, gray eyed, underdeveloped lad with a pimply forehead, who shot a policeman who ordered the three boys out of a swimming pool in the John Marshall High school, where they were stealing a holiday dip after forcing their entrance to the building.

Following the verdict of a coroner's jury in the morning, which held the three boys to the grand jury on charges of murder, State's Attorney Swanson ruled that they must face trial in the Criminal court rather than in the Juvenile court, and announced that his office expected to secure indictments today.

Calm as Widow Accuses Him.

At the inquest the boys faced the stricken widow without emotion. Mrs. Smith screamed "murderer" at Varner, but he remained calm. The parents of the three were there suffering, too. The verdict made no distinction between the three, because under the law all are equally guilty.

After the inquest the boys were taken to the bureau of identification, where their fingerprints and measurements were taken—a record for all time. Then came the ride to the county jail, where the three became among the most youthful prisoners ever held there. Their youth furnished a problem for Warden David Moneypenny.

There was Earl, red headed, 12 years old, small for his age, but bright. Even while taking his jail entrance bath he kept his indoor baseball with him.

And there was young Pearson, dark, curly hair, well enough developed for his 16 years, good looking and intelligent appearing, tossing the ball back and forth with Earl while Varner ate his share of the jail stew. Earl and Schuyler were swimming with Varner when he shot Policeman Smith.

The three were in jail, awaiting indictment and trial for murder, but mention of the electric chair didn't appear to bother Varner.

Old and Tattered Trousers.

He was wearing old and tattered corduroy trousers, a sweater, and a cap. Sprouts of a coming blonde beard were on his chin, which he had shaved a few times.

"Why did you carry the revolver?" newspaper men asked him, and he did not know—he had thought it smart, movie gunmen had intrigued him.

"What would he do with me if he found the gun on me?" the youthful prisoner parried a question as to why he shot, and then he answered himself: "He'd take me to the station, wouldn't he?"

Didn't Mean to Fire.

He didn't mean to shoot—at first—he explained. He had intended to keep the policeman covered with his revolver while the three young invaders of the swimming tank climbed out of a window and down a rain pipe. When asked who fired first he said:

"I don't know. We both fired at once."

Here he exhibited his bandaged second finger of the right hand, which was struck by Policeman Smith's bullet which Capt. Pat Collins of the Fillmore station explained Smith had probably fired in amazement at being confronted by a gun in the hands of a naked kid, who, by his size, couldn't be more than 16. The finger was broken and was in splints.

Varner knew all about splints. He was a Boy Scout and under questioning he declared he had won five merit badges as a scout, for cooking, swimming, firemanship, carpentry and craftsmanship with wood.

His school reports were superior, he was marked excellent in most subjects and he was never tardy or absent. His mother had told of the books she bought for him in order that his mind would be molded properly toward good citizenship.

"What have you been reading lately?" the boy was asked after he had discussed movie gunmen.

"Nothing," he answered, and wasn't disposed to tell, but eventually answered that he had read Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn long ago. He had never intended to become a criminal, he replied to another question—had never contemplated being a robber or holdup man. The gun just fascinated him, he said.

His father had told him to get rid of the gun, he admitted, and said the reason his father hadn't taken the gun away from him was that the father didn't know where he hid it.

Have Lawyers at Inquest.

The three boys were represented at the inquest by Attorneys Samuel Antonow and Ranson E. Walker, who advised them not to testify. Walker said he knew the families of the boys and "they are fine people."

"Varner must be a mental case," Walker said. "I intend to have a psychiatrist examine him in the jail."

Antonow said he didn't believe the true story of the shooting had been told. He wouldn't go so far as to say he didn't think Varner shot the policeman, though.

"Society is on trial, not those children," he said. "I don't want to be overly sentimental about it, but at least two of those boys are not guilty and I have my doubts about the third. Confessions were squeezed out of them Saturday night. Citizens are losing power every day to the police.

"Varner doesn't look strong. He looks sickly and underdeveloped and doesn't appear to be well nourished. The swimming pool should have been open for those boys—it should always be open on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays."

JUNE 1 FAILS, TO BRING BRIDES; FEW MARRIAGES

June brides were on hand yesterday at the county clerk's office for the first day of the month weddings, but for some reason or other their forces were greatly depleted. When the office closed at 5 p. m. 207 licenses had been issued. On June 2, 1930, the first business day of the month, the number was 260.

Miss Emma Deshner, 25 years old, 528 Winona avenue, and Gustav Bauman, 29, 422 Garfield avenue, were the first couple to be married by Judge Herbert S. Anderson in the marriage court.

So far this year the monthly average of marriage licenses issued has been running about 15 per cent behind last year's figures, according to Chief Clerk Sidney Summerfield. The total for 1930 was 37,181, as compared to 43,066 in 1929.

AGENTS SEIZED TWO STILLS.

GOVERNORS HEAR VIEWS OF TWO ON TAX EMERGENCY

Brucker Says State Holds Responsibility.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., June 1.—[Special.]—In an address today before the opening session of the twenty-third conference of governors, Gov. Wilbur Brucker of Michigan declared that it was a primary duty of state administrations to cooperate with smaller political units in reducing tax burdens, which, he said, "have become a menace to the stability of government."

WILBUR BRUCKER.

In the audience was Gov. Emmerson of Illinois, in control of a legislature which is being asked by Mayor Cermak of Chicago to aid in averting a crisis in the city's finances.

Says State Is Responsible.

"Throughout the country," said the governor of Michigan, "tax sales are on the increase; taxpayers' strikes are in progress; and there has been an alarming growth in the list of defaulting municipalities and assessment districts.

"The state is responsible directly or indirectly for the local as well as the state taxes, notwithstanding the fact that it spends only 10 per cent of the total collected. The state is responsible because it compels, permits, or encourages every levy that is made within its borders. This responsibility can be discharged only through an increased measure of control over local affairs.

Summarizes Proposals.

"My views on the need for state supervision of local expenditures may be summarized as follows:

"1. Political districts operating in part upon the faith and credit of the state or enjoying state aids granted for reduction of local taxes should submit to close supervision or forego such special assistance.

"2. Political districts where defaults occur or impend should be subject to supervision in proportion to the seriousness of the situation, as a protection to other better regulated governmental units.

"3. Political districts which are in good financial condition should have the benefit of advice and counsel of the state and, where a majority of the people themselves demand it, such measure of supervision as the people may choose."

Woodring Has Different Idea.

Gov. Brucker was followed by Gov. Woodring of Kansas, who spoke a word of warning against too much state regulation of local affairs.

"There is nothing magical about an appointment from a governor that will make the appointee any smarter than local officials," he said. "The local units in Kansas have been doing quite well in cutting down their tax rates that were boosted during the prosperity boom a few years ago.

FATHER'S LOVE OF DUTY COSTS HIM HIS SON'S LOVE

On information given to Desk Sergt. Frank McGloon of the Canalport station, a police squad early yesterday arrested Frank Hernikel, 17 years old, in his home at 1822 South Racine avenue.

Later, after Hernikel had talked to police, James Rychly, 17 years old, 1844 South Racine avenue, was taken into custody. During the afternoon Franklin Butler, 5815 Blackstone avnue, identified the youths as robbers who took his automobile from him on May 25. The car was recovered near Hernikel's home.

Last evening Louis Hernikel, father of the young robber, visited the police station. Young Hernikel turned away from his parent. By his code they were enemies. For it was the father who had called Sergt. McGloon and informed him he believed his son was a robber.

Of this increase 13.71% is attributable to the sales of the new Women's Dress Department opened late in 1930, and the balance of the increase, 37.87% represents the total increase in sales of departments which operated in May of both years.

JURORS AROUSED BY EVIDENCE OF POLICE WEALTH

Reveal $500,000 Holding of One Captain.

Evidence of wealth amassed by thirty-seven of Chicago's fifty-seven police captains, described as "amazing" by the state's attorney's office, has been collected for presentation to the special grand jury, it was announced yesterday.

CHARLES J. MUELLER.

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and C. E. Lounsbury said that five captains would be summoned before an early session of the jury to explain their property holdings. The prosecutors refused to reveal the names of the captains until they appear.

Aroused by the disclosures, members of the grand jury said they favored an emergency session tonight to consider the new evidence. Later, however, it was deemed advisable to delay the session, and a date will be set after a conference between Prosecutor Mueller and Foreman J. A. Farmer today.

Captain Owns $500,000.

Evidence of police captains' real estate transactions has been gathered by a real estate expert and by auditors who have been conning the realty transfers in the recorder's office for the last month. One captain, it is said, was shown to own real estate valued at more than $500,000 and a second captain owned nearly as much.

The auditors also found, it is reported, that a captain was a party in nine realty transfers within a short time. One such transfer dealt with 14 pieces of property, with an average value of $29,000 each.

Difficulty was found in estimating the value of the realty involved in the various transactions because the consideration in many cases is stated as "$10 and other valuable considerations." Again, apparent efforts have been made to conceal the names of the captains as the owners and the auditors were forced to investigate carefully to determine whether or not the name on a legal document was actually that of a police official.

Other evidence concerning wealth of police captains was said to have been found in the stock exchange records. Only one captain was disclosed as a heavy speculator in securities.

Get Anonymous Letter.

Acting on information received in an anonymous letter, the prosecutors planned to subpoena the records of building and loan associations. Several captains, not desirous of depositing money in banks or buying property, were reported to have purchased building and loan association certificates.

The investigators have also completed their investigation of the bank account records which were subpoenaed three weeks ago.

"We could find no bank accounts at all for certain captains," said Prosecutor Mueller. "That was puzzling, because men of very modest income usually have at least a small bank account these days."

Only 20 out of the 57 police captains under investigation have received what might be termed a clean record, the prosecutor said. "That means that we haven't been able to find anything against them," he added.

Captains who refused to explain their transactions will be sent for trial before the civil service commission on the ground that all police officials should be able to explain their business deals, the prosecutors said. Those who are willing to explain such transactions will also be sent to the commission because, it was stated, the law specifies that no civil service employé may engage in an outside business.

"Of course, a man is privileged to manage property he has gained by inheritance or otherwise lawfully acquired," Mr. Mueller pointed out.

BALLOON HERO'S LOG TELLS OF BEING A PRISONER OF THE AIR

BERLIN, June 1.—(AP)—The Acht Uhr Abendblatt, publishing a purported verbatim text of the first part of the logbook of Prof. Auguste Piccard, kept on his balloon flight into the stratosphere, tells the detailed story of the experiences of the professor and his companion, Charles Kipfer.

"We are prisoners of the air," Prof. Piccard noted at 9:56 a. m., about six hours after the takeoff last Wednesday. The notation was made after Piccard had discovered that the gas valve of the balloon could not be opened and they would be compelled to remain in the air longer than they intended.

A notation made at 5 a. m. indicated that it was "snowing" in the spherical cabin, the "snow" being hoar frost falling from the cabin's top. At 6:35 a. m. they discovered that there was a leak in their "airtight" cabin, due to a ballast outlet not being tightly screwed down.

Salvage Metal "Basket."

AUGSBURG, Germany, June 1.—(AP)—Contrary to previous plans, the aluminum gondola in which Prof. Piccard and Charles Kipfer rode to new heights will not remain as a monument to them on the glacier where the balloon landed. Advices received here from Ober Gurgl, Austria, said that a salvaging squad recovered the ball yesterday.

McGOORTY RAPS DRY LAW BEFORE NEW GRAND JURY

Urges Action to Wipe Out Racketeering.

Criticism of the prohibition laws as unwise legislation was expressed by Chief John F. McGoorty of the Criminal courts yesterday in his charge to the June grand jury.

JUDGE McGOORTY.

Judge McGoorty told the jurors they represented the government and that their attitude toward law enforcement would reflect the attitude of the people of Cook county.

"We cannot have a well ordered community unless its citizens manifest a wholesome respect for law," the chief justice declared. "Statues may be and have been enacted which are not the perfection of human wisdom. Unwise legislation, forbidding the exercise of natural rights and customs not inherently wrong, cannot command respect.

Attacks Dry Law Futility.

"Any arbitrary denial of natural rights is opposed to the spirit of our institutions. The widespread violation of our prohibition law strikingly illustrates the futility of the enactment of laws resulting in a serious diversity of opinion as to the justice of such laws.

"I refer you therefore to those laws that all mankind recognizes as essential to the protection of life, liberty and human welfare. The maintenance and enforcement of such laws is necessary if popular government is to continue. Organized crime, strongly entrenched, possessing wealth and power, presents a challenge to law.

Urges Drive on Rackets.

"During recent months progress against racketeering has been made in this area. However, criminal racketeering continues in many forms. Its leadership includes many well known public enemies, who persist in their criminal activities with a cynical disregard for law and its enforcement agencies. Organized crime can only be eradicated by the coöperation and unity of the influences for good in this community. You, the grand jury, are entitled to and will receive the support of this great community in your endeavors in behalf of the public good."

Frank E. O'Dowd, vice president of the Edward Hines Lumber company, who lives at 241 Wesley avenue in Oak Park, was named the foreman of the grand jury.

HANGS SELF IN CELL.

Sterling, Ill., June 1.—(AP)—Joseph Gappotelli, 53, of Rock Falls, jailed last night for intoxication, hanged himself by his belt in his cell.

Wife of Aurora Mayor Falls Off Porch; May Die

Mrs. Conrad Bjorseth, wife of the mayor of Aurora, was possibly fatally injured yesterday when she fell from the back porch of her third floor apartment at 79 South La Salle street, Aurora, to the ground. She was taken to the St. Charles hospital, where her condition was critical.

AMERICAN NAMED CHIEF OF SOVIET BUILDING TRUST

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

MOSCOW, June 1.—John Calder, American Steel construction engineer, has been detailed by the supreme industrial council to what looks to be one of the biggest and most responsible jobs ever given an American in this country, namely, supervision of the soviet union steel building trust, "Stalmost," uniting ninety plants now being remodeled or under construction. The appointment carries the authority to direct construction work subject to the approval of President Ivanof of the "Soyousstroy," which controls "Stalmost."

The delicate point of responsibility under the soviet legal code for accidents or other unfortunate results arising from Calder's instructions—a point which proved a stumbling block to many foreign specialists in the past—was waived in Calder's favor.

Calder is leaving Moscow on a special plane for Magnitogorsk, on the southern European side of the Ural mountains, where the soviet is building the greatest steel plant in Europe, where there is grave lack of coördination and a rational utilization of labor and materials.

WICKERSHAM IS SHOCKED BY OUR CORRUPT CITIES

But Insists Dry Law Is Not Main Cause.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 1.—[Special.]—"Racketeering existed before prohibition. There is no doubt it has increased since prohibition. You can't blame the liquor amendment," thus declared George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, here today.

The defender of the 18th amendment was frank in his admission of widespread governmental corruption, and he was equally as emphatic in his belief that prohibition is just one of many causes.

"We're going through a bad period," he said. "New York and Chicago are showing us our faults. The hope lies in the courage of each community to meet the situation. As it is now, each city is selfishly concerned with its own interests."

He declared the Democrats will be divided on the liquor issue and was enthusiastic in his prediction that "Hoover is going to be sweepingly renominated and reelected."

Explains Rum Report.

He was asked concerning the strength of the Wickersham commission's report of last winter.

"The commission's announcement was considered too diversified," he said. "It must be realized that the Wickersham commission stands for a community. It represents the various voices of the community. It is made up of many-sided individuals. That gives it added importance."

"Law enforcement is improving," he said, and added, "The communities are gaining added strength in the present dark times."

"The local governments are bad," he said. "Chicago is teaching us what wrongs really exist. Recent investigations in New York pointed out important things. Yes, it is a general state of corruption."

Names Fundamental Cause.

"And is prohibition to be named as the predominant cause? The effort to evade prohibition is one of many causes. There is nothing new in the fact that cities have bad governments.

"If a fundamental cause is to be named it might be that the good cities are concerned only with their own affairs. They are not interested in aiding weaker communities. Municipal selfishness is the reason."

COUNCIL TO GET AUTO STAR BILL AT NEXT MEETING

Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], sponsor of an ordinance prohibiting the display of "official" stars on automobiles, yesterday said that his measure will be submitted to the city council at its next meeting, June 10.

"The ordinance," Ald Hodes said, "bars the display of any star or emblem purporting to show the authority of any local government or state or federal power by any person, firm or corporation. It precludes the use of stars by any public official as well as by persons who obtained theirs through the courtesy of some official."

The only exception granted in the Hodes ordinance are policemen while in the performance of their duty. Fines ranging from $5 to $50 for violation of the ordinance are provided.

INSULTS WOMAN; FINED $200.

Paul Lucas, 40 years old, 2319 Southport avenue, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Leon Edelman in Town Hall court yesterday for making improper advances to a young girl in Lincoln park.

UPHOLDS COMMON LAW MARRIAGE VALIDITY IN DIST. OF COLUMBIA

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Declaring that there was nothing the District of Columbia statutes making a marriage invalid unless solemnized in the prescribed manner, Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the District Court of Appeals today upheld the legality of common-law marriage in the District and ordered the payment of compensation under the employers' liability act to the common-law widow of Turner Sutton.

The woman had filed a claim, as common-law widow, for compensation for the death of Sutton, who was killed while in the employ of a construction firm here. The compensation commission rejected the claim on the ground that common-law marriage did not exist in the District of Columbia, and was sustained in the lower court.

Commencement Lunches Free at U. of Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—There will be free lunches at the University of Michigan commencement this year. One of the problems of graduation exercises in recent years has been the large number of women who fainted. Physicians decided that the chief reason was that many of them came without eating breakfast. So this year, coffee, crackers, and milk will be supplied by the university.

Negro Policeman Shot Stopping Fight May Die

Policeman Walter Green, Negro, attached to the Wabash avenue station, was probably fatally wounded last night by one of four Negro hoodlums whom he found fighting in front of his home at 5749 Indiana avenue. Green, who was off duty when he noticed the fight, separated the men and ordered them away. One of the men wheeled around and fired. The bullet entered Green's neck and emerged through the mouth. Green was taken to the Washington Park hospital.

HUNT MISSING DAUGHTER OF ARMY CAPTAIN

Fort Snelling, Minn., June 1.—(AP)—More than 1,000 officers and men of the Third infantry, stationed here, aided in a search late today for Margaret Boyers, 16, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. James A. Boyers, who has been missing since Sunday when she went horseback riding.

No trace of her had been found tonight and the hunt will be continued tomorrow along the banks of the Mississippi river.

Miss Boyers' mount was Whiskey, famous "bad horse" at the fort. Miss Boyers was one of the few persons able to ride him.

Grasshoppers Eat Crops in Nevada and California

SUPREME COURT DECISION ENDS MINNESOTA MENACE TO FREEDOM OF PRESS

HUGHES READS RULING SETTING GAG LAW ASIDE

Denounces Attempts to Muzzle Editors.

apolis, not a member of the A. N. P. A., has been enjoined from further publication, and

"Whereas, in the case against the Saturday Press, the defendant was denied the right of trial by jury and the judge alone heard the evidence and issued the injunction,

"Wherefore, be it resolved that,

"First, freedom of speech, whether written or oral, is the bedrock foundation of government.

His Guarantees of Free Speech.

"Second, the action of the Minnesota courts and legislature, if permitted to stand, will render all guarantees of free speech valueless in Minnesota, and such choking of thought and expression can be extended further if not checked.

"Third, solely as citizens of the greatest democracy of all time and not alone in our capacity as publishers, it is our inescapable duty to fight this deadly attack upon our institutions and government.

"Fourth, the way to meet oppression and intolerance is to resist these enemies of freedom and we call upon all free and loyal Americans to demand the restoration of the right of free speech."

Pledge United Fight.

In convention the following year on April 24, 1920, at New York, the publishers adopted a resolution pledging a united fight to repeal the Minnesota suppression law.

On Dec. 20, 1929 the Minnesota Supreme court again sustained the constitutionality of the suppression statute. This was reported to the publishers, who met in convention in April, 1930. Col. McCormick advised the publishers an appeal was about to be taken to the United States Supreme court.

Several days later the association submitted to its membership a referendum to determine its future course in protecting the American press from the Minnesota gag law and similar legislation.

Members were asked to vote on whether they favored continuing the appeal to the Supreme court or were against the appeal. The vote was overwhelmingly in support of the appeal.

The appeal was filed in the United States Supreme court the following May 18. Attorneys Weymouth Kirkland, Howard Ellis, and Edward C. Caldwell of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin attacked the gag law in a brief filed Dec. 12, 1930.

Upholds Kirkland's Arguments.

The decision handed down today strikingly upholds the contentions for the freedom of the press voiced by Attorney Kirkland in his arguments before both the Minnesota Supreme court and the United States Supreme court. The action of the federal tribunal reverses the judgment of the state Supreme court.

Associate Justice Pierce Butler, himself a Minnesotan, read a dissenting opinion concurred in by Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, and Sutherland asserting that the majority opinion gives to freedom of the press a broader interpretation than any that had ever before been recognized. He drew upon the facts concerning the publication of the Saturday Press to show that a condition dangerous to society existed, and argued that the state had a right to pass remedial legislation to meet a such a condition.

Justice Butler contended that the license practiced by Mr. Near, as publisher of the Saturday Press, in his admittedly defamatory articles, transcended the bounds of a free press. He maintained that the Minnesota statute did not operate as a previous restraint, since it did not authorize control over the press in advance, and that what it was concerned with was not one act in itself, but a continuation of an act which had been designated a nuisance.

Libel laws, said the dissenting opinion, had proved inadequate to protect society and the individual against malicious attacks, and Justice Butler concluded with a warning that such judgment as the majority opinion was likely to result in exposing the community to continued assaults in the press.

Crowd Hears Decision.

The ancient chamber in the capitol which as the hall of the senate before the civil war and the Supreme court chamber since that time, has been the scene of many conflicts over the meaning of the constitution, was crowded with lawyers and officials attracted by the probability that the tribunal would hand down its decision in the case involving the liberty of the press on this last day of its sittings before the summer vacation. One of the few women in the reserved inclosure was Mrs. Hughes, wife of the chief justice.

Into his delivery of the majority opinion Chief Justice Hughes threw all his ardor. In a loud voice into which he injected considerable feeling at times, the head of the judicial branch of the government, who in a long public career has been subjected to a vast amount of denunciation in the press, argued for the liberty of the press to criticise public officials as an outstanding safeguard of the people from the imposition of tyranny.

Delves Into History.

That for 150 years until the enactment of the Minnesota statute there had been no attempt to clothe government with the power of suppressing newspapers Mr. Hughes regarded significant of "the deep seated conviction that such restraint would violate constitutional right."

"Public officers, whose character and conduct remain open to debate and free discussion in the press," he said, "find their remedies for false accusations in action under libel laws providing for redress and punishment, and not in proceedings to restrain the publication of newspapers or periodicals."

Chief Justice Hughes

stitutional guaranty of the liberty of the press, he went on, gives immunity from previous restraints, such as suppression of publication, has been approved in many state court decisions construing state constitutions.

Hughes Grows Vehement.

"The importance of this immunity has not lessened," the chief justice fairly thundered as he came to the meat in the cocoanut. "While reckless assaults upon public men and efforts to bring obloquy upon those who are endeavoring faithfully to discharge official duties exert a baleful influence and deserve the severest condemnation in public opinion, it cannot be said that this abuse is greater, and it is believed to be less, than that which characterized the period in which our institutions took shape.

"Meanwhile the administration of government has become more complex, the opportunities for malfeasance and corruption have multiplied, crime has grown to most serious proportions, and the danger of its protection by unfaithful officials and of the impairment of the fundamental security of life and property by criminal alliances and official neglect, emphasize the primary need of a vigilant and courageous press, especially in great cities.

"The fact that the liberty of the press may be abused by miscreant purveyors of scandal does not make any the less necessary the immunity of the press from previous restraint in dealing with official misconduct. Subsequent punishment for such abuses as may exist is the appropriate remedy consistent with constitutional privilege."

Tells Evils of Censorship.

The chief justice was no less vehement in pointing out that the erection of a press censorship is inherent in such statutes as the Minnesota press gag law. If such a law is valid, he said, publishers might be haled before courts and administrative officers to explain their publications satisfactorily to government or be suppressed.

"If this can be done," Mr. Hughes continued, "the legislature may provide machinery for determining, in the complete exercise of its discretion, what are justifiable ends and restrain publication accordingly. And it would be but a step to a complete system of censorship."

TEXT OF DECISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The court's decision in the Minnesota gag law case, as read by Justice Hughes, follows:

Chapter 285 of the session laws of Minnesota for the year 1925 provides for the abatement, as a public nuisance, of a "malicious, scandalous, and defamtory newspaper, magazine, or other periodical." Section one of the act is as follows:

"Section 1. Any person, who, as an individual, or as a member of employé of a firm or association or organization, or as an officer, director, member or employé of a corporation, shall be engaged in the business of regularly or customarily producing, publishing or circulating, having in possession, selling or giving away:

"[a] An obscene, lewd, and lascivious newspaper, magazine or other periodical, or

"[b] A malicious, scandalous, and defamatory newspaper, magazine, or other periodical;

"Is guilty of a nuisance, and all persons guilty of such nuisance may be enjoined, as hereinafter provided. "Participation in such business shall constitute a commission of such nuisance and render the participant orders, and judgments provided for in this act. Ownership, in whole or in part, directly or indirectly, of any such periodical or of any stock or interest in any corporation or organization which owns the same in whole or in part, or which publishes the same, shall constitute such participation.

"In actions brought under [b] above there shall be available the defense that the truth was published with good motives and for justifiable ends and in such actions the plaintiff shall not have the right to report [sic] to issues or editions of periodicals taking place more than three months before the commencement of the action."

Provision for Suppression.

Section two provides that whenever any such nuisance is committed or exists, the county attorney of any county where any such periodical is published or circulated, or, in case of his failure or refusal to proceed upon written request in good faith of a reputable citizen, the attorney general, or upon like failure or refusal of the latter, any citizen of the county may maintain an action in the District court of the county in the name of the state to enjoin perpetually the persons committing or maintaining any such nuisance from further committing or maintaining it. Upon such evidence as the court shall deem sufficient, a temporary injunction may be granted. The defendants have the right to plead by demurer or answer, and the plaintiff may demur or reply as in other cases.

The action by section three, is to be "governed by the practice and procedure applicable to civil actions for injunctions," and after trial the court may enter judgment permanently enjoining the defendants found guilty of violating the act from continuing the violation and, "in and by such judgment, such nuisance may be wholly abated." The court is empowered, as in other cases of contempt, to punish disobedience to a temporary or permanent injunction by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than twelve months.

Weekly Is Suppressed.

Under this statute (section one, clause b), the county attorney of Hennepin county brought this action to enjoin the publication of what was described as a "malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper, magazine and periodical" known as "the Saturday Press," published by the defendants in the city of Minneapolis. The complaint alleged that the defendants, on Sept. 24, 1927, and on eight subsequent dates in October and November, 1927, published and circulated editions of that periodical which were "largely devoted to malicious, scandalous and defamatory articles" concerning Charles G. Davis, Frank W. Brunskill, the Minneapolis Tribune, the Minneapolis Journal, Melvin C. Passolt, George E. Leach, the Jewish race, the members of the grand jury of Hennepin county impaneled in November, 1927, and then holding office, and other persons, as more fully appeared in exhibits annexed to the complaint, consisting of copies of the articles described and constituting 37 pages of the record.

While the complaint did not so allege, it appears from the briefs of both parties that Charles G. Davis was a special law enforcement officer employed by a civic organization, that George E. Leach was mayor of Minneapolis, that Frank W. Brunskill was its chief of police, and that Floyd B. Olson [the relator in this action] was county attorney.

Law Enforcers Accused.

Without attempting to summarize the contents of the voluminous exhibits attached to the complaint, we deem it sufficient to say that the articles charged in substance that a Jewish gangster was in control of gambling, bootlegging and racketeering in Minneapolis and that law enforcing officers and agencies were not energetically performing their duties. Most of the charges were directed against the chief of police; he was charged with gross neglect of duty, illicit relations with gangsters, and with participation in graft. The county attorney was charged with knowing the existing conditions and with failure to take adequate measures to remedy them. The mayor was accused of inefficiency and dereliction. One member of the grand jury was stated to be in sympathy with the gangsters.

A special grand jury and a special prosecutor were demanded to deal with the situation in general, and, in particular, to investigate an attempt to assassinate one Guilford, one of the original defendants, who, it appears from the articles, was shot by gangsters after the first issue of the periodical had been published. There is no question but what the articles made serious accusations against the public officers named and others in connection with the prevalence of crimes and the failure to expose and punish them.

Publication Ordered Stopped.

At the beginning of the action, Nov. 22, 1927, and upon the verified complaint an order was made directing the defendants to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue and meanwhile forbidding the defendants to publish, circulate or have in their possession any editions of the periodical for Sept. 24, 1927, to Nov. 19, 1927, inclusive, and from publishing, circulating, or having in their possession, "any future editions of said the Saturday Press," and "any publication known by any other name whatsoever containing malicious, scandalous and defamatory matter of the kind alleged in plaintiff's complaint herein or otherwise."

The defendants demurred to the complaint upon the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and on this demurrer challenged the constitutionality of the statute. This District court overruled the demurrer and certified the question of constitutionality to the Supreme court of the state. The Supreme court sustained the statute [174 Minn., 457], and it is conceded by the appellee that the act was thus held to be valid over the objection that it violated not only the state costitution but also the fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States.

Thereupon, the defendant Near, the present appellant, answered the complaint. He averred that he was the sole owner and proprietor of the publication in United States. He admitted the publication of the articles in the issues described in the complaint but denied that they were malicious, scandalous or defamatory as alleged. He expressly invoked the protection of the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment.

The case then came on for trial. The plaintiff offered in evidence the verified complaint, together with the issues of the publication in question, as exhibits. The defendant objected to the introduction of the evidence, invoking the constitutional provisions to which his answer referred. The objection was overruled, no further evidence was presented, and the plaintiff rested. The defendant then rested, without offering evidence. The plaintiff moved that the court direct the issue of a permanent injunction, and this was done.

The District court made finding of fact, which followed the allegations of the complaint and found in general terms that the editions in question were "chiefly devoted to malicious, scandalous and defamatory articles" concerning the individuals named. The court further found that the defendants through these publications "did engage in the business of regularly and customarily producing, publishing and circulating a malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper," and that "the said publication" "under said name of the Saturday Press, or any other name, constitutes a public nuisance under the laws of the state." Judgment was thereupon entered judging that "the newspaper, magazine and periodical known as the Saturday Press," as a public nuisance, "be and is hereby abated."

The judgment perpetually enjoined the defendants "from producing, editing, publishing, circulating, having in their possession, selling or giving away any publication whatsoever which is a malicious scandalous or defamatory newspaper, as defined by law," and also "from further conducting said nuisance under the name and title of said the Saturday Press or any other name or title."

The defendant Near appealed from this judgment to the Supreme court of the state, again asserting his right under the federal constitution, and the judgment was affirmed upon the authority of the former decision [179 Minn., 40]. With respect to the contention that the judgment went too far, and prevented the defendants from publishing any kind of a newspaper, the court observed that the assignments of error did not go to the form of the judgment and that the lower court had not been asked to modify it. The court added that it saw no reason "for defendants to construe the judgment as restraining them from operating a newspaper in harmony with the public welfare, to which all must yield," that the allegations of the complaint had been found to be true, and though this was an equitable action defendants had not indicated a desire "to conduct their business in the usual and legitimate manner."

Appeals to Supreme Court.

From the judgment as thus affirmed, the defendant Near appeals to this court.

The statute, for the suppression as a public nuisance of a newspaper or periodical, is unusual, if not unique, and raises questions of grave importance transcending the local interests involved in the particular action. It is no longer open to doubt that the liberty of the press, and of speech, is within the liberty safeguarded by the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment from invasion by state action. It was found impossible to conclude that this essential personal liberty of the citizen was left unprotected by the general guaranty of fundamental rights of person and property. Gitlow vs. New York, 268 U. S. 652, 666; Whitney vs. California, 274 U. S. 357, 362, 373; Fiske vs. Kansas, 274 U. S. 380, 382; Stromberg vs. California, decided May —, 1931.

In maintaining this guaranty, the authority of the state to enact laws to promote the health, safety, morals and general welfare of its people is necessarily admitted. The limits of this sovereign power must always be determined with appropriate regard to the particular subject of its exercise. Thus, while recognizing the broad discretion of the legislature in fixing rates to be charged by those undertaking a public service, this court has decided that the owner cannot constitutionally be deprived of his right to a fair return, because that is deemed to be of the essence of ownership.

Railroad commission cases, 116 U. S. 307, 331, Northern Pacific Railways company vs. North Dakota, 236 U. S. 585, 596. So, while liberty of contract is not an absolute right, and the wide field of activity in the making of contracts is subject to legislative supervision; Frisbie vs. United States, 157 U. S. 161, 165, this court has held that the power of the state stops short of interference with what are deemed to be certain indispensable requirements of the liberty assured, notably with respect to the fixing of prices and wages; Tyson vs. Banton, 273, United States, 418, Ribnik vs. McBride, 277, United States, 350, Adkins vs. Children's hospital, 261, United States, 525, 560, 561, liberty of speech, and of the press, is also not an absolute right, and the state may punish its abuse; Whitney vs. California, Supra: Stromberg vs. California, Supra. Liberty, in each of its phases, has its history and connotation and, in the present instance, the inquiry is as to the historic conception of the liberty of the press and whether the statute under review violates the essential attributes of that liberty.

Based on Constitutional Rights.

The appellee insists that the [illegible] publication and that [illegible] tions of the application of the statute to appellant's periodical, and of the construction of the judgment of the trial court, are not presented for review; that appellant's sole attack was upon the constitutionality of the statute, however it might be applied. The appellee contends that no question either of motive in the publication, or whether the decree goes beyond the direction of the statute, is before us.

The appellant replies that, in his view, the plain terms of the statute were not departed from in this case and that, even if they were, the statute is nevertheless unconstitutional under any reasonable construction of its terms. The appellant states that he has not argued that the temporary and permanent injunction were broader than were warranted by the statute; he insists that what was done was properly done if the statute is valid, and that the action taken under the statute is a fair indication of its scope.

With respect to these contentions it is enough to say that in passing upon constitutional legislation the court has regard to substance and not to mere matters of form, and that, in accordance with familiar principles, the statute must be tested before its operation and effect. Henderson V. Mayor, 92 U. S. 259, 268; Bailey vs. Alabama, 219 U. S. 219, 244; United States vs. Reynolds, 235 U. S. 133, 148, 149; St. Louis Southwestern Railway company vs. Arkansas, 235 U. S. 350, 362; Mountain Timber company vs. Washington, 243 U. S. 219, 237. That operation and effect we think is clearly shown by the record in the case. We are not concerned with mere errors of the trial court, if there be such, in going beyond the direction of the statute as construed by the Supreme court of the state. It is thus important to note precisely the purpose and effect of the statute as the state court has construed it.

Question of Motives Not Facts.

First: The statute is not aimed at the redress of individual or private wrongs. Remedies for libel remain available and unaffected. The statute, said the state court, "is not directed at threatened libel but at an existing business which, generally speaking, involves more than libel." It is aimed at the distribution of scandalous matter as "detrimental to public morals and to the general welfare," tending "to disturb the peace of the community" and "to provoke assaults and the commission of crime."

In order to obtain an injunction to suppress the future publication of the newspaper or periodical, it is not necessary to prove the falsity of the charges that have been made in the publication condemned. In the present action there was no allegation that the matter published was not true. It is alleged, and the statute requires the allegation, that the publication was "malicious." But, as in prosecutions for libel, there is no requirement of proof by the state of malice in fact as distinguished from malice inferred from the mere publication of the defamatory matter. The judgment in this case proceeded upon the mere proof of publication. The statute permits the defense, not of the truth alone, but only that the truth was published with good motives and for justifiable ends.

It is apparent that under the statute the publication is to be regarded as defamatory if it injures reputation, and that it is scandalous if it circulates charges of reprehensible conduct, whether criminal or otherwise, and the publication is thus deemed to invite public reprobation and to constitute a public scandal. The court sharply defined the purpose of the statute, bringing out the precise point in these words: "There is no constitutional right to publish a fact merely because it is true. It is a matter of common knowledge that prosecutions under the criminal libel statutes do not result in efficient repression or suppression of the evils of scandal. Men who are the victims of such assaults seldom resort to the courts. This is especially true if their sins are exposed and the only question relates to whether it was done with good motives and for justifiable ends. This law is not for the protection of the person attacked nor to punish the wrongdoer. It is for the protection of the public welfare."

Second. The statute is directed not simply at the circulation of scandalous and defamatory statements with regard to private citizens, but at the continued publication by newspapers and periodicals of charges against public officers of corruption, malfeasance in office, or serious neglect of duty. Such charges by their very nature create a public scandal. They are scandalous and defamatory within the meaning of the statute, which has its normal operation in relation to publications dealing prominently and chiefly with the alleged derelictions of public officers.

Object Not Punishment.

Third. The object of the statute is not punishment, in the ordinary sense, but suppression of the offending newspaper or periodical. The reason for the enactment, as the state court has said, is that prosecutions to enforce penal statutes for libel do not result in "efficient repression or suppression of the evils of scandal." Describing the business of publication as a public nuisance does not obscure the substance of the proceeding which the statute authorizes. It is the continued publication of scandalous and defamatory matter that constitutes the business and the declared nuisance. In the case of public officers, it is the reiteration of charges of official misconduct, and the fact that the newspaper or periodical is principally devoted to that purpose, that exposes it to suppression.

In the present instance, the proof was that nine editions of the newspaper or periodical in question were published on successive dates, and that they were chiefly devoted to charges against public officers and in relation to the prevalence and protection of crime. In such a case these officers are not left to their ordinary remedy in a suit for libel, or the authorities to a prosecution for criminal libel.

Under this statute a publisher of a newspaper or periodical undertaking to conduct a campaign to expose and to censure official derelictions and devoting his publication principally to that purpose must face not simply the possibility of a verdict against him in a suit or prosecution for libel, but a determination that his newspaper or periodical is a public nuisance to be abated and that this abatement and suppression will follow unless he is prepared with legal evidence to prove the truth of the charges and also to satisfy the court that in addition to being true the matter was published with good motives and for justifiable ends.

This suppression is accomplished by straint is the object and effect of the statute.

Operates as Censorship.

Fourth. The statute not only operates to suppress the offending newspaper or periodical, but to put the publisher under an effective censorship. When a newspaper or periodical is found to be "malicious, scandalous, and defamatory," and is suppressed as such, resumption of publication is punishable as a contempt of court by fine or imprisonment. Thus, where a newspaper or periodical has been suppressed because of their circulation of charges against public officers of official misconduct, it would seem to be clear that the renewal of the publication of such charges would constitute a contempt and that the judgment would lay a permanent restraint upon the publisher, to escape which he must satisfy the court as to the character of a new publication.

Whether he would be permitted again to publish matter deemed to be derogatory to the same or other public officers would depend upon the court's ruling. In the present instance the judgment restrained the defendants "from publishing, circulating, having in their possession, selling or giving away any publication whatsoever which is a malicious, scandalous, or defamatory newspaper, as defined by law." The law gives no definition except that covered by the words "scandalous and defamatory," and the publication charging official misconduct are of that class.

While the court, answering the objection that the judgment was too broad, saw no reason for construing it as restraining the defendants "from operating a newspaper in harmony with the public welfare, to which all must yield," and said that the defendants had not indicated any "desire to conduct their business in the usual and legitimate manner," the manifest inference is that, at least with respect to a new publication directed against official misconduct, the defendant would be held, under penalty of punishment for contempt as provided in the statute, to a manner of publication which the court considered to be "usual and legitimate" and consistent with the public welfare.

If we cut through mere details of procedure the operation and effect of the statute in substance is that public authorities may bring the owner or publisher of a newspaper or periodical before a judge upon a charge of conducting a business of publishing scandalous and defamatory matter—in particular that the matter consists of charges against public officers or official dereliction—and unless the owner or publisher is able and disposed to bring competent evidence to satisfy the judge that the charges are true and are published with good motives and for justifiable ends, his newspaper or periodical is suppressed, and further publication is made punishable as a contempt. This is the essence of censorship.

Liberty of Press in Issue.

The question is whether a statute authorizing proceedings in restraint of publication is consistent with the conception of the liberty of the press as historically conceived and guaranteed. In determining the extent of the constitutional protection it has been generally, if not universally, considered that it is the chief purpose of the guaranty to prevent previous restraints upon publication.

The struggle in England directed against the legislative power of the licenser resulted in renunciation of the censorship of the press. The liberty deemed to be established was thus described by Blackstone: "The liberty of the press is indeed essential to nature of a free state, but this consists in laying no previous restraints upon publications and not in freedom from censure for criminal matter when published. Every free man has an undoubted right to lay what sentiments he pleases before the public; to forbid this is to destroy the freedom of the press; but if he publishes what is improper, mischievous, or illegal he must take the consequence of his own temerity."

4 Bl. Com. 151, 152; see Story on the constitution Secs. 1884, 1889. The distinction was early pointed out between the extent of the freedom with respect to censorship under our constitutional system and that enjoyed in England. Here, as Madison said, "the great and essential rights of the people are secured against legislative as well as against executive ambition. They are secured not by laws paramount to prerogative but by constitutions paramount to laws. This security of the freedom of the press requires that it should be exempt not only from previous restrains by the executive, as in Great Britain, but from legislative restraint also." Report on the Virginia resolutions, Madison's works, vol IV., p. 543. This court said, in Patterson vs. Colorado, 205, U. S. 454, 462: "In the first place, the main purpose of such constitutional provisions is 'to prevent all such previous restraints upon publications as had been practiced by other governments,' and they do not prevent the subsequent punishment of such as may be deemed contrary to the public welfare. Commonwealth vs. Blanding, 3 Pick, 304, 313, 314; Republica vs. Oswald, 1 Dallas, 319, 325. The preliminary freedom extends as well to the false as to the true; the subsequent punishment may extend as well to the true as to the false. This was the law of criminal libel apart from statute in most cases, if not in all. Commonwealth vs. Blanding, Ubi. Sup.; 4 Bl. Com. 150."

Responsibility After Publication.

The criticism upon Blackstone's statement has not been because immunity from previous restraint upon publication has not been regarded as deserving of special emphasis, but chiefly because that immunity cannot be deemed to exhaust the conception of the liberty guarantee by state and federal constitutions. The point of criticism has been "that the mere exemption from previous restraints cannot be all that is secured by the constitutional provisions"; and that "the liberty of the press might be rendered a mockery and a delusion, and the phrase itself a byword, if, while every man was at liberty to publish what he pleased, the public authorities might nevertheless punish him for harmless publications." 2 Cooley, Const. Lim., 8th Ed., P.P. 885.

But it is recognized that punishment for the abuse of the liberty accorded

DISSENTING OPINION SEES NO PERIL TO FREE SPEECH

SAYS LIBEL LAW CANNOT CONTROL SCANDAL SHEETS

...e free press is essential to the protection of the public, and that the common law rules that subject the libeler to responsibility for the public offense, as well as for the private injury, are not abolished by the protection extended in our constitutions. ID P.P. 883, 884. The law of criminal libel rests upon that secure foundation.

There is also the conceded authority of courts to punish for contempt when publications directly tend to prevent the proper discharge of judicial functions. Patterson v. Colorado, supra; Toledo Newspaper company v. United States 247 U. S. 402, 419. In the present case we have no occasion to inquire as to the permissible scope of subsequent punishment. For whatever wrong the appellant has committed or may commit, by his publications, the state appropriately affords both public and private redress by its libel laws. As has been noted, the statute in question does not deal with punishments; it provides for no punishment, except in case of contempt for violation of the court's order, but for suppression and injunction, that is for restraint upon publication.

The objection has also been that the principle as to immunity from previous restraint is stated too broadly, if every such restraint is deemed to be prohibited. That is undoubtedly true; the protection even as to previous restraint is not absolutely unlimited. But the limitation has been recognized only in exceptional cases. "When a nation is at war many things that might be said in time of peace are such a hindrance to its effort that their utterance will not be endured so long as men fight and that no court could regard them as protected by any constitutional right." Schenck vs. United States, 249 United States 47, 52. No one would question but that a government might prevent actual obstruction to its recruiting service or the publication of the sailing dates of transports or the number and location of troops.

On similar grounds, the primary requirements of decency may be enforced against obscene publications. The security of the community life may be protected against incitements to acts of violence and the overthrow by force of orderly government. The constitutional guaranty of free speech does not "protect a man from an injunction against uttering words that may have all the effect of force. Gompers vs. Buck Stove and Range Co., 221 United States 418, 439." Schenck vs. United States, supra.

Not Applicable in Case.

These limitations are not applicable here. Nor are we now concerned with questions as to the extent of authority to prevent publications in order to protect private rights according to the principles governing the exercise of the jurisdiction of courts of equity.

The exceptional nature of its limitations places in a strong light the general conception that liberty of the press, historically considered and taken up by the federal constitution, has meant, principally although not exclusively, immunity from previous restraints or censorship. The conception of the liberty of the press in this country had broadened with the exigencies of the colonial period and with the efforts to secure freedom from oppressive administration.

That liberty was especially cherished for the immunity it afforded from previous restraint of the publication of censure of public officers and charges of official misconduct. As was said by Chief Justice Parker, in Commonwealth vs. Blanding, 3 Pick 304, 313, with respect to the constitution of Massachusetts: "Besides, it is well understood, and received as a commentary on this provision for the liberty of the press, that it was intended to prevent all such previous restraints upon publications as had been practised by other governments and in early times here, to stifle the efforts of patriots towards enlightening their fellow subjects upon their rights and the duties of rulers. The liberty of the press was to be unrestrained, but he who used it was to be responsible in case of its abuse."

In the letter sent by the Continental Congress [Oct. 26, 1774] to the inhabitants of Quebec, referring to the "five great rights," it was said: "The last right we shall mention regards the freedom of the press. The importance of this consists, besides the advancement of truth, science, morality, and arts in general, in its diffusion of liberal sentiment on the administration of government, its ready communication of thoughts between subjects, and its consequential promotion of union among them, whereby oppressive officers are shamed or intimidated, into more honourable and just modes of conducting affairs."

Madison, who was the leading spirit in the preparation of the first amendment of the federal constitution, thus described the practice and sentiment which led to the guaranties of liberty of the press in state constitutions:

"In every state, probably, in the Union, the press has exerted a freedom in canvassing the merits and measures of public men of every description which has not been confined to the strict limits of the common law. On this footing the freedom of the press has stood; on this footing it yet stands. Some degree of abuse is inseparable from the proper use of everything, and in no instance is this more true than in that of the press. It has accordingly been decided by the practice of the state, that it is better to leave a few of its noxious branches to their luxuriant growth than, by pruning them away, to injure the vigor of those yielding the proper fruits.

Points to Wisdom of Stand.

"And can the wisdom of this policy be doubted by any who reflect that to the press alone, checkered as it is with abuses, the world is indebted for all the triumphs which have been gained by reason and humanity over error and oppression; who reflect that to the same beneficent source the United States owe much of the lights which conducted them to the ranks of a free and independent nation, and which have improved their political system into a shape so auspicious of their happiness? Had 'sedition acts,' forbidding every publication that might bring the constituted agents into contempt or disrepute, or that might excite the hatred of the people against the authors of unjust or pernicious measures, been uniformly enforced against the press, might not the United States have been languishing at this day under the infirmities of a sickly confederation? Might they not, possibly, be miserable colonies, groaning under a foreign yoke?"

The fact that for approximately 150 years there has been almost an entire absence of attempts to impose previous restraints upon publications relating to the malfeasance of public officers is significant of the deep seated conviction that such restraints would violate constitutional rights. Public officers, whose character and conduct remain open to debate and free discussion in the press, and their remedies for false accusations in actions under libel laws providing for redress and punishment, and not in proceedings to restrain the publication of newspapers and periodicals. The general principle that the constitutional guaranty of the liberty of the press gives immunity from previous restraints has been approved in many decisions under the provisions of state constitutions.

The importance of this immunity has not lessened. While reckless assaults upon public men and efforts to bring obloquy upon those who are endeavoring faithfully to discharge official duties, exert a baleful influence and deserve the severest condemnation in public opinion, it cannot be said that this abuse is greater and it is believed to be less than that which characterized the period in which our institutions took shape.

Meanwhile, the administration of government has become more complex, the opportunities for malfeasance and corruption have multiplied, crime has grown to most serious proportions, and the danger of its protection by unfaithful officials and of the impairment of the fundamental security of life and property by criminal alliances and official neglect emphasize the primary need of a vigilant and courageous press, especially in great cities.

The fact that the liberty of the press may be abused by miscreant purveyors of scandal does not make any the less necessary the immunity of the press from previous restraint in dealing with official misconduct. Subsequent punishment for such abuses as may exist is the appropriate remedy, consistent with constitutional privilege.

Right Not Lost by Exercise.

In attempted justification of the statute, it is said that it deals not with publication per se, but with the "business" of publishing defamation. If, however, the publisher has a constitutional right to publish, without previous restraint, an edition of his newspaper charging official derelictions, it cannot be denied that he may publish subsequent editions for the same purpose. He does not lose his right by exercising it. If his right exists, it may be exercised in publishing nine editions, as in this case, as well as in one edition. If previous restraint is permissible, it may be imposed at once; indeed, the wrong may be as serious in one publication as in several.

Characterizing the publication as a business, and the business as a nuisance, does not permit an invasion of the constitutional immunity against restraint. Similarly, it does not matter that the newspaper or periodical is found to be "largely" or "chiefly" devoted to the publication of such derelicitions. If the publisher has a right, without previous restraint, to publish them, his right cannot be deemed to be dependent upon his publishing something else, more or less, with the matter to which objection is made.

Nor can it be said that the constitutional freedom from previous restraint is lost because charges are made of derelictions which constitute crimes. With the multiplying provisions of penal codes, and of municipal charters and ordinances carrying penal sanctions, the conduct of public officers is very largely within the purview of criminal statutes. The freedom of the press from previous restraint has never been regarded as limited to such animadversions as lay outside the range of penal enactments. Historically, there is no such limitation; it is inconsistent with the reason which underlies the privilege, as the privilege so limited would be of slight value for the purposes for which it came to be established.

The statute in question cannot be justified by reason of the fact that the matter published is true and is published with good motives and for justifiable ends. If such a statute, authorizing suppression and injunction on such a basis, is constitutionally valid, it would be equally permissible for the legislature to provide that at any time the publisher of any newspaper could be brought before a court, or even an administrative officer [as the constitutional protection may not be regarded as resting on mere procedural details], and required to produce proof of the truth of his publication, or of what he intended to publish, and of his motives, or stand enjoined.

If this can be done, the legislature may provide machinery for determining in the complete exercise of its discretion what are justifiable ends and restrain publication accordingly. And it would be but a step to a complete system of censorship. The recognition of authority to impose previous restraint upon publication in order to protect the community against the circulation of charges of misconduct, and especially of official misconduct, necessarily would carry with it the admission of the authority of the censor against which the constitutional barrier was erected. The preliminary freedom, by virtue of the very reason for its existence, does not depend, as this court has said, on proof of truth. Patterson V. Colorado, Supra.

Greater Scandal in Balance.

Equally unavailing is the insistence that the statute is designed to prevent the circulation of scandal which tends to disturb the public peace and to provoke assaults and the commission of crime. Charges of reprehensible conduct, and in particular of official malfeasance, unquestionably create a public scandal, but the theory of the constitutional guaranty is that more serious public evil would be caused by authority to prevent publication.

"To prohibit the intent to excite those unfavorable sentiments against those who administer the government is equivalent to a prohibition of the actual excitement of them; and to prohibit the actual excitement of them is equivalent to a prohibition of discussions having that tendency and effect; which again is equivalent to a protection of those who administer the government if they should at any time deserve the contempt or hatred of the people against being exposed to it by free animadversions on their characters and conduct."

There is nothing new in the fact that charges of reprehensible conduct may create resentment and the disposition to resort to violent means of redress, but this well understood tendency did not alter the determination to protect the press against censorship and restraint upon publication.

As was said in New Yorker Staats Zeitung v Nolan, 89, N. J. eq. 387, 388: "If the township may prevent the circulation of a newspaper for no reason other than that some of its inhabitants may violently disagree with it, and resent its circulation by resorting to physical violence, there is no limit to what may be prohibited."

The danger of violent reactions becomes greater with effective organization of defiant groups resenting exposure, and if this consideration warranted legislative interference with the initial freedom of publication, the constitutional protection would be reduced to a mere form of words.

For these reasons we hold the statute, so far as it authorized the proceedings in this action under clause [B] of section one, to be an infringement of the liberty of the press guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment. We should add that this decision rests upon the operation and effect of the statute, without regard to the question of the truth of the charges contained in the particular periodical. The fact that the public officers named in this case and those associated with the charges of official dereliction may be deemed to be impeccable cannot affect to conclusion that the statute imposes an unconstitional restraint upon publication. Judgment reversed.

DISSENTING OPINION

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The dissenting opinion of Justice Butler on the Minnesota gag law case, concurred in by Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds, and Sutherland, was as follows:

"The decision of the court in this case declares Minnesota and every other state powerless to restrain by injunction the business of publishing and circulating among the people malicious, scandalous, and defamatory periodicals that in due course of judicial procedure have been adjudged to be a public nuisance. It gives to freedom of the press a meaning and a scope not heretofore recognized and construes 'liberty' in the due process clause of the fourteenth amendment to put upon the state a federal restriction that is without precedent."

Prior to the adoption of the fourteenth amendment in 1868, Justice Butler pointed out, the federal constitution did not protect the right of free speech and press against state action. Nor was the Supreme court called on until 1925, said the opinion, to decide whether freedom of speech and press came within the meaning of the "liberty" protected by the fourteenth amendment.

The defendants admitted publishing the malicious, scandalous, and defamatory articles in question, said Justice Butler, and then went on: "The record also shows it was their purpose at all hazards to continue to carry on the business. Many of the statements are so highly improbable as to compel a finding that they are false."

In a footnote the opinion quoted at length from one of the articles, in which particular mention was made of an official's alleged connection with a Jewish gangster and in which Jews were attacked with particular vigor.

Holds to Special Case.

"The defendant here," Justice Butler continued, "has no standing to assert that the statute is invalid because it might be construed so as to violate the constitution. His right is limited solely to the inquiry whether, having regard to the points properly raised in his case, the effect of applying the statute is to deprive him of his liberty without due process of law. This court should not reverse the judgment below upon the ground that in some other case the statute may be applied in a way that is repugnant to the freedom of the press protected by the fourteenth amendment."

The opinion reviewed portions of the record of the case, then went on:

"No question was raised below and there is none here considering the relevancy or weight of evidence, burden of proof, justification, or other matters of defense, the scope of the judgment or proceedings to enforce or the character of the publications that might be made notwithstanding the injunction.

"There is no basis for the suggestion that defendants may not interpose any defense or introduce any evidence that would be open to them in a libel case or that malice may not be negatived by showing that the publication was made in good faith in belief of its truth or that at the time and under the circumstances it was justified as a fair comment on public affairs or upon the conduct of public officers in respect of their duties as such."

"The act," said the opinion "was passed in the exertion of the state's power of peace, and this court is by well established rule required to assume, until the contrary is clearly made to appear, that there exists in Minnesota a state of affairs that justifies this measure for the preservation of the peace and order of the state.

"The publications themselves disclose the need and propriety of the legislation."

Justice Butler went on to show from the record, Guilford, originally a codefendant, and Near had once published a scandal sheet called the Twin City Reporter, though they denied that they had used the publication as a means of blackmail. Guilford was shot down, and Near apprehended violence after publishing the first issue of the Saturday Press. And "there is more," Justice Butler remarked, "of like significance." The criminal career of the Twin City Reporter and the shooting of Guilford, Justice Butler argued, demonstrated the conditions that the Minnesota legislature evidently sought to correct.

For Unhampered State Power.

"It is of great importance," he asserted, "that the states shall be untrammelled and free to employ all just and appropriate measures to prevent abuses of the liberty of the press."

He quoted Justice Story on the constitution, in which the necessity of placing a limit on the right of free speech and press was discussed and upheld. Justice Butler also called upon a quotation from Justice Story to answer Chief Justice Hughes' reference to Blackstone.

"It is plain that Blackstone taught that under the common law liberty of the press means simply the absence of restraint upon publication in advance, as distinguished from liability, civil or criminal, for libelous or improper matter so published," said the dissenting opinion. "And as above shown, Story defined freedom of the press guaranteed by the first amendment to mean that 'every man shall be at liberty to publish what is true, with good motives and for justifiable ends.' His statement concerned the definite declaration of the first amendment. It is not suggested that the freedom of the press included in the liberty protected by the fourteenth amendment, which was adopted after Story's definition, is greater than that protected against congressional action.

Denies Previous Restraint.

"The Minnesota statute does not operate as a previous restraint on publication within the proper meaning of that phase. It does not authorize administrative control in advance such as was formerly exercised by the licensers and censors, but prescribes a remedy to be enforced by a suit in equity. In this case there was previous publication made in the ccurse of the business of regularly producing malicious, scandalous, and defamatory periodicals. The business and publications unquestionably constitute an abuse of the right of free press. The statute denounces the things done as a nuisance on the ground, as stated by the Supreme court, that they threaten morals, peace, and good order.

"There is no question of the power of the state to denounce such transgressions. The restraint authorized is only in respect of continuing to do what has been duly adjudged to constitute a nuisance. The controlling words are 'All persons guilty of such nuisance may be enjoined, as hereinafter provided. Whenever any such nuisance is committed—an action in the name of the state' may be brought 'to perpetually enjoin the person or persons committing, conducting, or maintaining any such nuisance, from further committing, conducting, or maintaining any such nuisance.' The court may make its order and judgment permanently enjoining. . . . Defendants found guilty—from committing or continuing the acts prohibited hereby, and in and by such judgment, such nuisance may be wholly abated—there is nothing in the statute purporting to prohibit publications that have not been adjudged to constitute a nuisance.

"It is fanciful to suggest similarity between the granting or enforcement of the decree authorized by this statute to prevent further publication of malicious, scandalous, and defamatory articles and the previous restraint upon the press by licensers as referred to by Blackstone and described in the history of the times to which he alludes.

Fears Public May Suffer.

"The opinion seems to concede that under clause [a] of the Minnesota law the business of regularly publishing and circulating an obscene periodical may be enjoined as a nuisance. It is difficult to perceive any distinction having any relation to constitutionality between clause [a] and clause [B] under which this action was brought. Both nuisances are offensive to morals, order and good government. As that resulting from lewd publications constitutionally may be enjoined, it is hard to understand why the one resulting from a regular business of malicious defamation may not.

"It is well known, as found by the state Supreme court, that existing libel laws are inadequate effectively to suppress evils resulting from the kind of business and publications that are shown in this case. The doctrine that measures such as the one before us are invalid because they operate as previous restraints to infringe freedom of press exposes the peace and good order of every community and the business and private affairs of every individual to constant and protracted false and malicious assaults of an insolvent publisher who may have purpose and sufficient capacity to contrive and put into effect a scheme or program for oppression, blackmail, or extortion.

"The judgment should be affirmed."

GOVERNOR PLEASED BY DECISION KILLING MINNESOTA GAG LAW

French Lick, Ind., June 1.—(AP)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota expressed pleasure here today when told that the United States Supreme court had held invalid the Minnesota press suppression law.

"I am pleased with the decision of the Supreme court," he said. "It accomplishes what the legislature, which rejected my request for repeal of the law, failed to accomplish.

"I had the unusual experience with the law as prosecuting attorney of Hennepin county of being obliged to enforce it and suppress several publications, despite my opposition to it as an invasion of the right of freedom of the press and of speech."

Gov. Olson is attending the annual conference of governors here.

DECISION A TRIUMPH FOR FREE THOUGHT, M'CORMICK SAYS

Concerning the decision of the United States Supreme court in the Minnesota gag law case, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE who instituted the suit in behalf of freedom of the press in America, made this statement last evening:

"The decision of Chief Justice Hughes will go down in history as one of the greatest triumphs for free thought. The Minnesota gag law was passed by a crooked legislature to protect criminals in office and supported by a state court as feeble in public spirit as it was weak in legal acumen.

"We must not blind ourselves to the fact that subversive forces have gone far in this country when such a statute could be passed by any legislature and upheld by any court, and must be on guard against further encroachments.

"The newspapers of America will realize the responsibilities devolving upon them under this decision and will maintain and increase the high principles which have guided them since the inception of a free press."

EDITORS HAIL GAG RULING AS PRESS VICTORY

Atlanta, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—The United States Supreme court decision, which held unconstitutional the Minnesata law under which a Minneapolis weekly was suppressed, drew favorable comment tonight from leading figures in the convention of the National Editorial association here.

George B. Dolliver, Battle Creek, Mich., president of the association, said he felt that "newspapers of the country are satisfied with the freedom of the press as they now have it."

"When restriction is started there is always danger that it may develop into a gag," he added.

H. C. Hotaling, St. Paul, Minn., executive secretary of the association, also commented favorably upon the decision.

"The press," he said, "should not be confined in its expression. There is no need for restriction of reputable newspapers. However, some of our Minnesota editors feel that regulation of certain types of publication would not be undesirable.

"A number of legislators and editors are of the opinion we have statutes in our state under which these publications could be regulated, other than the one held unconstitutional."

K. F. Baldridge, Bloomfie'd, Ia., a director of the association, said: "I am in sympathy with the Supreme court decision."

County Gives In to Judges on Public Defender Bill

The county board yesterday voted to withdraw its opposition to a provision in the public defender bill, now pending in the legislature, which would enpower the judges of the Circuit court to appoint the staff of the defender.

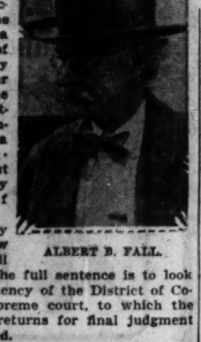
HIGH COURT BARS APPEAL OF FALL IN BRIBERY CASE

Chance to Escape Prison Lies with Trial Judge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today denied Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, a review of the bribery case under which he was convicted and sentenced to a year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100,000.



ALBERT B. FALL.

The only means now left to Fall to escape the full sentence is to look to the clemency of the District of Columbia Supreme court, to which the case now returns for final judgment to be passed.

In declining to take Fall's case under review, the Supreme court gave out no explanation, merely listing his appeal with many others and closing with the terse remark that these petitions "were severally denied."

Convicted in 1929.

Fall, appointed secretary of the interior by President Harding, was tried and on Oct 25, 1929, was found guilty of having accepted a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, head of the Pan-American Petroleum company, given him in consideration of his approving the lease of naval oil reserves to the company.

Previously he and Doheny had been tried for conspiracy in connection with the lease negotiations, but were acquitted on this charge.

The lease in question was of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve. While the negotiations were in progress Doheny had sent Fall $100,000, taking in return the secretary's promissory note. The famous "little black bag" which figured prominently in the case was that in which Doheny's son carried the money to Fall.

Teapot Dome Case.

The Elk Hills case, with the Teapot Dome case, in which Fall and Harry Sinclair figured, together furnished the sensational disclosures concerning oil during the investigations of the Harding régime scandals.

Justice William Hitz, before whom the Fall bribery case was tried, once indicated that he would grant clemency in the matter of the prison sentence because of Fall's advanced age and state of chronic ill health. Justice Hitz recently was promoted to the Court of Appeals, so that the case now will come before another judge for final sentence.

Fall Calm; Daughter Faints.

El Paso, Tex., June 1.—(AP)—A daughter of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, fainted today when told the Supreme court had refused to review the case in which her father was convicted of accepting a bribe. Fall received the news calmly.

Mrs. Fall met the newspaper men's announcement with the statement "they are trying to kill us all. But they won't kill me. They are trying to persecute decent people."

Just then Mrs. C. C. Chase, a daughter, entered the room. Told of the court's action, she fell unconscious on the floor.

COURT KNOCKS OUT $1,000,000 WILL OF N. Y. DYEWOOD MAN

New York, June 1.—[Special—Holding that Percival M. Thomas, former president of the American Dyewood company, lacked testamentary capacity when he made his will and codicil and was the victim of fraud and undue influence by his daughter and her husband, Surrogate John P. O'Brien today denied probate to the documents.

Mr. Thomas died on Jan. 30, 1930, in his twenty-two room apartment at 190 Riverside drive, leaving an estate estimated from $350,000 to more than $1,000,000.

Suit to set aside the instruments was filed by two sons, George P. Thomas, and Charles A. Thomas, Ventnor, N. J., and a daughter, Mrs. Margaret T. McCormick, New Rochelle, N. Y. They accused the other daughter, Mrs. Kathryn T. Hicks, and her husband, Charles M. Hicks, former member of the Philadelphia Stock exchange, of taking advantage of their father's age and infirmity and inducing him to make the will in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks.

NEW DELAY SEEN AS POSTOFFICE JOB SEEMS NEAR

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—The plans and specifications for the new Chicago postoffice reached the treasury early today and were immediately transmitted to the supervising architects' office. Unless unforeseen delays develop, treasury officials said, the contract for the new federal structure should be in the hands of the successful bidder before the middle of July.

Maj. Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, ordered the architects' office to speed up when informed that it might take two weeks for a complete checkup of the plans as submitted by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, the Chicago architects.

"We ought to get the specifications into the hands of the bidders within ten or twelve days," Maj. Heath said. "Bids would be opened early in July and the contract let as soon as we could evaluate them."

Another possible source of delay developed, however, when the department of justice declined to approve the deed for the air rights railroad site as submitted. Changes are to be made in the deed with the expectation it will then be approved.

LEGS DIAMOND DENIES GUILT WHEN ARRAIGNED

Catskill, N. Y., June 1.—[Special.]—Jack (Legs) Diamond pleaded not guilty to charges of assault, coercion, and violation of the Sullivan anti-pistol toting law when arraigned in court here in connection with his alleged racketeering activities in the Catskill mountains.

The gangster was brought here on Saturday from an Albany hospital, where he has been since he was riddled with buckshot in a roadhouse on April 27.

The assault and Sullivan law charges figuring in today's proceeding grew out of a beating administered to a truckman by Diamond henchmen, it is alleged.

REVEALS A SIXTH DEAD HUSBAND OF MRS. SUMMERS

A sixth husband was added last night to the matrimonial list of Mrs. Margaret Summers, the middle aged widow held in the county jail on suspicion of having poisoned nineteen persons, including several of her husbands. A coroner's jury ordered her held to the grand jury on a charge of poisoning four persons, one of them her husband.

The sixth mate, police established, was Warren J. Merret, former cab driver and night watchman at the Cuneo Press. His photograph, procured from Mrs. Summers' stepmother at Effingham, Ill., was identified by Mrs. Summers' adopted daughter, Mrs. Victor Ritti.

"Yes, he was one of her husbands," Mrs. Ritti said defiantly when Detectives David Nelson and George Egan handed her the picture. "I'm not afraid to admit it because I know mother didn't poison him."

Wed 6 Years Ago, She Says.

Mrs. Summers and Merret were married about six years ago, the foster daughter recalled, this alliance following the death of her fourth husband, Stanley Korzen.

"But you can't say she poisoned him," Mrs. Ritti declared. "He grew tired of mother and took up with some 18 year old girl, whom he married after divorcing mother."

The detectives demanded that Mrs. Ritti tell them how Merret died, if not by arsenic.

"I haven't the slightest idea," the young woman answered. "I know he went away with the girl, and a couple of years afterwards, when I asked mother about him, she said he was dead."

This morning, the detectives said, an investigation will be made of the records of the Cuneo Press, Yellow Cab company, bureau of licenses and coroner's death records in an attempt to establish the date and circumstances of Merret's supposed death.

Questioned by Prosecutor.

Prior to the call of the two policemen, Mrs. Ritti was visited at her home at 1148 Orleans street by Assistant State's Attorney E. A. Ferrari, who demanded an explanation of the foster daughter's removal of Mrs. Summers' furniture on Saturday from the latter's flat at 638 West North avenue.

"I had a perfect right to take it," Mrs. Ritti said. "I had a signed order from mother to clear out the flat."

Mrs. Ritti scoffed at the charge that her foster mother had poisoned her husbands, two of her brothers, her nephew and two peddlers, who worked for Thomas Summers, the last of the husbands to die. The authorities contend she killed the men for their insurance.

Swanson Takes Charge.

State's Attorney Swanson assumed personal charge yesterday of the investigation of Mrs. Summers' case.

Following a conference with Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks, Coroner Bundesen and Police Captain Thomas Condon of the Hudson avenue district, Mr. Swanson announced that grand jury action against Mrs. Summers would be deferred, possibly until next week.

Coroner Herman N. Bundesen yesterday refused to confirm or deny a report that several bodies had been exhumed in addition to those of Summers, the woman's last husband; Thomas Meyers, her nephew; William Roman and Thomas Lanagan, peddlers, in all of which arsenic was found.

Lane Tech School to Be Dedicated Today

The new Lane Technical High school at Addison and Western avenue will be dedicated this afternoon, with Mayor Cermak, Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan, and others attending the ceremonies. The school is now three-quarters finished.

Edmund Curry Appointed to City Department Job

Mayor Cermak yesterday appointed Edmund Curry, a south side real estate man, as secretary of the building department. Mr. Curry, who lives at 156 West Garfield boulevard, is 31 years old. He is a member of the Thomas J. O'Grady Democratic organization in the 14th ward. The position pays $3,780 a year. It has been vacant since the death over a year ago of Peter Hoey.

84 Juvenile Delinquents Removed from Quarantine

A. G. Barry, superintendent of the Juvenile detention home, yesterday ordered the removal from quarantine of eighty-four boys on the delinquents' floor at the institution. The quarantine was established when three cases of measles were discovered on Saturday. The rest of the 211 boys in the home will be out of quarantine in a few days.

Wife to Administer Estate of Heitler; Set at $250,000

Letters of administration for the estate of "Mike de Pike" Heitler, racketeer and brothel keeper, who was believed to have been cremated in a barn near Barrington a month ago, were issued yesterday to his wife, Mrs. Rose Heitler. Heitler did not leave a will. The petition, which was filed with Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, stated that the estate was valued "in excess of $10,000."

Poses as Delivery Man to Rob Flat; Menaces Three

Under the guise of delivering a package, a gunman yesterday gained entrance to the flat of Harry S. Polk, 1349 Greenleaf avenue, and escaped with jewelry valued at $2,500 after herding Mrs. Polk, her daughter, Marylin, 3 years old, and a maid, Miss Amelia Urban, into a closet at the point of a gun. Polk is a furrier at 5 South Wabash avenue.

JUDGE TO RULE TODAY ON CANAL GRAFT CHARGES

Will Decide if Crowe and Aids Must Stand Trial.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Kreglestein, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Steve Brown, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Fred Palerno, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Joseph Burke.

Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court will decide this morning whether Timothy J. Crowe, who was president of the sanitary district board during the "whoopee" period, and seven other former trustees and officials of the board, must be tried on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public and squander public funds. The indictments against Crowe and others have been pending for nearly two years.

A defense motion to quash the indictment will be decided today. Should the judge order the indictment quashed Crowe and his former associates would escape trial. Should the judge uphold even one count of the nine in the indictment the defendants would be tried.

Motion Pending Since January.

The motion to quash has been pending since late in January. The attorneys in the case finished their arguments then, and the judge promised a decision in April when he returned from a vacation. The decision, however, has been postponed from time to time.

At the previous hearings Judge David several times expressed the opinion that the first two counts in the indictment were in legal form and within the provisions of the statutes.

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who has devoted virtually all of his time for more than a year to the sanitary district cases, said during the original hearing that if only the first two counts are allowed to stand the prosecution will be hampered. These are general counts charging the defendants with defrauding the public.

Specific Offenses Charged.

The other seven counts charge Crowe and the others with specific offenses, such as padding pay rolls, defrauding the public through the construction of the north shore channel road, its adjoining $1,000,000 bridle path, and the elaborated $1,000 per light illuminating system."

Some counts deal with the building of the west and north side sewage treatment plants and charge that the contracts were corruptly let at an exorbitant price. It is also charged that the trustees violated the law by evading the provision, which provides that all contracts of more than $500 must be let through competitive bidding. Work was given to favored concerns in amounts of $499 to circumvent this law, it is charged.

The sanitary district prosecutions were started in 1929 by Frank J. Loesch, as special assistant state's attorney. Indictments were returned then, but when Prosecutor Northup took charge he obtained a new set of indictments.

CITY STARTS WORK ON LIGHT PROGRAM OVER FORTY MILES

The city started work yesterday on the installation of lighting systems on three streets in which street car extensions or bus lines were recently authorized. The work will be part of a program which has for its purpose the installation of 1,400 lights of 600 candle power, four to a block, over a distance of 40 miles.

The lights to be installed immediately will be on Montrose avenue from Cicero to Narragansett avenue; on Diversey avenue from Crawford to Narragansett avenue, and on Central avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Irving Park boulevard.

Francis M. O'Donnell, acting commissioner of gas and electricity, also announced that a survey was being made with a view of installing traffic signal lights at 27 street intersections. Ten of the new traffic signals will probably be placed on North La Salle street, which was recently widened and paved between Randolph street and Lincoln park.

ORDERS GRAND JURY PROBE OF UNION RECORDS

Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court yesterday issued a supoena duces tecum ordering records of the motion picture operators' union to be brought before the grand jury for examination.

The records were seized in a raid on union headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue last week. Union officials protested and yesterday morning obtained an order from Circuit Judge Harry Fisher declaring the raid illegal and directing the state's attorney's office to return the records. Judge McGoorty's later order nullified Judge Fisher's decision.

The racket bureau seized the records on complaints that union officials were forcing small motion picture theater owners to employ two operators and thus restraining trade. The prosecutors were also investigating reports that union officials were collecting a percentage of salaries paid to operators.

Painter Stabbed as Fight Disrupts Union Election

Election of officers of the Painters' and Decorators' union at 19 West Adams street was temporarily halted last night when two members resumed an old feud. Thomas M. Grant, 50 years old, of 717 North Clark street, was stabbed in the neck. Police are seeking Thomas Kennedy.

Grant had cast his ballot and was stabbed as he stepped from the voting booth. He was taken to Henrotin hospital by Alexander Hunter, another painter. Hospital attendants said he would recover.

SLAYS MAN WITH WHOM SHE LIVES AND SHOOTS SELF

Angered because she found him with another woman, Helen Deal, 18 years old, shot and killed Nicholas Colantanio, 33 years old, a milkman, in his flat at 169 Locust street early this morning. She then shot herself, inflicting a minor wound in the right shoulder.

Miss Deal lived with Colantanio for almost two weeks, she said. Last night she returned home and found him with another woman. The guest departed without divulging her name. Miss Deal berated Colantanio, and during the quarrel he handed her a revolver challenging her to use it. She seized the weapon and fired once, the bullet hitting Colantanio in the neck, and then shot herself.

Lieut. Eugene Barry took Miss Deal to the Henrotin Memorial hospital, where her wound was dressed, and then questioned her at the Chicago avenue station preparatory for transfer to the Bridewell hospital. The girl came to Chicago from Hot Springs, Ark., two weeks ago.

Boys Rule City of Harvey as One-Day Officials

Boys ruled the city of Harvey yesterday in celebration of the formal opening of Boys' week there. Harold Boysen became mayor for the day. Owen Lundmark was city clerk, Walter Michalowski was judge, William Shumper was chief of police, and Ray Kelly was chief of the fire department. Alex Pratt, Mike Elashik and Gilbert Eerb acted as commissioners.

LANGGUTH AND GIRL TO BE TRIED AS EMBEZZLERS

Elmer P. Langguth, former president of the Peoples State bank of Maywood, and Miss Lavergne Lindgren, his cashier, will have to stand trial on an embezzlement indictment, despite the fact that they are already under conviction on charges of making false statements of the bank's accounts. This announcement was made yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Leonard C. Rice when he appeared before Judge Joseph Burke and had the case set for trial on June 15.

KILLED BY GAS FUMES.

Samuel Schlamberg, 40 years old, was found dead of gas fumes yesterday in his room at 116 North Sheldon street. Gas was flowing from burners in the room.

MURRAY RETURNS ON PAROLE AFTER SERVING 5 YEARS

James Murray, former west side politician and beer runner, returned to Chicago yesterday on parole from Atlanta penitentiary, where he served five and a half years of a twenty-five year sentence for his part in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery.

Murray reported to Chief Federal Probation Officer William McGrath, who will keep him under scrutiny, and told of his arrangements to go into the paint and varnish business with a legitimate firm.

"I never was a hoodlum and never knew any hoodlums," said Murray.

A commutation of sentence, based on the restitution of $346,500 worth of stolen bonds, made Murray's parole possible.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Everyone has an Adam's Apple—Every man—every woman has one. Touch your Adam's Apple with your finger. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

"TOASTING" expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE—the modern cigarette. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds. Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" Process includes the use of Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret and exclusive heating process. It is this process that expels these harsh irritants. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple." Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

U. S. AUTOS HIT BY NEW 'CANADA FIRST' TARIFF

Other American Exports Feel Pinch.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1.—An absolute ban on the importation of used automobiles, an increase from 27½ per cent to 30 per cent in duty on automobiles costing over $1,200 and under $2,100, a practically prohibitive duty of 40 per cent on automobiles costing over $2,100, and duty increases on American coal, steel, leather, fruits, vegetables, and meats—all items which entered heavily into Canada's quarter billion dollar adverse trade balance with the United States—are features of Premier Richard B. Bennett's "Canada first" budget, which he presented to parliament today.

Tariff increases are aimed primarily at the United States, and constitute Canada's second tariff retaliatory step since America's Hawley-Smoot tariff hit Canadian agricultural imports.

Experts here estimated that the curtailment of American imports to be effected by today's tariff changes would amount to nearly $100,000,000 per year.

Will Aid Wheat Growers.

Announcing Canada's increasing success in the marketing of her piled up wheat, Mr. Bennett announced that direct assistance will be given Canadian wheat growers in their race for world markets by a government subsidy of five cents a bushel on every bushel of wheat exported.

Behind the increased tariff on medium and high priced American automobiles is the Bennett government's new policy to force the establishment of American automobile branch factories in Canada and establish a Canadian automobile industry.

Even automobile parts are subjected to stiffer duties, and duty drawbacks formerly enjoyed by Canadian concerns importing auto parts from America are cut from 99 to 60 per cent. Duty of 40 cents a ton is imposed on American anthracite. The bituminous coal tariff is raised from 50 to 75 cents a ton, including coal screenings. Coke and charcoal rates all were jacked up. Government subsidization of coal transportation from the far east and west of Canada is also provided to help along this new fuel policy.

New Coal Policy.

The imposition of a 40 per cent per ton duty on American anthracite coal is a departure from all past Canadian policies of permiting fuelless Ontario to get domestic fuel supplies from hear nearest source of supply in the Pennsylvania fields. A storm of protest by Ontario it is believed will follow. The maximum of government subsidy on transportation of Canadian coal from the east and west coasts to middle Canada was announced as $2 per ton from the Pacific and $1.50 from the Atlantic coal fields.

Stiff increases in domestic taxation were announced by the prime minister in his capacity as finance minister to meet the estimated national deficit of nearly $84,000,000.

Increases include general 1 cent increase on postage rates, increase in sales tax from 1 to 4 per cent, 2 cent tax on all checks, increased income taxation on medium incomes, and a special superimposed excise tax of 1 per cent on all goods imported into Canada.

U. S. Magazines Taxed.

American magazines and periodicals are made subject to specific duty of 15 cents per pound, except in case of such as may be placed on the exempted list by the government.

Tariff changes went into effect immediately. They provide three rates, British preference, intermediate, and general. The British preference applies now to the entire empire.

Washington's minister to Canada, Col. Hanford MacNider, was among the foreign ministers and diplomats present in the distinguished visitors' gallery to hear the tariff and taxation announcements. Reiterating his government's intention of standing or falling by the policy of protection for Canadian industry, Mr. Bennett said 87 new industries, most of them branches of American parent concerns, had located in Canada since last September's tariff increases.

U. S. to Study Changes.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—Pending receipt of a full report from Minister MacNider on the proposed new Canadian customs duties, state department officials declined tonight to comment. The department will study the changes with a view to determining the course which the United States will follow, if any, in the way of diplomatic representations.

The attitude of the American government always, in cases of tariff changes, is that it is a purely domestic question with the government concerned. When rates are considered discriminatory against American products, representations are made against such duties.

DRIFT FOR 40 HOURS ON LAKE ERIE WHEN MOTOR FAILS; SAVED

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—Two men drifted for more than 40 hours in a disabled motor boat on Lake Erie this week-end, but were brought safely ashore today. Their cabin cruiser was berthed at the Buffalo Yacht club.

The men, Walter P. Werheim and Frank R. Gibson, cruised across the eastern end of Lake Erie to Port Colborne, Ont., Friday, and were returning Saturday when their motor went dead. The men drifted helplessly until this morning when they were sighted by a lake steamer, the captain of which offered to take them off.

Werheim and Gibson declined the proffered help, but asked the steamer captain to radio news of their plight to the coast guard. While five coast guard boats searched for them they were taken in tow by a freighter and brought to Buffalo, little the worse for their experience.

4 FIRST COUSINS DROP FIGHT ON DEPEW'S WILL

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Four first cousins of Chauncey M. Depew Jr., who objected to the probating of his will which left his $10,000,000 estate to four other cousins and Yale university, withdrew their objections today before Surrogate John P. O'Brien.

The objectors were the Vicomtesse Anna Hegeman de Bresson and the Marquise Charlotte Hegeman de Pontol, both living in France; Adelaide Hegeman Rogers, New York; and Elizabeth Hegeman Bailey, Jamestown, N. Y.

Attorneys for the objectors announced that their clients had decided to withdraw but gave no reason for the change.

Yale gets one-third of the estate and the remainder is to be divided among the four cousins.

LABOR RULE AT STAKE IN BRITAIN; PUSHES PROGRAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 1.—Parliament will reassemble tomorrow after the Whitsuntide holidays. It will then settle down for two months of hard work before the summer adjournment, which, the Labor government hopes, will be reached by the end of July. The Labor government has now entered its third year of office, and after two years spent in fighting for position, it must show some results in the shape of legislation, political experts insist.

With the support of the Liberals, which is assured, the Labor government should have little difficulty in speeding legislation. The government proposes to devote 12 days to cleaning up the finance bill, after which it will take up the electoral reform bill, which will wipe out the last vestiges of plural voting, and is expected finally to democratize British franchise.

Another important measure, which must be dealt with is a bill, still unframed, to put unemployment insurance—the dole—on a sound basis. At present the insurance fund is $415,000,000 behind. Last February its borrowing powers were increased to $450,000,000, but that sum will be exhausted by the middle of July and more money must be provided.

HUNT SLAYER OF FARMER.

Bemidji, Minn., June 1.—(AP)—State and local authorities hunted the slayer today of Hugo Olson, 63, a bachelor, who was found killed in his isolated farm home near here. Three neighbors found the body, pierced four times by bullets and badly battered and cut. Robbery is believed by police to have been the motive.

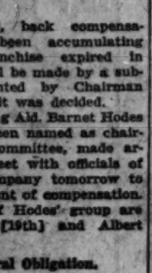
CITY TO DEMAND PHONE COMPANY PAY $4,267,000

Aldermen Oppose New Franchise Grant.

Stormy opposition to the proposed franchise grant to the Illinois Bell Telephone company developed yesterday at a meeting of the city council committee on gas, oil, and electricity. The franchise will meet further opposition in obtaining the city's approval in its present form, some committee members indicated.



ALD. ARVEY.

An immediate demand upon the telephone company for payment of approximately $4,267,000, back compensation which has been accumulating since the old franchise expired in January, 1929, will be made by a subcommittee appointed by Chairman Jacob M. Arvey, it was decided.

After the meeting Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], who had been named as chairman of the subcommittee, made arrangements to meet with officials of the telephone company tomorrow to discuss the payment of compensation. Other members of Hodes' group are O. B. Northrup [19th] and Albert Lossehar [44th].

Calls It Moral Obligation.

"There is a moral obligation upon the company to pay this money to the city," declared Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th]. "The company is now operating under extensions of the old franchise and it should be made to pay what it owes as an evidence of good faith. The surface lines paid compensation to the city under similar circumstances."

Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], censured the attitude of the company in withholding what is owes to the city.

"The company is holding a club over our heads," said Ald. O'Grady. "They have taken the attitude that they will pay only when a new franchise is granted. We can hold a club over their heads by not giving in to them unless they pay up."

Wants Ordinance Clarified.

Ald. Nelson also stressed objections to the vagueness of the ordinance in regard to a provision that the telephone company should pay for relocation of its underground equipment when the subway is built.

"Unless the company is made to promise to pay these relocation costs, as stated definitely in the old franchise, I would rather see granting of the franchise come from the Illinois commerce commission," he stated. "Let them hold the bag."

The aldermen were also indignant about a provision in the new ordinance which gives the telephone company all television privileges.

THIS ARMY OFFICER PROPOSES, ACCEPTED, AND IS WED IN 72 HRS.

Newton, Mass., June 1.—(AP)—Proposal, acceptance and marriage, and a start for a Honolulu honeymoon, all within 72 hours—such is the rapid fire romance of Lieut. Otho P. Smoot of Washington and the former Miss Phyllis Logan of Newton, formerly of Norfolk, Va.

The young couple were today motoring across the continent to take ship for the naval air base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, where Lieut. Smoot will be stationed. The aviator had wired Miss Logan:

"Leaving for Honolulu. Will you marry me and go along?"

She said "Yes."

N. Y. CENTRAL TO DISPLACE STEAM ENGINE JUNE 15

New York, June 1. — [Special.] — Operation of Diesel engined electric locomotives was begun today by the New York Central railroad on its tracks on the west side of Manhattan, presaging the end within two weeks of the steam train operation that has persisted for more than half a century.

The announcement by the railroad after an experimental trip this afternoon stated that all operation, even down to the St. John's park freight terminal, would be electric by June 15.

Two electric locomotives made a leisurely trip from Spuyten Duyvil down eight miles of main track to 72d street, coupled together. Later tonight the two engines returned to Spuyten Duyvil, and then on to Harmon, N. Y., with a train of empty milk cars.

All of the forty-odd locomotives bought for the Diesel engined operation will have special shoes for third rail work north of Spuyten Duyvil. The railroad, under its grade crossing elimination contract for the west side, promised to remove steam trains north of 72d street by July 3 of this year. South of 72d the steam trains were to go when the tracks themselves were removed from grade.

Faced with the necessity of running electric trains north of 72d, the railroad decided to eliminate steam operation entirely south of Harmon.

ARREST THRILL KILLER KNAPP AFTER 5 YEARS

West Orange, N. J., June 2.—[Special.]—A 5 year search for Philip Knox Knapp, Cornell university man, army deserter, and member of a prominent Syracuse, N. Y., family, wanted for the murder of Louis Panella, a Hempstead, N. Y., taxicab driver, whom he killed for a "thrill," ended today when Knapp was routed from his bed at 35 Ridgehurst road and arrested by a squad of detectives led by Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau county (N. Y.) police.

Knapp, who as Allen K. Phillips married a Miss Eleanor Hill of Boston soon after the slaying of Panella, had been living with his wife at the West Orange address since last October. For four years prior to that time he had been working as a mechanic for the United States coast guard on Staten island under the same name. His wife was unaware of his identity until the police arrested him. He made no resistance. Afterwards at the West Orange police station he is said to have confessed.

ILLINOIS REMAP IS ON PROGRAM AT LEGISLATURE

Income Tax Measure Is Also Coming Up.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—Congressional reapportionment, income tax, women's eight hour bill, and Chicago revenue are the legislative headliners this week, with Senator Earl B. Searcy's projected attack on superfluous jobholders as a curtain raiser.

Leaders in both houses regard a remap of the congressional seats as one remaining measure which might preserve the session from falling into the category of flops, and tomorrow may determine its fate in the house. Party caucuses are to be held tomorrow in an effort to get together on disputed boundary lines, and with the administration forces giving a boost here and there the remap is regarded as having a chance. So far the main opposition to it has come from a few sitting congressmen.

A coterie was here last week buttonholing the members and protests were raised that the postmasters and federal jobholders in certain districts were trying to crack the whip over the state lawmakers, and that the lobbying congressmen appeared to hold a theory that districts were made for members instead of for the people.

The Igoe bills on Chicago revenue, embodying the program of the Cermak advisory committee, came up for consideration in house committee. Sentiment tonight among the members is that they have a slim chance in the regular session, as the members for weeks have been declaring that inasmuch as a special session seems more than probable to cope with matters of taxation and revenue, the whole subject matter may be hung up until then.

Income tax, which has passed the senate, comes to a vote in the house on special order Wednesday.

Meanwhile senate decks are being cleared for another broadside from Senator Searcy, who last week ripped into the Illinois Farmers' institute.

He will seek to strike out the appropriation of $73,000 for the institute.

"What Illinois taxpayers need," said Searcy tonight, "is somebody with an ax to knock off the dead timber from the pay rolls. A million dollars' worth of unnecessary jobs could be wiped out without any impairment of government."

A delegation of twenty-five tobacco dealers throughout the state will appear before the state senate tomorrow to oppose the tobacco tax bill.

CONFESSES NINE SAFE BLOWINGS ALL TO SEE WIFE

Eight safe blowings in the last eighteen months were solved last night because of a unique bargain between Frank Hurita, 38 years old, 1718 South Halsted street, and Lieut. Walter Healy at the detective bureau.

Hurita had been arrested carrying a kit of burglar tools. Police also seized his wife, Lillian, also 38 years old.

Last night Lieut. Healy was questioning Hurita. Suddenly Hurita pleaded to see his wife. Healy shook his head negatively. The prisoner persisted, saying:

"If you let me see my wife I'll talk."

Lieut. Healy agreed and Hurita confessed that in the fall of 1929 he blew open safes of the Forman Furniture company, 7838 South Halsted street; the Woolworth store, 63d street and Kenwood avenue; the W. T. Grant department store, 1018 East 63d street; another Grant store at 2341 West Roosevelt road; another Woolworth store at 6042 South Halsted street, the S. & W. Grand store at 7816 South Halsted street, the Niesner store, 5330 South Halsted street, and the H. B. W. store at 4505 South Halsted street.

Lieut. Healy then kept his part of the bargain and escorted Hurita's wife to him. They were permitted to visit for fifteen minutes.

CERMAK TO TALK OVER HIS TASKS WITH ALL CHICAGO

Will Broadcast Weekly on City's Problems.

The new mayor of Chicago will have an intimate chat with the city's 3,000,000 citizens each week in the future, discussing his troubles, analyzing the problems to be met, asking advice and, in general, talking over the job to which he has been elected.

This was revealed yesterday when Mayor Cermak announced that he had accepted the offer of the National Broadcasting company to use station WENR for two fifteen minute periods a week. The mayor will speak during one of the periods and one of his cabinet officers will utilize the second period. A decision will be made this week on when the broadcasts will start.

Allow Free Use of Station.

Free use of the radio station for the two periods was offered by Niles Trammell, vice president of the National Broadcasting company, in charge of the Chicago division.

"If you accept the use of the station it will be possible for you to report to the people each week just what you are doing and what you want to do," Mr. Trammell told the mayor. "You may ask for approval or disapproval of suggestions you have in mind and request the cooperation of the people with you and your administration."

Sees Broadcasting Center.

"M. H. Aylesworth, president of our company, has repeated in many discussions his belief that Chicago will ultimately be the radio center of this country," Mr. Trammell said.

Mayor Cermak said he was pleased at the opportunity to make clear to the people some of the problems to be met by the chief executive of the city.

The talks by the cabinet members probably will be devoted to outlines of the different phases of city government, it was said.

Air Condition Permits View Across Lake with Binoculars

Prof. Philip Fox, head of the Adler Planetarium, reported yesterday that a peculiar condition of the atmosphere made it possible to see across Lake Michigan from the planetarium. Using a pair of binoculars with only small power Prof. Fox made out clearly a lighthouse near Michigan City. He explained that stratification of air layers had the effect of raising the horizon and that the phenomenon was similar to the mirages often seen by travelers in deserts.

Gandhi Decides on Peace as Weapon to Free India

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, June 1.—Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, is ready and anxious to secure a permanent peace for revolutionary India by negotiation. He is willing to go to London and participate in the round table conference—conditionally.

Tonight he broke his long silence as to whether he meant peace or would declare a new revolution. Peace was his decision.

In a long telegram to THE TRIBUNE correspondent from his headquarters at Bardoli tonight, the "holy man" explained the details of his position.

Eager for Lasting Peace.

First—He is ready to negotiate for a permanent peace "consistent with the fundamental position of the Nationalist congress."

Second—He is willing to take a responsible part in the deliberations of the round table conference providing the Hindu-Moslem question is settled before the parley convenes and that the conditions of the British-Gandhi truce agreement are fulfilled.

Third—If the communal settlement is not achieved, but the truce conditions are fulfilled, he is willing to proceed to London to explain the All-India Nationalist congress party's position to responsible British statesmen and the British public, although not participating in the conference itself.

Text of His Message.

His telegram follows:

"Recent reports about my position have been unauthorized, merely being unintelligent anticipation. As far as I can see, absence of the Hindu-Moslem communal solution blocks my participation in the round table conference. The delicate situation brought about by the Gandhi-Lord Irvin settlement makes my immediate departure from India difficult. Apart from these difficulties I am anxious to attend the round table conference and take a full share in the deliberations and press the Nationalist congress' demands. Therefore, I am seeking a way out of the difficulty.

"But if the communal question is not solved here and the difficulty over the truce settlement is over, and if I am required to proceed to London to explain my congress' position to responsible statesmen and the public of Great Britain, I have told my friends that I should hold myself in readiness to proceed to London. In short, I am anxious to secure permanent peace by negotiation consistently with the fundamental position of the congress."

Still Wants Independence.

Gandhi's insistence that if he negotiates with Great Britain it must be consistent with the position of his party apparently means that he is still holding out for what amounts to complete independence. None here, including the moderate Indians, hopes or believes that the Labor government is ready to go that far.

A resolution adopted by the Nationalist congress at Karachi in April instructed Gandhi, as its delegate to the round table conference, "to work for complete independence so as to give India control over the army, external affairs, finance, fiscal, and economic policies, and secure the scrutiny by an impartial tribunal of the financial transactions of the British government in India, and examine the assets and obligations to be undertaken by India or England, and the right of either party to end the partnership at will."

The understanding here is that if these demands are not granted another civil disobedience movement, more terrible than the recent one, will be launched.

Sir Ramaswami Aiyar, prominent Indian moderate, today announced that efforts are being made to assemble the Indian round table delegates here as quickly as possible to induce Gandhi to participate in the conference regardless of the communal settlement.

The Hindus charge that the Moslem delegates are being subjected to great pressure by certain British elements in an effort to prolong the Hindu-Moslem quarrel indefinitely and ruin the chances of gaining self-government.

ROBBING THE CITIES.

The American Automobile association, composed of over a thousand automobile clubs in many parts of the country, is resolved to bring about a more equitable as well as a more useful division of the road funds appropriated by the state and federal governments. The president of the association, Mr. Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, notes that most of the expenditures to date have been upon the upbuilding of a system of rural roads, although the bulk of the two billions a year spent on roads has been collected from the cities.

The allocation was, perhaps, fair enough in the early days of road building when the greatest need for improvement was in the country districts; but now, with splendid roads leading almost everywhere through the farming sections, the time has come to return to the cities at least their share of the road taxes. The greatest congestion, the greatest wear on the roads and, therefore, the greatest maintenance costs, the heaviest accident rates are in the cities which have benefited scarcely at all from the enormous taxes levied for road construction and maintenance.

Illinois furnishes an admirable example of the prevailing injustice. The legislature has just appropriated $108,000,000 for the building and maintenance of roads in the next two years. Of that amount Chicago alone will contribute $44,000,000 in license fees and gasoline taxes. But of the $44,000,000 hardly more than $3,000,000 will be spent in Chicago, and even this relatively insignificant amount is the first departure made by the state from its policy of giving the city nothing at all. The injustice to Chicago motorists and taxpayers is selected as an illustration only because it is most conspicuous; but precisely the same injustice could be proved with respect to every other city in the state, whether Peoria, Rockford, Galesburg, East St. Louis, or any other.

It is gratifying to find the motor clubs with their hundreds of thousands of members actively enlisted in the fight for a fair distribution of the tax benefits. In the long run, the political influence of the clubs cannot be ignored. If the city voter has been disfranchised so far as the legislatures are concerned, he is still able to exert influence in the election of the governors. It is through that power that the cities must operate to obtain a fair distribution of the taxes.

VIRGIL KIRKLAND VERSUS INDIANA.

Virgil Kirkland has been sentenced to a probability of one year in the Indiana state reformatory for assault and battery to commit a felony. He was exposed also to the suggestion of the judge who sentenced him that he reflect upon his punishment and when he is released be resolved never to do it again. Thus Indiana justice has emerged in sweetness and light. Ravishment and death have been changed to the euphemism of an ordinary felony. Kirkland, in the reformatory record, might have been a brother who had taken the law unwisely in his own hands and was being punished because society legally could not condone what he had done.

It is no longer possible to believe that these judicial proceedings were evoked by the discovery of the body of a dead girl in the hands of young male animals, who had repeatedly ravished her and had exposed her to death just as dogs might have dragged down a sheep and left it to die in a pasture.

Such a crime as a premise for the conclusions reached in the Indiana courtroom is simply out of the case. The police records contain it, but the last act in the courtroom does not. In the proceedings of justice it has disappeared. Responsibility cannot be unloaded on the juries. At least the first one was impressed by the enormity and turpitude of the acts which killed the girl, and neither jury could have blundered into technical misstatements of its intent if it had been properly directed by the court. It must be said for some of the men on the two juries that they offered the only evidence given in the two trials of a sober recognition of the social gravity of the case. Except for them the spectacle might have been in Hollywood, and there it would have been rejected as unreal and lacking probability.

It is a fair accusation to say that there had been preparatory work for such a miscarriage of justice in Indiana. The state has been noted for the wholesomeness of its society, but it had the grave social misfortune to fall into the political control of persons of distorted mentality acting in agreement with persons of corrupt purpose. The consequences were illustrated when the head of one element was on the prison farm for attempting intimidation of the Supreme court and the head of another was sent to the penitentiary for a vile crime. Under such influences an evil morality took possession of too many minds. Its standards bewitched them. They created evils out of their particular moral enthusiasms; for instance, that it would be a mortal crime to give a sick person an alcoholic stimulant. They became obsessed with dogmas of behavior, treating real crimes lightly and darkening their minds with superstitions which they made into moral codes. In such a confusion of moral values respect for true standards will disappear. The irrational enthusiasms center upon the objects and actions which enrage them. Then when their unbalanced codes have produced the expectable consequences and the flower is a terrific crime the social and judicial processes collapse.

The penalty which comes out of the case of Indiana against the young men who received the living Arlene Draves into their company and restored her to her family dead, killed by treatment of which primitive savages would have been incapable, is a devastating indictment. The behavior of most of the persons involved in it, in the trial as well as the crime, is incomprehensible.

OUR ARMY IN THE AIR.

The army air branch and the war department division in charge of aeronautics deserve the applause of the nation for the accomplishment of the two weeks' simulated war operations. The division undertook and carried out, without a single fatality and with only negligible incidental mishaps, air maneuvers on the largest scale ever executed, at least in this country, in peace time. These maneuvers covered an area bounded by Chicago, Boston, New York, and Washington, including long flights and simulated attack and defense operations over these great cities. As Assistant Secretary of War for Air Davison points out, "the record of safety could not have been accomplished but for the superior equipment produced by the American aircraft industry, excellent staff work, careful training, and rigid discipline." And this elaborate demonstration was given without additional cost to the taxpayers.

The achievement has more significance than the American people in its present mood is likely to seize. But among those who realize the importance of national defense and the vital need of developing in step with its rapid progress our military efficiency in this new field, the two weeks' maneuvers will give a great deal of satisfaction and encouragement.

We congratulate the country upon this demonstration, and more especially the war department and the officials and officers directly responsible for army aeronautics.

MR. BUSCH AT WORK.

Corporation Counsel Busch reports that he has virtually completed the reorganization of the city law department, eliminating 48 jobs. He estimates that this will save about $120,000 annually.

This is good news for the people. The pay roll padding in the law department during the late unlamented city hall régime was one of its conspicuous scandals. Though not so costly in dollars, doubtless, as some other methods of waste and graft, it was easier to expose. At the same time, involving individuals belonging to a highly responsible profession and presumably fully aware of the ethical and civic implications of the situation, this form of predatory politics was exceptionally offensive and demoralizing.

Mr. Busch has done something substantial not only for the city but for his profession in this department, a service all citizens, we trust, will note and appreciate.

THERE CAN BE TOO MUCH SCHOOLING.

The agitation to raise the compulsory school age in Illinois from 16 to 18 has aroused the opposition of many educators. They say that the result of the law will be a great increase in the number of children who must somehow be provided for in a school system already overcrowded. More especially, the teachers fear that the number of backward, indifferent and lazy children who delay the progress of the rest will be increased with a consequent lowering of standards.

The educators are right. The fact is that the effort to raise the compulsory school age is based on the assumption that mere presence in school works some magical transformation in the individual, assuring him a happier and more prosperous future. The assumption is as silly as is the superstition which leads some children to place their textbooks under their pillows just before examination time in the belief that the contents of the books will seep into the mind during sleep.

A good many boys of 14 and 15 are anxious to quit school, and the instinct of many of them is sound. They know that they are somehow unable to derive much from books and schoolroom instruction and they also know that, in the trades and businesses which they intend to take up, the sooner they start the sooner they will be able to establish their independence. Boys who are going to enter the professions must have much formal schooling, but it is wasted on thousands of others. They have no more use for botany and algebra than for the calculus, and no one knows it better than the children themselves. They and their parents want them to get started in life, and the law which interferes is a bad law.

Editorial of the Day

THE OTHER SIDE.

[New York World-Telegram.]

The people of the United States have lost much more than the fellowship of two worthy persons by the United States Supreme court's decision barring Prof. Douglas C. Macintosh of Yale Divinity school and Marie Averill Bland, war nurse, from citizenship.

The extent of the loss will not be apparent at once. But it is already apparent that five members of the court, over the protest of the other four, have given a decision which opens the way for executive usurpation of legislative power, and which, in effect, imposes a religious test as a qualification for citizenship.

Dr. Macintosh and Miss Bland refused to promise unqualifiedly to bear arms for this country in time of war. Their religion forbade.

They have been barred from citizenship, not by a requirement of the naturalization law, but by an interpretation written in by the department of labor and sustained now by the courts—in spite of the warning from Chief Justice Hughes that this is dangerous ground.

"Departmental zeal may not be allowed to outrun the authority conferred by statute," said Mr. Hughes in his dissent, with which Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone concurred.

"That the general words [of the law] have not been regarded as implying a promise to bear arms notwithstanding religious conscientious scruples, or as requiring one to promise to put temporal power above what is sincerely believed to be one's duty to God, is apparent, I think, from a consideration of their histories. . . . It was not the intention of congress in framing the oath to impose a religious test," said the chief justice.

The reason and justice of these words did not impress the majority of the court. Their decision may affect far more than naturalization laws if it is widely applied.

METHOD OF SKIN TESTING

R. F. R. SCHMIDT gives a simple method of testing the skin to discover whether a given skin disease is the result of exposure to some substance in the course of work. It is known as the Jadassohn. The method of using it is as follows: Some of the substances suspected of causing the eruption is secured.

A normal skin area is selected, one entirely free from any kind of an eruption. An area of such skin, two or three inches square, is washed clean with soap and warm water, followed by washing with alcohol, if that is available. Some of the substance to be tested is made into a solution, an ointment, or a powder, according as is most convenient. A piece of clean cloth one inch square is soaked in this solution, greased with this ointment, or dusted with this powder. This is then applied to the patch of freshly cleaned skin.

Over it is placed a piece of rubber dam, and the whole is held in position by adhesive. At the end of twenty-four or forty-eight hours the dressing is removed. If the substance tested is the cause of the skin trouble the tested inch of skin will be blistered or, at least, it will be very red. Should there be no evidence of inflammation, blistering, or considerable irritation, tests should be made with other suspected causes. No such tests should be made with violent skin irritants such as croton oil, mustard, cantharides, turpentine, poison ivy, or strong liniments.

Among the more frequent causes of occupational dermatitis are soap, flour, face powder, dyes, bicarbonate of soda, insect powders, pyrethrum, nickel, white gold, orris root, zinc oxide, rock salt, sugar, chemicals used in photography, pigments used in rotogravure, antiseptics, sawdust, and other dusts.

There are poisons that act on the skin immediately. Among these are croton oil, mustard, and so-called mustard gas. These do little harm, as a rule, because the sufferer recognizes at once the cause of the trouble and thereafter he avoids it.

The more important substances are those which cause the skin to be sensitised. The skin trouble they result in is kin to hay fever, asthma, and migraine. The cause operates so slowly and, for a time, so mildly, that it often goes unsuspected for a long time and when it comes under suspicion the proof is not easy to get. After sensitivity has been set up even minute traces of the poison or very trivial exposures are liable to set the skin on fire.

CRAMPS IN AGED LEGS.

F. B. writes: What causes cramps in the lower limbs of elderly persons? I am 65 years old, and suffer occasionally from it. While I know you can't prescribe for the trouble, I would like to be enlightened on the consequences and whether there is a cure.

REPLY.

The best and simple preventive is to keep the body, and especially the feet and legs, warm. This is done by sleeping in warm stockings and warm pajamas, by using plenty of blankets, and sometimes it is advisable to put a warm bottle to the feet. Eating a light supper and having a bowel movement before going to bed helps. While the symptom is very annoying, it rarely means anything serious.

TAKING EGG YOLKS.

Reader writes:

1. Is egg yolk good to take in water or in milk?
2. Is before and after meals better?
3. Is it harmful for a nervous person to take?

REPLY.

1. They are good either way. Egg yolk is rich in protein, fats, minerals, and vitamins.
2. All right to take either before or with meals.
3. No.

MAY BE FUNGUS GROWTH.

N. L. D. writes: The toe nail of my large left toe is turning yellow. It doesn't hurt, but I would like to know what the cause is.

REPLY.

It is thought that infection with some mild fungus causes most of such cases.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL.

Brookfield, Ill., May 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it necessary for a 16 year old girl to attend continuation school until she is 17, when she has already graduated from a two year course at high school? A. A.

You would be subject to the continuation school law if you were residing in Chicago. We are not informed as to whether your community has elected to come under the law. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Chicago, May 25.—[Friend of the People.]—In the rear of my property on 74th place is an old shed that at one time was used as a garage. This is a fire hazard, as it contains a lot of old oil cans and cans that have contained paint. At one time the shed was larger, but half of it burned down. The other half remained standing, but is propped up by two iron pipes that are resting against my fence. W. J. M.

An inspection was made of the one story frame building complained of.

Our inspector reports that this shed is unsightly but that it is in good condition and not dangerous.

MICHAEL S. BRENNAN,
Acting Commissioner of Buildings.

BUYS STOLEN CAR.

Chicago, May 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a stolen car about three weeks ago. After working on it for two weeks I practically rebuilt the car. Then some mechanic who had worked on it before notified the true owner. I turned the car over to the party with the understanding that he would do the right thing about the repairs. The insurance company will not pay a claim on repairs, as he abandoned the car and also failed to report the car as stolen. Now this owner refuses to pay a cent either for my parts or labor until I produce the man who sold me the car. This I can't do. The actual cost of the parts is $16. 1. Haven't I a right to my parts? 2. If so how can I proceed to get them? 3. I know I have no claim on the car or labor as I bought a stolen car and he did not authorize me to repair it, but would appreciate your views. R. W. L.

1. No.
2. We can suggest no legal remedy.
3. See preceding answers.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HEY, AUTO! WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOUR ENGINE?

Automobile, there's something wrong with your engine. Whether it's the depression, or the excitement of the gasoline war, or the cheap gas you get nowadays, or whatever it is, you've got to remember how brave George Washington's soldiers were at Valley Forge and control yourself. For some strange reason, auto, that engine of yours ups and dies nowadays on the least provocation or no provocation at all. And then all the horns honk behind us, the other drivers swear horribly, and the traffic cop says, "Oh, go on! Go on! Are you anchored or just tied to the dock?"

These are indeed times of stress, automobile, but that's no reason why your engine should act like that. What's the matter with that engine anyhow? Has it got a hobnailed liver or a weak heart, or what? Just yesterday we passed a service station in Indiana with the sign out, "Gas 8 cents." Right away that engine gave a groan and died. The more the gas war rages the oftener it dies. If gas ever gets to 4 cents we're afraid that engine will die so thoroughly we'll have to bury it.

Listen, automobile! You've got to be brave like the boys at Valley Forge. Suppose they had got a pain in their engine and flopped over and died every time the red light went on? Where would this country have been? Huh? You used to go along so nice and smooth that we felt we couldn't kill your engine with an ax.

But now, look at you! What would George Washington have done, automobile, if he had driven out in you to fight the British? At the first red coat you not only would have stopped, your darned old engine would have died, and where would the revolutionary war and the country and George and everybody have been then?

Spunk up, automobile! Make your engine quit dying on our hands every time anybody gives it a dirty look. Remember Valley Forge! Tell your dinged old engine to remember Valley Forge! Remember George Washington! Remember the Maine! Remember the Alamo! Remember any darn thing at all just so you keep going!

THE LILAC HEDGE.

"Lovely, too lovely!" you whispered in my dream,
and so it was, too lovely to remain,
as the lush lilacs brimmed with evening rain.

In the morning sun we bravely said,
"Love will live on and follow us to death."
Oh heart, you only wasted so much breath,

Bravely, I said. Of courage we had need who stood in the glare of day and made our pledge, not hearing the noise of death in the lilac hedge.

JEANNE DE LAMARTER.

Quick, Authors, Poets, Take the Next Boat for Spain.

Strange news has come of late out of Spain, but the strangest is that a Spanish author has been robbed of seventeen thousand bucks. The rumor in the afternoon papers that a Chicago police captain had managed to scrape together five hundred thousand dollars out of his salary in a few years didn't give us half the kick as the story of the Spanish author who was worth seventeen thousand. We wouldn't be surprised at all if a police captain could get together five hundred thousand berries, but for an author to have seventeen thousand dollars all at one time! It's amasing, simply amasing!

WHO STARTED this "minded" thing anyhow? Now, the butchers have started a crusade to make us "sausage minded." Go to it, butchers, we'll trail. Whenever anything like that starts we all fall in and go right along like a flock of sheep. Hurry up, let's all get sausage minded and have it over with. Then what minded do we do next?

Yes, Indeedy; Candy, Cigarets, Babies, Sugar Daddies, 'n' Everything.

Dear Sir: I am up to date country boy and got chickens. Pretty soon I will be in high school when I get over the long division. My chickens lay lots of eggs because I read chicken books and use the best methods I know how. I feed my chickens ground oyster shells to give egg shell fine extra texture. But Red McGuire, the fisherman who comes to whip our carpet, told me oyster shells was old-fashioned and if I didn't shake a leg I couldn't sell any eggs any more. He says I got to feed my chickens isinglass, because from what he reads and hears nowadays most everything comes wrapped in cellophane.

BUT.

She had a good vocabulary,
But overworked one word, so very,
Very much. One thought, "Tut! Tut!
Wish she'd never heard of 'but.'"
She'd say, "Yes, it's lovely weather,
But—it can't last." Ask her whether
She liked some one's brand new hat,
She say "Gorgeous! But—too flat!"
She's a nice girl, but—no beauty.
He's good looking, but—so snooty!
Yes, they're happy, but—no money.
That joke's new, but—not so funny!
Friends, acquaintances, relations,
Were served "but" for constant rations.
Did no good to crab about it.
She just couldn't do without it!
The hereafter holds no terrors
For her. She'll point out its errors!
She will say, "This place is swell.
Nicely heated. But—IT'S HELL!"

JUST AS WE THOUGHT we were getting back to normalcy because another man had gone over Niagara Falls in a barrel, we turned to the financial news yesterday and found our pet stock had also gone over some kind of falls in a barrel. Oh, did it do the falls! And how! And it's falling yet. R. H. L.

AFRAID TO APPLY THE PRESSURE

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 2, 1915.

WASHINGTON.—The United States will enter into no discussion of the sinking of the Lusitania unless Germany promises to observe henceforth the rules of warfare on merchant vessels laid down by international law. This was the principal decision reached by President Wilson and his cabinet. This prerequisite of further correspondence between the two governments concerning the killing of Americans and attacks upon American ships in the submarine war zone will be the outstanding feature of the rejoinder which the President will dispatch to the German reply to his Lusitania note.

LONDON.—As a result of the Zeppelin air raid on London last night, when 90 bombs were dropped, killing four persons and starting fires throughout the city, mobs paraded the streets and attacked German shops.

CHICAGO.—Miss Eleanor Hamill and Kent S. Clow were married at Ballyatwood, the country estate of the Ernest A. Hamills at Lake Forest.

CHICAGO.—Before Aug. 1 the Chicago avenue street car line will run as far east as the Lake Shore drive. The city council last night passed the ordinance for the extension.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 2, 1901.

NEW YORK.—The United States is to have an institution for medical research similar to the famous Pasteur institute of Paris and the Koch institute of Berlin. John D. Rockefeller has provided $200,000 for preliminary work on the project and is expected to endow it with at least $1,000,000. It will be located in this city, with branches in every large city of the country. It is to be called "the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research," and has been incorporated.

CHICAGO.—The Union Trust Company bank, which for the last 23 years has transacted its business at the northeast corner of Madison and Dearborn streets, will be a tenant of The Tribune building after May 1, 1902. It will have the northern half of the second floor of the new building, with a frontage of 118 feet on Madison street and 53 feet on Dearborn.

CHICAGO.—Dr. E. M. Stires is at work to assure the financial future of Grace Episcopal church before he leaves Chicago to become rector of St. Thomas' church in New York. He is trying to raise by life insurance an endowment fund of $400,000 for the church of which he has been the head. He has begun the work by having his own life insured for $100,000 for the benefit of the parish.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Nancy B. Irving, a book publisher, has started out to emulate Diogenes in his search for an honest man. She offers to pay $1,000 to the first business or professional man who can prove he has carried on his work for a month without lying. She holds that every man is obliged to play the part of a respectable liar and thief to succeed in business.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 2, 1881.

LONDON.—The 102d race for the great Derby stakes was run at Epsom today. An immense crowd witnessed the classic. The race was won by an American horse, Pierre Lorillard's Iroquois, ridden by Jockey Fred Archer. It is stated that Lorillard wins $2,000,000 by the victory.

BERLIN.—The farewell banquet to United States Minister White at the Kaiserhof was the greatest possible success. Mr. White was seated between Gen. von Kamecke, minister of war, and Prof. Gneist. Nearly all the celebrities of Berlin politics, science and art were present.

LONDON.—Ireland is in a state rapidly approaching insurrection. Evictions are desperately resisted wherever attempted. The rioting which was commenced on May 31 at Clonmel and resulted in two policemen and a soldier being mortally wounded was renewed. At an eviction riot in County Clare three policemen were killed. In Kilkenny hotel and carriage owners refused to accommodate the police in any way.

FROM MR. REYNOLDS.

Chicago, May 25.—I want to congratulate THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE upon its editorial in Sunday morning's TRIBUNE entitled "What American Business Needs Today Is Faith in Itself."

I am fully in accord with what you say therein, and believe that articles of this character from influential sources are bound to do much good.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS,

TAX REFORM.

Chicago, May 26.—The depressed condition of real estate in Chicago will continue to exist and there can be no improvement of any kind until there is a sharp reduction in taxes and a permanent tax charge set on all real estate for future years. A plan similar to the California plan could be worked more accurately and would cost about one-fourth of your present cost of taxation.

All improved real estate is to be taxed 1 per cent of its cash value. For instance, a $10,000 home would be taxed $100 and all vacant property would be taxed ½ of 1 per cent of its cash value. For instance, a $10,000 dollar vacant lot would be taxed $50. This method of taxation would immediately relieve the unemployment situation by reviving the building industry and thousands of people would be willing to invest in homes if they knew from year to year that their property could not be taxed more than 1 per cent of its cash value. The additional revenue necessary to run the government could be raised from other sources, such as income tax, sales tax, luxury tax.

No matter what arguments may be raised against this 1 per cent system of taxation, these facts cannot be denied: First, it would eliminate the burden now resting on the shoulders of the small home owner; second, it would create a real estate market; third, it would immediately relieve unemployment by reviving the building industry.

JOHN J. MANGAN.

BUT WHO IS THE GREATEST BORE!

Chicago, May 27.—I venture, with due respect to other people's opinions, to name the greatest minds of today. The ten greatest thinkers of today are: H. L. Mencken, Bertrand Russell, Clarence Darrow, Oswald Spengler, John Dewey, George Bernard Shaw, Havelock Ellis, Rabindranath Tagore, Aldous Huxley and George Santayana.

The greatest living novelists are Theodore Dreiser, Sherwood Anderson, Maxim Gorki, Knut Hamsun, W. Somerset Maugham, Upton Sinclair, H. G. Wells, Ben Hecht, Sinclair Lewis, and Thomas Mann?

The greatest modern poets are Carl Sandburg and Edgar Lee Masters, both Chicagoans.

The greatest dramatists are Maurice Maeterlink, Eugene O'Neill, and Channing Pollock. Emil Ludwig is the greatest living biographer, while George Jean Nathan, Frank Harris and Ludwig Lewisohn are the greatest critics.

Einstein is the greatest scientist, Thomas Edison the greatest inventor, and Mussolini the political genius.

The greatest living musicians are Paderewski, Rachmaninoff and Kreisler. The greatest humanists are Mahatma Gandhi, Jane Addams and Elsie Robinson. As a psychologist, Freud is without a peer. STAN LEE KAFUSTKA.

THE POLISH CORRIDOR.

Chicago, May 25.—I was surprised at the one sided attitude of your correspondent, Miss Schultz, in reference to the Polish corridor.

Let us look at facts. The corridor has always been a predominantly Slavonic country. It was incorporated into the kingdom of Poland at the beginning of the eleventh century by the Polish king, Boleslas I. For centuries thereafter it was either an integral part of Poland or was ruled over by its own sovereign princes of Slavonic blood, who resided at Danzig. In 1308 the Teutonic order took possession of the province and ruled over it for many years—until 1456—when it once more became a part of Poland, which thus recovered her access to the sea.

This state of things continued without interruption until 1772, when the king of Prussia, Frederick II., having with Austria and Russia completed the first partition of Poland, took possession of Pomorze and annexed it to Prussia.

It was not until 1920 that, by the treaty of Versailles, a part of Pomorze was given back to Poland. The territory allotted to Poland by the Versailles treaty does not represent two-thirds of the ancient province of Polish Pomerania.

From the ethnical point of view, the population of Pomorze is basically Polish. This is proved even by the very name of the province, and of its villages, cities, rivers, etc., which are practically all of Polish origin. The folklore of the province is also entirely Polish; there is no German folklore connected with this region. Moreover, the last pre-war German census, taken by Germany in 1910, gives the number of Poles in the province of West Prussia, which included the corridor, as 605,513. The parties of West Prussia which constituted what is now the corridor showed a predominantly Polish population, and German publications admit that it was 42.5 per cent German—and therefore 57.5 per cent Polish—at that time. After the war the percentage increased, and now the Poles represent 90 per cent of the total population of the corridor.

In the light of the above facts, there can be no such thing as turning over a Polish territory to Germany. Moreover, the handing of Polish Pomorze to Germany would in no way settle the problem of the so-called corridor. It would only create a new problem—that of its return. STANLEY DEBOWSKI.

BIRDS ON A HAT.

Chicago, May 23.—Walking down Michigan boulevard I have just noticed in the window of a fine clothing store a hat to which are attached two little dead birds. I thought we had outgrown forever this particular form of barbarism. If women want to return to the discomforts of the trailing skirts and overtight clothes of twenty years ago, well and good—the joke is only on us. But let us not sacrifice to our folly these helpless creatures of the woods who can be far better friends to us by ridding trees and crops of injurious insects than they can by adorning our hats, where they only make us look ridiculous and cruel. RUTH SHERWOOD.

SNAPPY UNIFORMS.

Chicago, May 26.—Just a line to express my praise and commendation upon the fine appearance our Lincoln park police made last Friday in their new spring uniforms. Whoever designed those uniforms certainly deserves a medal. They're the best I've ever seen. JOHN E. O'DONNELL.

DENY RECORDS REVEAL PLOT TO POISON WILSON

U.S. Officials See No Such Message from Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.] — Revelations made by Maj. Herbert O. Yardley, code expert, in his book, "America's Black Chamber," together with other articles of a similar nature written recently by the former army officer have been under investigation by the war department for several days.

This became known today when publication of the book drew world-wide attention to an assertion by Maj. Yardley that he had decoded a message disclosing an alleged plot by the allied powers to kill Woodrow Wilson by means of a slow poison while the wartime President was attending the Paris peace conference.

Many Threatening Letters.

War department officials said today that a diligent search of official files failed to disclose any message from Yardley to the department which would substantiate the account carried in his book recounting the activities of the American decoding office, referred to as the "black chamber." While many letters threatening danger to President Wilson were received by those protecting him during the war and immediately afterward, war department officials said there was nothing in the files indicating an attempt by the allies to assassinate Wilson.

Department officials declined to throw any material light on other disclosures of the activities of the "black chamber," as related by Maj. Yardley. These included the assertion that during the 1921 arms conference at Washington the secret coded messages sent home by the foreign powers attending the parley had been decoded by the "black chamber" group and American translations placed on the breakfast tables of the American delegation.

Deny Hearing of Decoding.

At the state department officials said that no one there ever had heard of any move to decode the secret telegrams sent home by the visiting foreign delegations attending the 1921 arms parley. In behalf of Secretary Stimson, who did not come to the department during the day, it was said that he had never heard of such an espionage plan as referred to by Maj. Yardley.

Maj. Yardley was in charge of the secret American cryptographic bureau during the war. In recent months he has published several articles relating his experiences as a coding expert during the war. As soon as these began to appear the war department conducted an investigation to ascertain their authenticity.

Organized During War.

Department officials said today that the military intelligence unit does not engage in espionage work in this country except where the army is directly concerned.

The "black chamber" was organized during the war and used for decoding intercepted messages from the central powers. Maj. Yardley was commissioned for his efforts and served with the war department until about two months ago.

FRENCH COLONIAL EXPOSITION INFLUENCES FALL FASHION TRENDS

This is the official poster for the French Colonial Exhibit now going on just outside Paris. We might also call it the official color card for Fall 1931 fashion—so greatly are the primitive colonial colors influencing the great creators of fashion in Paris.

Rose reds, warm browns, yellow greens, rich hennas and an abundance of white are some of the colors. You can see these official posters, paintings of colonial buildings and some of the striking new fashions ...in our State Street windows all this week.

BUYER OF RUM NEED NOT TELL ON BOOTLEGGER

Michigan High Court Frees Man of Contempt.

Lansing, Mich., June 1.—[Special.]—Judge E. J. Millington of Recorders' court, Cadillac, had no legal right to keep Frank Harrand, Wexford county farmer, in jail until he told where he purchased liquor upon which he became intoxicated, the state Supreme court held in an opinion disclosed today.

Harrand was freed after more than a month's incarceration on order of the court when it agreed to review his case which had been appealed by a group of Cadillac business men. Judge Millington had ordered Harrand's indefinite imprisonment on a contempt charge because he refused to reveal where he got his liquor.

Status of Witness.

The opinion just written by Justice Louis Fead dismisses the contempt citation against Harrand, setting forth the principle that "a person cannot be required to give evidence under the shadow of a policeman's club or a sentence to jail."

Harrand, the Supreme court finds, was occupying the position of a witness from whom the court was attempting to force evidence of an incriminating character.

Misconstrue the Law.

The law relative to testimony cannot be so framed as to force a witness to incriminate himself for it is clearly unconstitutional, the opinion states. The statute, however, under which Judge Millington claimed the right to imprison Harrand was upheld, the court merely finding that its terms had been misinterpreted in such a way as to make it appear unconstitutional.

Millington had announced he would pursue similar tactics in other cases arising, but the Supreme court's opinion will halt such procedure on his part or that of other magistrates throughout the state, some of whom were said to be awaiting the opinion before emulating Millington.

ACTING GOVERNOR PARDONS BROTHER IN LARCENY CASE

Little Rock, Ark., June 1.—(AP)—Acting Gov. Lawrence Wilson today granted a full pardon to his brother, Fred Wilson, who was convicted on four counts of grand larceny in Union county last March.

The jury fixed prison sentences of one year on each of the four charges. Wilson, however, had not been sentenced formally.

The lieutenant governor is acting as chief executive in the absence of Gov. Parnell, who is attending the governors' conference at French Lick Springs, Ind.

He told newspaper men he had "no apologies to offer." He said he issued the pardon largely on account of his grief stricken mother.

FIND DAGGER ON CROWLEY; MADE OF PRISON SPOON

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Francis [Two Gun] Crowley, condemned today to die during the week of July 5 for the murder of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch of Nassau county, carried an improvised weapon with him this afternoon when he entered the death house at Sing Sing. It was the short handle of an ordinary spoon.

Crowley had broken off the bowl and had ground the point sharp, presumably against the steel walls of the concrete floor of the cell in the Mineola county jail, where he was lodged during his trial.

This is the second time that Crowley has used his stocking as a hiding place for weapons. When captured by the police and taken to Bellevue because of wounds, an automatic pistol was found in each trouser leg. The crude weapon discovered today, it was believed, had been intended as a possible means of suicide.

MORE JOBS FILLED, FEWER APPLICANTS AT STATE OFFICE

An increase in jobs filled and a decrease in the number of applicants over the previous week is shown in figures released yesterday by John Keane, general superintendent of the Illinois free employment office.

Jobs filled totaled 885 and applicants totaled 2,322 for the week ending May 30, as compared with 844 jobs and 2,595 applicants for the previous week. During the same period a year ago 712 jobs were filled and there were 1,711 applicants.

Billy Sunday's Divorced Son to Wed Woman in Case

San Francisco, Cal., June 1.—(AP)—Another chapter in the marital career of George Marquis Sunday, son of Billy Sunday, the evangelist, was written here today when he and Mauryne Reichard, Los Angeles, filed notice of intention to marry. Sunday was divorced by Mrs. Harriet Sunday in 1929, who filed adultery complaints against her husband and Mrs. Mauryne La Salle, Hollywood mannequin.

EGYPTIANS VOTE AT POINT OF GUN; FOES CRY 'FRAUD'

Opposition Charges King "Packed" Electors.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, June 1.—With the police and army mobilized from the Sudan to the Delta, the second lever in the new Egyptian election machinery was thrown into action today and there was no doubt at all that tomorrow Sidky Pasha, head of the Egyptian government for the last ten months and approved by King Faud, will have a new chamber of deputies of 150 members selected and ready to do his bidding.

The police and soldiers, mounted and armed to the teeth, patrolled Cairo, Alexandria, and other centers where voting was taking place, while plain clothes men mingled with the people in all possible centers of unrest, ready to give the signal at any attempt of th Wafd, or Liberal party, to stage a demonstration.

Voting Goes Off Quietly.

Under these circumstances today's polling went off quietly, although there was a fracas last night in a district near Cairo. Police reserves were called out to disperse the crowd of Wafd demonstrators.

In some places of upper Egypt today Wafd adherents put nails and tacks on the roads to keep the elector delegates from getting to the voting places by automobile. Several telegraph wires were cut, but these were quickly repaired.

Sidky Pasha issued a communique tonight announcing that the elections had proceeded in an orderly manner and that the people of Egypt had decided for his new constitution and a chamber which will proceed to negotiate a treaty with England and bring Egypt back to normalcy.

Judging from the presence of mounted troops and squads of soldiers around the station to keep the Wafd leaders from leaving Cairo to agitate in the country, it seems that the government had been expecting some tough outbreaks to handle. Tonight, however, the city is settling down to the struggle against the summer heat. Stolid Egyptians in turbans and tarboosh are swarming in the cafes without any great amount of animation.

If Sidky Pasha and King Fuad think that things went so smoothly today and that everything is set for a quiet period of administration when the new chamber meets on June 21, Nahas Pasha, president of the Wafd, and his followers, do not agree with them.

Charge Fraud in Elections.

To begin with, they assert that today's elections and those which preceded them were a farce and were staged and won by fraud and trickery. They claim that the police and soldiers dragged the electors to the polls two weeks ago and that the delegates they chose at that time, who in turn cast their votes today for 150 deputies out of 273 candidates, were all mayors of towns and government officials personally interested in the support of Sidky Pasha.

The Wafd claims that 90 per cent of Egypt's 2,000,000 electorate is Wafd and that the Peoples' party and the Union party—the two parties which back Sidky Pasha—are only a drop in the bucket and, therefore, the newly elected chamber cannot represent the people.

Expect No Violence.

Observers tonight believe that despites the overwhelming public opinion in favor of the Wafd, there will be no violence or outbreaks following today's voting.

Today's elections are the outcome of Egypt's new constitution and electoral law, which were proclaimed last fall by Sidky Pasha without consulting the people.

Under the terms of that law, elections for the chamber of deputies are held in what is called the "second degree." That is, the whole electorate voted two weeks ago, or were supposed to vote, for about 200,000 delegates, who in turn met today and chose the deputies.

Although Sidky Pasha claims that sixty per cent of the electors turned out, the Wafd declares that not more than 15 per cent voted because the Wafd declared a boycot on the elections and on election day everyone locked up shop or hid himself in the fields where it was hard for the police to find him.

LIONS' FOUNDER WILL BE GUEST TODAY AT 14TH BIRTHDAY FETE

Melvin Jones of Flossmoor, founder and secretary general of Lions' International, will be the guest of honor today at the La Salle hotel of the Central Lions club on the 14th anniversary of the founding of the organization. The central club was founded by Mr. Jones at the La Salle hotel in 1917, and has since grown into an international order with 2,530 clubs distributed all over the world and embracing a membership of approximately 100,000. Mayor Cermak will be one of the principal speakers.

SHOW STRESSES FURNITURE OF PROVINCIAL ERA

Eleven Hundred Buyers Attend Opening.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

It used to be a simple matter for a housewife to pick out a houseful of furniture. It was either golden oak or it wasn't But now, she enters a state of quandary the minute she thinks of buying a single article to add to her living room—unless she has done considerable investigation of trends in styles, colors, and all the rest of the preachings of the interior decorator.

Latest Styles Displayed.

This fall it is going to be a pleasure to fit out a home, because period furniture is on the upward trend, according to the exhibits placed on view yesterday at the Furniture mart for the semi-annual style, and one can't go wrong on period furniture. Fifteen hundred and forty buyers from all over the country were on hand bright and early to have a look at the latest styles displayed by 700 manufacturers. Last year the show was attended by 1,634 buyers. They show will continue to June 13.

Right at the top of the popularity rating, it is apparent from the colorful array of sofas, easy chairs, and massive oak and American walnut, is the provincial furniture of different countries, French and Scandinavian and Empire. And of course Early American, several furniture authorities say, is here to stay.

"If a period is true to a type it is beautiful and will never go out of style. A period is a standard," declared Ross Crane, who led the first furniture clinic ever to be held for the visiting buyers.

"French provincial is especially prominent this year in the living room, dining room and bedroom. Early English is also becoming of increasing importance, and is sturdy, substantial, and well balanced in the way of ornamentation. It is being shown in oak and walnut combination and solid oak."

It is perfectly proper to have several different periods of the same century in the same room, Mr. Ross declared. He described a well balanced room whose charm depended upon a Chippendale sofa, Pembroke table, Louis XV. foot stool, Louis XVI. chair, Queen Anne tilt top table, Adam commode, and two Heppelwhite chairs. And to this room there could have been added a Duncan Phyffe table without playing havoc with harmony, he added.

Blue Is Popular.

There is a color trend toward the addition of blue to the greens, reds, yellows and violets now prevelant. Blue, always a popular color with a housewife, may be used even on the north and east exposures if it is combined with a warm color such as a butter yellow.

As for woods, oak appears to be making gains, despite the popularity of walnut. Maple is losing ground. Mahogany, it is indicated, will be seen more and more in occasional pieces such as tables, desks and secretaries.

CONSIDER WINDMILL, AIRPLANES TO ROOF OF N. Y. POSTOFFICE

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Windmill airplanes to bring air mail directly to the roof of the central post office in Manhattan are being seriously considered by the postoffice department.

A sort of shuttle service is contemplated; a plane to bring the mail from the Newark airport and either land it on the roof or transfer it down by ropes as the plane hovers in the air above the building.

Plans for a demonstration of the plane are being formulated by Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, in charge of air mail.

"The Old Order Changeth, yielding place to new"

Compare the "pile-on" football of the 90's with the modern scientific game—and compare noisy mechanical refrigeration with Electrolux.

Machinery now outmoded by Electrolux—an automatic refrigerator that makes no sound, and hasn't a single moving part

ELECTROLUX is as far ahead of other automatic refrigerators as they were ahead of the old-time icebox.

The simplicity of this newest marvel is absolutely startling. There's no sound, no vibration, no wear—not a single moving part. A tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water take the place of all machinery. They circulate the refrigerant that produces the cold and freezes ice cubes. The refrigerant itself is ordinary ammonia, little stronger than household ammonia. The gas flame is completely protected by an automatic shutoff.

The chilling process in Electrolux is different from that of any other automatic refrigerator. It doesn't alternately stop and start, but goes on continuously. Therefore, the cold remains constant, steady.

Because Electrolux works this unique way, it is absolutely silent, and costs only a few cents a day to use. No other automatic refrigerator can claim absolute silence. No other costs so little to operate.

The installation of this refrigerator is easy. Connections for gas and water are through concealed flexible copper tubing and are quickly made for you by your gas company.

And it will pay you to note this—should your Electrolux ever need adjustment, you get the prompt, efficient kind of service for which your gas company is famous.

The many advantages of this refrigerator have made it the choice of prominent architects and builders the country over—have put it into more than 150,000 fine private homes and apartments up to now.

You should investigate Electrolux before deciding upon any automatic refrigerator. Comes in 10 household models, ranging from 3 cu. ft. to 20 cu. ft. capacity. Despite the unique advantages of Electrolux, its prices are no higher. Visit the nearest display room of your gas company. For complete information by mail, write us or phone Wabash 6000.

ELECTROLUX
THE Gas REFRIGERATOR

THE KITCHENETTE—a roomy, beautiful Electrolux model—extremely popular for families of 2 to 6 persons.

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts.

COSTS LESS TO OPERATE

Electrolux is the world's most economical refrigerator. It operates for only a few cents a day—less than the cost of any other means of refrigeration.

AVIATOR NAMED IN DIVORCE SUES RICH ACCUSER

Corbett on Trial, Accused of Assault.

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—After delays of more than a year James M. Corbett, Boston real estate dealer and sportsman, went to trial in Bronx County court today on a charge of second degree assault on James Quinn, aviator.

The charge grew out of a divorce suit filed by Corbett early in 1930, naming Quinn, who had been his private pilot, as co-respondent. Quinn charged that Corbett hired Arthur Hamel, 29, Haverhill, Mass., Edward Kendall, 28, North Reading, Mass., and Edward Kline, 27, New York, to kidnap him. He was lured to isolated Edgewater camp, in The Bronx, on April 1, 1930, he charged, on the pretext that an airplane there required repair.

Alleges Triple Attack.

Kline and a third man walked in, Quinn said. The third man had a pistol. Corbett struck him first, Quinn said, and then the man with the gun. After that, he charged, Corbett hit him with a milk bottle, Kline used a heavy cane, and Corbett traded his milk bottle for a pipe.

"Corbett tried to put out my eyes," Quinn charged. "Kline hit me with a plate. Corbett said he would maim me for life and later said, 'You'll never get out of here alive'."

He lost consciousness, and revived to find himself bound, he said.

Co-defendants Plead Guilty.

Before selection of the Corbett jury the three co-defendants pleaded guilty before County Judge James M. Barrett to second degree assault and were remanded to jail pending sentence.

In his address to the jury former Magistrate Michael N. Delagi of the defense counsel admitted that Corbett had hired the camp in the Bronx and arranged for Quinn to go there, ostensibly to repair an airplane. He denied, however, that Quinn was lured there to be beaten up, but Corbett sought to force from Quinn information about Mrs. Corbett's whereabouts.

The defense will try to show that Quinn was hurt in a free for all fight. Quinn was originally hired by Corbett as an aviator to operate one of the real estate man's several planes, which carried prospective customers.

Mrs. Corbett herself flew a plane, having been taught by her husband. A friendship with Quinn resulted.

MAYOR TALKS OF POLICE SHAKEUP ON SOUTH SIDE

Following a conference with Acting Police Commissioner Alcock yesterday, Mayor Cermak indicated to newspaper men that the entire personnel of the police stations in the Negro belt may be changed because of existing conditions.

"The better element among the Negroes have protested against prostitution in their neighborhoods," said the mayor. "Some of the captains apparently have not had the cooperation of their men in cleaning up the districts."

The mayor also stated that business men in the south side Negro district apparently were immune from provisions of the license ordinance under the last administration. He announced that the ordinance will be strictly enforced in the district.

FAMILY SUSPECTS MURDER IN DEATH OF LAKE VICTIM

The body of a girl taken from the lake at 32d street on Saturday was identified at the county morgue yesterday as that of Miss Lena Mangini, 20 years old, 2158 North Claremont avenue.

Miss Mangini left home at 6:30 p. m. on May 14 to go to the vicinity of Lincoln and Belmont avenues, where she was to purchase a dress to wear at the wedding of her brother, John, the following week. It was learned that she had been in two stores, but that she had made no purchases. No further trace of her was found by her relatives until the body was discovered.

The girl's father, Louis Mangini, and other members of the family announced a belief that she had been murdered. She was a stenographer, they said, for William H. Piske & Co., printers, at 2400 North Oakley avenue, and had several hundred dollars in bank. She was apparently happy in a love affair with a young man of whom her parents approved, it was said. The family said there was no reason for her to kill herself. There were no marks of violence on the body except a bruise on the left side of the head, however, and the police believed that she had died by drowning.

REVIVE AUTO GAS VICTIM.

George Harden, 27 years old, of Steubenville, O., who is visiting his brother, Ralph C. Harden of 7731 Yates avenue, was revived by an inhalator squad yesterday after he had been overcome by carbon monoxide gas in his brother's garage.

DIABETES CURBED BY NEW METHOD

Sufferers Report Amazing Relief Through "Kidney Laxative" Discovery

New Way to Eliminate Poison Wastes Increases Sugar Tolerance

"I have been suffering from sugar diabetes for several years," writes Al E. Smith of 8923 Wallace St. "I continued to lose weight, so nervous I could scream, and couldn't sleep much. I had boils and my kidneys were in terrible shape. About three months ago a friend spoke of your 'Sleepy Water.' Almost immediately I got results and began feeling better. My nerves settled, I can sleep, and my eruptions are gone."

Doctors are now prescribing a wonderful natural poison eliminator, known as Sleepy Water. They often describe it as a "kidney laxative." It is to be had from only one source—a pair of twin springs in the Arkansas hills. Peculiar natural forces here inject certain mineral combinations which are not to be found in any other water. These natural alkalines neutralize and absorb the acid poisons and body wastes which so often cause and aggravate diabetes. By gently soothing and activating the kidneys, Sleepy Water also speeds up the elimination of these poisons. Not only diabetes sufferers but victims of rheumatism, high blood pressure, arthritis and 25 other serious common diseases report amazing relief, due to Sleepy Water's unique powers.

Tear out and mail the coupon now for particulars of the wonderful thirty-minute test that will demonstrate to you how Sleepy Water works to drive out poisons and purify blood. WOMEN and CHILDREN FIRST

WHEN great danger threatens women and children, men's protective instincts rise to such heights that no sacrifice is too great to spare them needless suffering. That immutable law of the sea "Women and Children First" is an outstanding example.

Unfortunately no such law prevails when unseen danger threatens—the danger of highly infectious diseases like "Social Diseases" syphilis and gonorrhea. The security of the home affords no safeguard against these devastating enemies of mankind. Leading health authorities declare that every person who has contracted a social disease and is not under medical care is a source of danger to others and particularly to those in their immediate families. Syphilis and gonorrhea are dangerous communicable diseases. No one is immune from infection, for any physical contact with infected material may transmit the disease. Many women and children have been subjected to lives of suffering through no fault of their own. The safety of others, especially dear ones, should be the first concern of all persons afflicted with a social disease. It is their duty to provide this protection for others as well as for themselves by seeking experienced medical care without delay. A competent doctor, if given the opportunity, can prevent danger to others as well as serious consequences to infected individuals. With proper treatment he can stop the progress of the disease before it causes irreparable damage to the eyes, brain, heart, muscles and nerves. For, notwithstanding a general misconception to the contrary, syphilis is curable by reliable and timely medical care. And gonorrhea is far more serious than the average uninformed person suspects and requires expert medical attention to effect a cure and prevent serious results.

Regardless of what you have heard about these diseases do not take chances with your health, or expose others to danger. If in doubt, know definitely whether you have a social disease. This is possible only through a scientifically correct diagnosis by a reliable and experienced physician.

Good medical treatment for either gonorrhea or syphilis, including Wassermann and Kahn blood and other necessary laboratory tests, can be secured within your means from an experienced family physician, or from the Public Health Institute. Treatment also is available through many free clinics for those without funds.

The Public Health Institute was organized more than ten years ago to combat "social diseases" (syphilis and gonorrhea) in Chicago. Every facility necessary for competent and reliable medical service is provided. Members of its medical staff are experienced and are registered by the State. All treatment and advice are given by these men and women physicians.

The fees are within the reach of all. The first examination is only $3.00 and includes Wassermann and Kahn blood and other laboratory tests. Six consecutive treatments in the Urological or Gynecological Department for $4.00. Examination and treatment are available to those without immediate funds.

More details of this subject will be found in Leaflets Nos. 1 and 2, sent free in plain envelope on request.

Announcement* . . . This advertisement has been submitted to and been approved by the Medical Advisory Board which has been formed at the invitation of the Trustees. It is published by a health agency established for public service to inform the public of the dangers of "social diseases," of the importance of securing good medical care, and the facilities whereby this can be obtained.

AUTO CLUBS GET NATIONAL CODE OF ROAD BEAUTY

Would Handle Billboards, Hot Dog Stands.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Baden, Ind., June 1.—[Special.]—The demands from the motoring public for roadside beautification and sanitation—entirely ignored by the current session of Illinois legislature—were discussed here today by Frank H. Gates of Connecticut, chairman of the American Automobile association's legislative committee, which has just completed a year's study of the subject. The association opened its annual convention here this morning.

As a national code, to be advocated by 1,000 motor clubs with a million members affiliated with the A. A. A., Mr. Gates proposes three acts for adoption by state legislatures: First, the creation and financing of a state landscaping architect to direct planting on the rights of way; second, a law regulating billboards as a safety measure if not as a measure to restrict the commerical signs for aesthetic reasons; and third, the inspection and supervision of sanitary conditions at barbecue stands and other roadside caterers.

U. S. Will Assist.

"Since the country is pretty well out of the mud," he said, "the time has clearly come when the road landscape architect should work hand in hand with the road engineer and the road contractor. The United States government is already committed under the law to defray part of the cost of planting and landscaping on federal aid highways, provided the state makes this work an integral part of its highway program.

"Roadside catering has assumed tremendous proportions—but only a few states have made any effort to formulate standards of sanitation for the protection of some forty million motor tourists who use our highways in the course of a year.

"In order to avoid discrimination against any one business, it is necessary to treat roadside commerce as a unit. The bill board is only one phase of the problem. We cannot overlook the automobile junk yard, the ramshackle hot dog stand, the lean-to filling station, or the unsightly farm market stand.

Courts Changing Attitude.

"It has been contended that the state under its police power, cannot enact laws, zoning or otherwise, on the basis of aesthetic considerations. However, the courts are more and more inclined to view the excercise of state power from the standpoint of public welfare in general.

"Because of this, there is every reason to believe that the courts would uphold the right of the states to create different zones along our highways and to say what commerce, if any, could be conducted within these zones."

BANK ROBBERY PLOT LEADER SENTENCED TO 25 TO 40 YEARS

Pontiac, Mich., June 1.—[Special.]—Twenty-five to forty years in prison was the sentence imposed today on Gerald F. Grandon, master mind of the plot that resulted in the holdup of the Pontiac Commercial and Savings bank by Adam Morgu, Pontiac, and Louis Kish, Detroit, ten days ago. The two latter were given prison terms of from 20 to 40 years each.

"You are ten years older than your accomplices in crime," Judge Doty told Grandon. "I am satisfied that you were the guiding mind. You held a position of trust in a bank. You betrayed that trust and made it possible for several persons to be killed. Fortunately, no one was."

When Kish and Morgu were called before the bench the court addressed them.

"I believe you have told the truth in your confessions, and you made it possible to apprehend the so-called master mind of the plot.

"You stole a car at the point of a gun, stole a plane, and robbed a bank while armed, endangering lives. Because of your youth and because you were not the instigators, I make your sentences lighter."

Morgu and Kish held up six employés of the bank after effecting entrance by a key provided by Grandon. After looting the bank the two fled in a plane, stolen earlier in the morning. The plane was forced down at Chatham, Ont., and the two were captured in Toronto, where they had continued by train. All three men had pleaded guilty.

CRACKSMEN FAIL TO OPEN SAFE.

Four cracksmen who attempted to loot the safe of the Marquette theater, 3157 West 61st street, were frightened away yesterday morning. The safe contained $1,500.

NINTH VICTIM OF CAPITAL CRIME WAVE IS DEAD

Shot Two Weeks Ago, Develops Pneumonia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Washington's crime wave claimed its ninth victim in a fortnight today, when Arthur Huddell, local union official, who was fired upon by an unknown gunman two weeks ago, died of pneumonia at Sibley hospital.

The fatal illness, according to physicians, was brought on by nervous strain which followed the attack on Huddell's life. The union official narrowly escaped death at that time when one of the assailant's bullets lodged in a notebook in his breast pocket. Huddell suffered a stroke and a cerebral hemorrhage and pneumonia developed.

Huddell at the time of the shooting was conducting an investigation of embezzlement charges involving a former official of the international union of operating engineers, of which he was president.

Machine Gun Plans Stolen.

A rumor of international intrigue was added to Washington's crime difficulties today when secret plans for a new machine gun were stolen from the office of the Automatic Gun corporation. Reports that the gun had recently been purchased by the government were denied by both the army and navy ordnance departments.

According to Robert F. Hudson, inventor and president of the company, the weapon is the deadliest of its type ever built.

The international flavor was provided by a story in a local paper quoting the inventor as saying the plans would be valuable to foreign powers. Rumors that the department of justice was investigating were also denied.

Negro Fires at Police.

Police were also alarmed today over the theft of fifteen guns and $100 worth of ammunition from a local sporting goods store late last night.

A search was being conducted today for the Negro who fired point blank last night at a policeman who had stopped him for driving without lights.

Police believe the abandoned machine to have been used for liquor running.

BANKER CALDWELL FACES COURT; ASKS FOR DELAY OF TRIAL

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—[Special.]—Rogers Caldwell, head of the collapsed Caldwell & Co. financial house here, was haled into Criminal court today to answer charges of fraudulent breach of trust. It was Caldwell's first public appearance since he made bond in April on a federal charge of conspiracy.

ROGERS CALDWELL

His attorneys immediately entered a motion asking for a delay until the September term of court for hearing of the case on the grounds that public sentiment here is too much aroused against the banker for him to get a fair trial.

Caldwell, his brother, Meredith Caldwell, and father, James E. Caldwell, all bankers, came into court.

Affidavits from a hundred persons, including bankers, merchants, and persons summoned off the street, were read in court to prove that the public mind was too inflamed for a trial at this time.

Judge Chester K. Hart, the presiding judge, said that he would hear arguments tomorrow. All witnesses have been ordered to be on hand at the opening of court.

(Body Odor)

THEIR first dance. And he vowed inwardly it would be their last. She was pretty, danced beautifully, but one thing spoiled it all. The last thing you'd ever suspect in a girl who looked so dainty!

Of course she didn't realize she was letting "B.O."—body odor—offend. She was horrified when another girl finally blurted out the truth. But she took the friendly warning—adopted a simple safeguard . . . Now she's popular with everyone, a favorite partner. She knows the easy way to keep perspiration odorless.

No excuse for "B. O."—even in hot weather

Naturally we perspire more in hot weather—the danger of "B. O." is greater. We may not notice it in ourselves—others do! But with Lifebuoy to safeguard us, we need never offend.

Lifebuoy gives an abundance of rich, creamy, antiseptic lather—even in hardest water. It penetrates pores—removes all odor—keeps the body fresh and sweet. The favorite toilet soap of millions of particular men and women. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies.

Complexions grow lovelier

Daily cleansing with Lifebuoy—that's the quick, easy way to a good complexion, say women everywhere. Its bland, searching lather deep-cleanses pores—gently frees them of clogged impurities—makes dull skins glow with fresh, healthy radiance. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

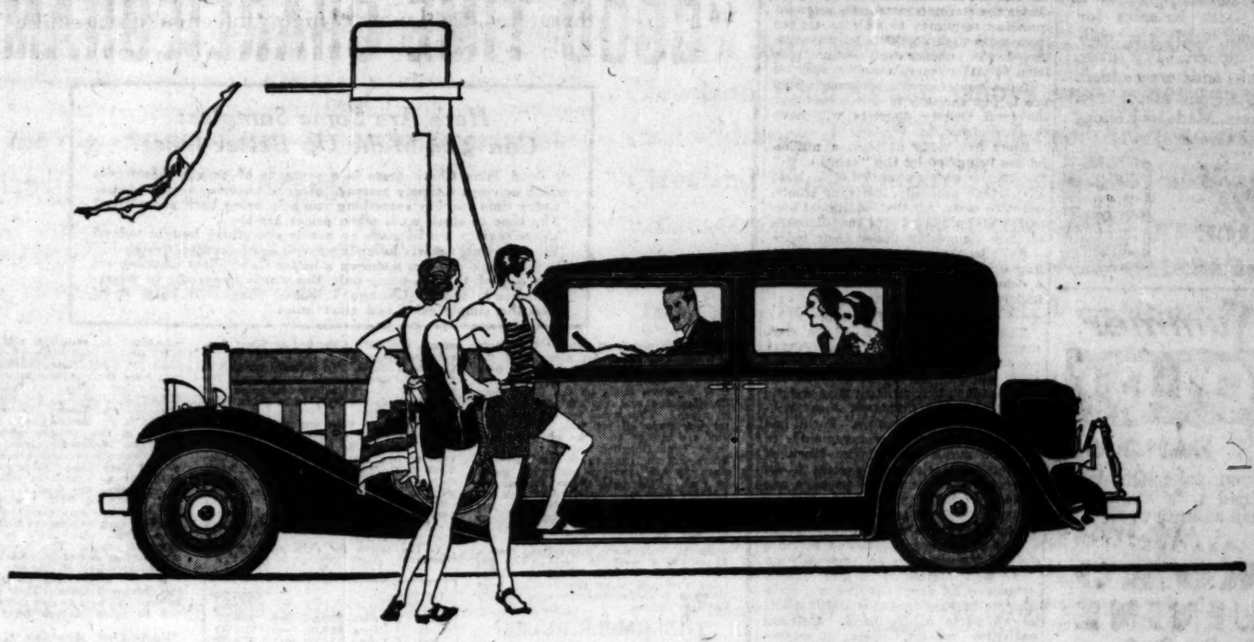
Are you one of the 89,000 motorists who could profitably change to LaSALLE?



Motor car registrations reveal that there are 89,000 motorists who have paid very nearly as much for their cars as the price of a LaSalle V-8. Yet they are not enjoying the luxury, satisfaction and prestige of LaSalle ownership. Most of these motorists purchased their cars in the mistaken belief that they could not afford a LaSalle. The fact is, practically every one of them could have owned a LaSalle at but little, if any, additional expense. Why not come in—and learn for yourself that it may be more economical to drive a LaSalle?

GERMANY PLANS NEW CUT IN DOLE AS DEFICIT RISES

Pay Reductions and Tax Boosts Also Loom.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 1.—Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius will leave Wednesday on a little jaunt to the country estate of a famous Scotch - Englishman—J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of England.

HEINRICH BRUENING.
[Acme Photo.]

They won't stay very long, according to announcements, and though the masses of German people hope they have a fine trip and come to some encouraging conclusions, the big question here is: "After Chequers, what?"

That question is considered already as good as answered, and in a way to realize some of the worst fears of the people. From reliable sources comes word that after the return of the two leading members of the government the cabinet will get to work under the authority of article 48 of the constitution, which gives them powers amounting to a semi-dictatorship, and decree new emergency measures.

Plan Reduction of Dole.

These measures are almost certain to include further reductions of the benefits received by the hosts of German unemployed, doing away with a great sector of national jobless aid—the so-called "crisis care," which steps in for some 30-odd weeks after the half year's support of the unemployment insurance has expired.

Then, there will also be decreed reductions of at least 6 per cent in the salaries of government officials. The two leading unions of higher and subordinate civil servants have declared their violent opposition to any attempts to effect economies at the expense of their salaries, and they have threatened to throw their support to the radical parties if their wages are cut.

In spite of the awaited seasonal increase of employment, latest figures show that the number out of jobs in Berlin is practically 500,000. In the country as a whole, the figure is about ten times that. Officially, the latest number of registered jobless is 4,211,000.

Jobless Relief Declines.

At the same time, in Berlin, the continued retrenchments and economies of the authorities administering the unemployment relief has caused the count of those receiving aid from the district of Brandenburg, which includes the German metropolis and surrounding territory, to sink to 452,000 from more than 455,000. In the same period the unemployed count rose from 697,417 to more than 708,000.

If the government's economy measure is put through it will mean that the local charity districts will have to take over the burden.

There are today at least a million jobless being fed by the "crisis care." this means an expenditure of at least $200,000,000 annually, including administrative costs. All that additional burden will be placed on the districts, already staggering under their loads.

As it is, the national crisis care administration will have, it is estimated, a deficit of between 50 and 63 million dollars by the end of this year.

Expect New Taxation.

The combined deficits of the German local districts in the year 1930 were more than 110 millions. Where they will conjure up money for the new burdens is a problem that weighs heavily on the minds of local politicians and administrators. Berlin has already completed arrangements to sell the major part of the stock of its municipal electrical system to an international group. Or, perhaps one would be more accurate in saying to pawn it, for it is to have the right to buy back the controlling interest.

Sale of public properties at sacrifice prices, increased taxes, especially on beer and amusements, and drastic economies all along the line will probably be imposed by cities and districts in all parts of Germany. Cultural activities—concert, opera, theater—will certainly be hard hit everywhere.

ROBBERS FIRE AT CAR OWNER.

Three automobile thieves stole the car of Albert P. Actoni, 3242 Evergreen avenue, yesterday after firing several shots at him when he ran out to halt them.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follows:

Indiana — Mostly fair, warmer Tuesday; Wednesday local showers and slightly warmer.

Wisconsin—Mostly unsettled Tuesday and Wednesday with local showers; warmer Tuesday.

Lower Michigan — Fair in south, possibly local showers in north portion Tuesday, warmer; unsettled and warmer Wednesday with showers.

Upper Michigan—Mostly unsettled Tuesday and Wednesday with occasional local showers; somewhat warmer Wednesday and in southwest portion Tuesday.

Ohio—Fair and warmer Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness, probably followed by showers in northwest portion. Warmer in east portion.

Severe Quake Hits Persia; Seven Struck by Lightning

TEHERAN, Persia, June 1.—(AP)—A severe earthquake and heavy thunderstorms struck this section over the week-end. The earthquake was most strongly felt at Damavand and Shahpoor, but little damage was done. Seven persons were struck by lightning at Hamadan.

Terrorist Bands Massacre 49 in Indo-China Raids

PARIS, June 1.—(AP)—A dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, tonight said that terrorist bands, acting under the orders of native chiefs, had killed 49 persons and mutilated and tortured scores of others. Christianized annimites and priests, the dispatch said, were tortured with boiling pitch.

URGE GERMANY TO FIGHT FOR WAR DEBT REVISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEIPZIG, Germany, June 1.—The federated labor unions today in a formal resolution demanded that the government start immediate negotiations for a revision in the reparations payments since "conditions in Germany cannot improve until reparations are out of the way."

Similar demands were voiced by the National Association of German clubs at its annual meeting in Dresden, and in Nuremberg, where the trade association "Hansabund" is meeting to devise means of lessening the crisis. All bodies sent emissaries and telegrams to Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius imploring them to fight for a reduction in reparations at the conference at Chequers with the British government.

The Socialist party convention here today united to support a 40 hour week. This is one of the strongest planks in their platform.

WHAT TEN-WORD SENTENCE CAN YOU MAKE USING ONLY THE WORDS IN TODAY'S ADS?

The Chicago Tribune Will Pay

$1000.00 A Week
IN CASH PRIZES

For the Best ORIGINAL
"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

Here Are Some Samples: Can You Make Up Better Ones?

A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice:
"Every time you buy something you help bring back prosperity."
"The time to stock up is when prices are low."
"Large savings can be made on nearly everything bought today."
"When business starts humming prices are bound to rise again."
Do you think you can make up a better Good Time Charliegram than any of these?—using only the words appearing in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Try your hand at it! Read the simple rules and start now!

WHAT sentence of exactly ten words can you make up, using only the words which appear in the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Last week we made up the Good Time Charliegrams and invited you to hunt for them. This week we are going to let you have all the fun. This week you are invited to make up your own Good Time Charliegrams.

There are no daggers to hunt for—no stars to look for—no particular words to find. This week we've thrown the treasure hunt wide open. Just pick out any words in today's ads that you think make up a timely message of good cheer or sound advice.

Try it. You'll have loads of fun. To make it even more interesting, there's $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes for successful contestants. Read the simple rules now and start the exciting hunt through the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best and neatest complete sets of seven (7) original Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

2. A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. The sentence must be made up of words taken from advertisements, EXCEPT Classified or Want Ads, published in a single day's issue of the Chicago Tribune. To indicate where you get each word, simply write down the name of the advertiser following the word. Words are NOT to be taken from the Want Ads.

3. Not more than one word shall be taken from the advertising of any one store, company, or individual. If an advertiser has more than one advertisement in the same issue of the Tribune, only one word from such advertisements may be used in the same Good Time Charliegram. The same word may be used more than once, provided that it is taken from a different advertiser every time it is used.

4. The prizes for each week are as follows:

1st Prize	$250.00
2nd Prize	100.00
Next 2 Prizes $50.00 each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes $25.00 each	100.00
Next 25 Prizes $10.00 each	250.00
Next 40 Prizes $ 5.00 each	200.00
73 weekly prizes totaling $1,000.00

5. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

6. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's entry separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. All entries in the Second Series must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 10, 1931.

7. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

8. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank supplied each day in the Tribune or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to each tying contestant.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

from the world's greatest merchants!

WE learn from accomplishment.

In business, it's the retailer who does the big selling job.

It's the merchant who rubs shoulders with the consumer, studies him—finds out what he will buy—and why.

From the big city retailers—the world's greatest merchants—comes this message:

"If you have anything that's worth buying, the big city daily newspaper can sell it for you!"

Merchants say—tell the public that you have something it needs, at a price it can afford to pay—and the public will buy!

In panic or in prosperity, the retailer keeps right on selling. He must! And in good times or bad, it's the big city daily newspaper that carries the brunt of his selling effort.

No other medium is big enough—influential enough to definitely create sales in any one community overnight! No other medium commands the prestige, the reader confidence, the concentrated circulation necessary to do a quick and complete selling job for you—whatever you manufacture.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has been the Cleveland Trade Empire's leading newspaper for three generations—since covered wagon days.

Thousands and thousands and thousands of families in the Cleveland Trade Empire look on the Plain Dealer as an old friend. They turn to it for their daily news of the world, of their own communities, of what's what in merchandise!

What is this great Trade Empire in which the Cleveland Plain Dealer enjoys such prestige—such widespread reader confidence? Briefly—the Cleveland Trade Empire is a compact area of urban centers. From Sandusky on the west, to Ashtabula on the east, there is an unbroken chain of adjoining incorporated municipalities —100 miles of city!

The Cleveland Trade Empire has 77% city population. In this area the Cleveland Plain Dealer has 86% city circulation. In 134 out of these 135 cities and towns of over 1,000 population, the Plain Dealer is the only morning newspaper!

Let's look further at the Cleveland Trade Empire—the special province of the Plain Dealer. 31 counties of Northern Ohio comprise the Empire. And in these 31 counties the average per capita income is 26% above that of the country's average!

That's the sort of market the Cleveland Trade Empire offers you!

That's the sort of area the Cleveland Plain Dealer blankets—dominates—sells—alone! Write or wire for information—now.

THE CLEVELAND TRADE EMPIRE

consists of 31 counties in Northeastern Ohio. It buys more automobiles in a year than all Massachusetts. Its income tax returns exceed those of the entire state of Texas—its realty tax valuations are greater than the combined total of Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina! 134 towns and cities of more than 1,000 population—note them on the map—with per capita incomes 26% above the average for the entire country! Rich, busy, growing ever larger—that's the Cleveland Trade Empire.

BARE MARRIAGE OF AUTO PIONEER DAY OF FUNERAL

Flint, Mich., June 1.—[Special.]—Arthur Mason, 61 years old, one time millionaire and former associate of Durant and Buick in the automobile industry, was buried today. Just before the funeral it was announced that on May 9 last Mason had married in Toledo Ella Baker, 31, a factory worker. The announcement was made by the bride herself.

For a year she had been serving as Mason's housekeeper here, at the same time working at the Chevrolet assembly line inspecting the car which Mason, at the peak of his career, helped design.

His friends said when he died last Wednesday he was on the eve of accumulating his second fortune.

"Friends thought that our marriage should be announced," Mrs. Mason said. "We had known each other for several years."

Mason was one of the founders of the Buick Motor company, with David Buick, W. C. Durant, and Walter Marr. With Durant he also organized and developed the Chevrolet company, designing the Chevrolet motor.

ILLINOIS G. A. R. VETS TO MEET IN AURORA TODAY

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Illinois, and affiliated organizations will gather in Aurora today for their 65th annual encampment. The downtown section has been decorated in their honor.

It is expected that between 200 and 300 of the surviving Illinois veterans, who number in all about 1,300, will attend. The average age of the surviving civil war soldiers is 87 years.

Only business sessions will be held today. The principal event of the encampment, the parade, will be held on Thursday, and it has been announced that all of the veterans who are able to do so will march, as parades may be abandoned after this year on account of their advancing years. Officers will be elected on Thursday.

Among the affiliate organizations holding their annual conventions with the G. A. R. are the Women's Relief corps, the Ladies of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, the Daughters of Veterans, and the auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans.

Funeral in Oak Park for Mrs. Roxanne S. Wright

Funeral services for Mrs. Roxanne Seabury Wright of Carmel, Cal., and Pasadena will be held in Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, at 4 p. m. Thursday. Mrs. Wright was the wife of Dr. Percy Bennett Wright and a sister of Charles Ward Seabury, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce. She was a graduate of the Oak Park High school. Her death occurred at her home in Carmel on Saturday. She was the author of a number of poems and hymns. Mrs. Wright's recently published "Hymn to the Airmen" was sung in churches all over the country last Armistice day.

Miss Susan Judd, Former Chicago Teacher, Buried

Funeral services for Miss Susan Alice Judd, former Chicago high school teacher, who died last Friday at her home in Santa Monica, Cal., were held in Santa Monica yesterday. Miss Judd was 84 years old. Before her retirement Miss Judd was on the faculty of the old Jefferson High school, now Carl Schurz High school. She taught here for more than twenty-five years.

4 CHICAGOANS DIE VICTIMS OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

Gaton Caratelli, 43 years old, 5139 South Kolin avenue, died yesterday at the county hospital of a fractured skull received Saturday when struck by an automobile at Archer and Kolin avenues. Philip Nemee, 4801 South Winchester avenue, was the driver of the car.

This death and one other increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 481.

Samuel Kutro, 15 years old, 2242 West Grand avenue, died at St. Mary's hospital of injuries suffered yesterday when he was struck by a truck at Ohio and Leavitt streets. Edward Kurslefer, 22 years old, 805 South 15th avenue, Maywood, was the driver.

Carl G. Sperling, 40 years old, 2372 East 70th street, was killed in an automobile accident yesterday on a highway near Bellevue, O.

Anton Linzer, 18 years old, of 6206 Ridge avenue, died early this morning in the Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan, of injuries suffered in an automobile crash just west of Zion last Saturday. It was the third fatality of the accident. The second victim, Joseph Baer, 18 years old, 6118 North Lincoln street, succumbed yesterday. The first victim, Carl Garden, 19 years old, 6209 Ravenswood avenue, died Sunday. Five other persons were hurt.

Carnival Fat Man Falls; Three Men Give First Aid

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1.—(AP)—"Pop" Karns, 48, carnival performer, who weighs 612 pounds, today ran to meet his daughter, Grace, 17, who weighs 671 pounds, and fell. Three men assisted him to a hospital.

INSANE, BEATS MOTHER, LEAPS 8 FLOORS TO DEATH

Moline, Ill., June 1.—(AP)—After knocking his mother unconscious and injuring an elevator operator, Calvin Kucar, 26, a patient of the state insane hospital, committed from Waukegan, Ill., leaped out of the eighth floor window of a hotel tonight and was killed.

Kucar, who entered the hospital in 1928, was often released over weekends to visit his mother, Mrs. Edith Kucar of Waukegan, who registered at the hotel. Kucar was to return again in the morning, but insisted on accompanying his mother back to Waukegan. When she attempted to reason with him he became violent and began beating her.

Alma Hartle, elevator operator of the hotel, went to the mother's rescue. Dragging the elderly woman into the cage, she succeeded in closing the steel gate despite Kucar's interference.

With this, Kucar ran into the apartment and crashed through the window pane, falling 200 feet to a steel and glass canopy.

Thieves Escape by Hurling Pepper at Store Manager

Caught shoplifting in the W. T. Grant department store at 3341 West Roosevelt road yesterday, two thieves folled capture by throwing red pepper into the eyes of the store manager. Herman Dreubhaut, of 1218 South 56th street, Cicero. Dreubhaut saw the men take wallets from a counter, and stopped them. One of the pair threw an open package of pepper into his face. Before he could recover they had escaped.

German Pens Good Biography of Lord Nelson

Presents Interesting Study of Naval Genius.

"NELSON, MAN AND ADMIRAL," by Friedrich M. Kircheisen [Duffield], is the latest biography of that always exciting material for biographers, Lord Horatio Nelson, who has gone down in history not only as "the greatest naval genius not only of England but of the modern world" [to quote the present biographer], but also as one of the great lovers of all time in his devotion to Lady Hamilton.

LORD NELSON.

It is rather as a naval genius and as a lover that Kircheisen bases upon his hero. The translator, Frederick Collins, says: "It appears that the present work is the first book on Nelson which has been written in Germany, and the author makes it clear to his German readers that his purpose is to show how a predominant and victorious navy is—or was—the chief factor in the establishment and maintenance of world dominion as exemplified by the British empire in the days when our naval hero and his valiant sailors swept all opponents from the seas, and thus made the way clear for undisputed and unhampered colonization and trade expansion."

That may be the author's object, but the present volume is not one of propaganda [unless tacitly expressed], it is a not too detailed but comprehensive examination into the career of a great naval commander, with enough of his private life disclosed to account for his public actions. For Nelson was strongly under the influence of his private life. Always a victim to women, the author says, when he met Lady Hamilton he fell not only in love with her with his usual ardor but he saw in her the epitome of all love. He gave himself literally—not only privately, but officially—into her hands. Even his letters were opened by her in his absence—at his request. He performed no official act which did not meet her approval, and even the queen had to plead with Lady Hamilton to plead with Nelson before he would obey. And yet, says Herr Kircheisen, "in all probability the love was only on his side. Probably Lady Hamilton never loved any one but Greville . . . It is safe to say that her interest in Nelson lay not so much in his personality as in his fame." It is an historical fact that Nelson's only dying worry was the future of the woman he loved and that just before the battle of Trafalgar, which ended his life, he asked the government to care for and support Lady Hamilton and his daughter.

But only so far as Lady Hamilton influenced his position as a naval officer does Herr Kirchelsen go into their relationships. He is concerned rather with "Nelson the naval genius."

One interesting and novel comparison the author makes and develops, not at great length but two or three times during the course of the biography. "It is noteworthy that similar principles are developed from the words and deeds of Nelson, the greatest sailor of his time, to those from the acts and utterances of the greatest general of his days, Napoleon," he writes. "Nelson's greatest endeavor was the complete destruction of his opponent . . . In this respect, as in many others, we find complete agreement with the ideas of Napoleon. In spite of numerical inferiority neither of them avoided the enemy, but sought him out; yet they strove to have the superiority through greater rapidity in their operations and greater mobility and value in their ships or troops at the place and moment in which they fell upon the enemy, in order to beat and destroy him."

"In one respect, however, there is a vast difference between Nelson and Napoleon," he continues. "Nelson endeavored to train sea horses, to educate them in initiative, whilst Napoleon only created tools for the purpose of carrying out his orders almost mechanically."

And later: "What Napoleon was on land, Nelson was at sea . . . . He had the same brilliant imagination as his great opponent, and, like the latter, he was also subject to fixed ideas." And he also mentions that "Nelson was extremely energetic and needed little sleep," also like Napoleon.

There is an amusing paragraph about the rewards of valor which Nelson received after the victory of the Nile. "If we think that modern heroes are plied with gold, listen to what happened to Nelson in 1798." "Nelson was created baron and received a pension of £2,000 for life. He received from the Irish parliament a pension of £1,000, and from the East India company a lump sum of £10,000. The city of London gave him a sword ornamented with diamonds. The Grand Seignior gave the happy victor a diamond plume of triumph and a mantle which together had a value of £3,000. The Grand Seignior's mother added a box set with diamonds worth £1,000, the czar of Russia a diamond set box worth £2,500. The king of Sicily sent a sword richly adorned with diamonds, a sum of £8,000, and made him duke of Bronta, an estate which brought him a yearly revenue of £3,000. Of the various smaller presents there was another diamond inlaid box from the king of Sardinia which had a value of £1,500. "All at once," says Herr Kircheisen, "Nelson became a millionaire. The most singular present that was made to him, however, came from Capt. Hallowell, who honored the admiral with a coffin which had been made from the wood and iron of the French flagship."

Gilbert Morrow.....Theodore von Eltz
Luella Mae Carroll.....Joyce Compton

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Something tells me you're going to enjoy this picture!

"Up Pops the Devil" is the screenization of the play by Albert Hackett and Frances Goodrich. It is an amusing version, deftly directed, pleasingly played and elaborately staged. Too elaborately staged. The apartment of he Merricks, and Mrs. Merrick's attire, are far too gorgeous for a young couple just trying to get along in New York, on first $100 and later $75 a week. Ask any New Yorker!

These exaggerations do not, however, mar your enjoyment of the film as a whole. From the start you are intrigued with the marital adventures of the Merricks.

They love each other dearly, and Anne feels terribly that, because of the exigencies of his job, and much night partying, Steve, who aspires to write, can't find any time to turn out a novel that shall astound the world.

"He SHALL have time!" determines Mrs. Steve. So—after a hot argument with her husband, who is one of those men who believe in supporting their wives—she persuades him to give up his job and let her go back to work in a show. Steve's to stay home, write, and keep house. Anne will bring home the bacon.

Ever see a man keep house? Yes? Ever see him keep house with one hand and write masterpieces with the other? Probably not. Gaze upon "Up Pops the Devil" and learn!

Carole Lombard and Norman Foster give A-1 performances as Mr. and Mrs. Steve. Both are sincere and tasteful workers. Lilyan Tashman contributes one of her famous hard boiled Hannah portrayals to the common good. Stuart Erwin and Skeets Gallagher do funny things. Most of the dialogue clicks.

If you like your entertainment sophisticated, dressy and droll, "Up Pops the Devil" is your meat.

"THE SIN SHIP."

Produced by RKO.
Directed by Louis Wolheim.
Presented at the Castle theater.
THE CAST.

Captain McVeigh.....Louis Wolheim
Kitty.....Mary Astor
Marsden.....Ian Keith
Charlie.....Hugh Herbert
Tourist [detective].....Russell Powell
Dave.....Alan Roscoe
Cook.....Bert Starkey

How strange it seems to see and hear those who have vanished from the earth!

"The Sin Ship," directed as well as acted in by the late Louis Wolheim, is that player's last picture. You'll be glad that, for once in his career, the story gives him a break.

When you meet him he is, as per usual, a rough customer. He's captain of a trading boat and he has no finer moments.

"I don't say prayers, I don't hit crippies, and I don't fall in love!" he informs his admiring first mate, with gusto. "Women are all alike."

One day as he and said mate stride along the Frisco wharf bound for the haunts and feminine companionship to which they are accustomed, they come upon a man in minister's garb and his lady, who have just missed an outgoing steamer. It was, the former informs Capt. McVeigh, to have carried the two to missionary labors in foreign lands.

"Would it be possible," asks this Marsden, "for you to take us along with you?"

The captain, having cast an animal eye on the lady and finding that, lo, she is fair, assents.

What occurs on the cruise of the "sin ship"? Considerable of interest.

This story hands out several surprises. The acting is all splendid, save that of Ian Keith, who is ham as the cleric. Mr. Wolheim was at his splendid, homely and, yes, lovable best. What an actor the screen has lost in him! Hugh Herbert is a scream as Charlie, the mate. Mary Astor gives a beautifully sincere performance.

"The Sin Ship" is sure to interest you, if only for the reason that it spells "Lights Out!" for Louis Wolheim.

See you soon.

Hutchins Blames Educational System for Trade Slump

Berea, Ky., June 1.—(AP)—The present economic situation was blamed on an educational system that teaches men and women facts but not how to use them by Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, in an address here today. Prior to receiving from his father, Dr. William J. Hutchins, president of Berea, an honorary degree of doctor of law, the Chicago university president delivered the commencement address closing the seventy-fifth anniversary of the mountain college. He termed it one of the few educational institutions that would be missed if it should disappear.

The elder Hutchins, gray headed and 69, in adding to the honorary degrees of his son, was the first college president father to so honor his own son, a college president. The movement for the degree originated at the University of Chicago.

Two hundred and twenty-four degrees were conferred upon graduates of the school, academy, and college.

"The world that we have created is too much for us," the younger Hutchins said. "We cannot tell who is responsible for anything. The machinery we have invented produces results that we did not foresee and cannot avoid. The industrial organization that has developed carries us along, we do not know whither; we do not know why. That we have been unable to manage the structure we have erected is a reflection on the educational system we have developed."

Manufacturers Find All Day Sucker Is Most Popular Candy

The old fashioned all day sucker is the most popular candy now sold in this country, according to reports from 300 manufacturers of candy who met at the Stevens hotel yesterday for the beginning of the 48th annual National Confectioners' association convention.

E. E. Cahoon, one of the manufacturers, said that machines have now been invented which turn out 400 suckers a minute, or 192,999 in an eight hour day. Many manufacturers have five or six machines running constantly, with a production of 1,000,000 a day.

A statistician at the convention estimated that if 100 children aged 7 should begin licking one day's production from an all day sucker machine all would be more than 34 years old when they finished and probably would not be fond of all day suckers by that time.

President of France Wed to Old Friend

Bachelor, 68, Marries as Term Nears End.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 1.—Gaston Doumergue, 68 years old, bachelor president of France, 13 days before quitting office, married his long time sweetheart, Mme. Jeanne Grave, wealthy widow, at an intimate ceremony today at the presidential palace in Paris.

This news was and was not a surprise to the French citizenry, since the intimate friendship of the couple has been whispered discreetly for years. Early evening editions of the Paris papers showed a curious vagueness in handling the story here, giving the sketchiest report of the ceremony.

Staging the ceremony before the expiration of his term of office gives Mme. Grave the privilege of the title "Mme. la Presidente." Mme. Grave was the widow of a government employé. One of her daughters had M. Doumergue as tutor early in his career. Mme. Grave owns a magnificent chateau at Taurnefeuilles, near Toulouse. The Doumergues will make their home there.

Several cases of the president's books—M. Doumergue is an ardent bibliophile—have already been dispatched there. Mme. Doumergue left Paris today, and it is reported that she will not attend any of the presidential functions during the remaining 13 days of her husband's term.

The ceremony was performed by Mayor Brucker of the Sixteenth ward, who was decked out with red, white, and blue mayor's ribbons across his shirt front, and he appeared very rattled. A beadle, bearing an official chain around his neck, ritually represented the public, not a single member of which was invited. Only witnesses were present. They were for M. Doumergue, one of his secretaries, Jules Michel, and for the bride, Henri Laurain, a wealthy gas company president.

The bride wore a black silk dress and a black silk crepe de chine hat. The mayor's usual speech of advice and congratulations was dispensed with. President Doumergue replied to the ritual questions in a firm and clear voice, "Oui," and his bride nodded her head. The newlyweds lunched alone at the palace following the ceremony.

The bride has three grown children while the president has a daughter, Francoise Doumergue, age 29, whom he formally recognized as his child some years ago and to whom he recently made a gift of 1,000,000 francs ($40,000) in a trust fund. Her mother is a Paris school teacher. Francoise is an accomplished artist.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., June 1.—[Special.]—The Warner Brothers-First National combination has canceled four pictures scheduled for 1931 making. The studio may shut down completely for several weeks in July or August.

Marion Mack, feature actress in the silent days, and her husband, Louis Lewyn, former financier and producer of movies, have moved to Mexico City to make films. Miss Mack is of part Mexican parentage and the venture follows a trip here by Guillermo and Fernando Ortiz-Rubio, sons of the Mexican president, during which the Lewyns entertained the brothers.

Neither actors, voice teachers, nor directors will affect the future of sound pictures, according to the theme address of John I. Crabtree, president, at the convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers here.

"The future of sound films rests with the sound engineer. The reproduction of speech is now satisfactory, but that is not true of reproduction of music. Only scientific research and education will provide the remedy and improve the situation," Crabtree said.

Josephine Dunn, who leaped into film fame and money as feminine lead in the first successful sound picture, Al Jolson's "Singing Fool," a little more than three years ago, is now doing a two reel comedy lead at Universal City. She is paired with Lloyd Hamilton in a short named "Robinson Crusoe and Son."

After some months of acclaim as the blond heroine of "Trader Horn," Edwina Booth is another performer who found the big time unresponsive and has moved over in the serial pictures. Her colleague in "Trader Horn," Harry Carey, is going back into the chapter plays with her.

Rex, the wild horse which starred in several feature films of the silent days, is participating in the general comeback opportunity provided by this film, which is titled "The Vanishing Legion," and will be made by Mascot Pictures, an independent concern.

Add unique Hollywood occupations: Wedding Director Orin Gardner is an individual who makes a living by going to the studios whenever a wedding scene has to be shot.

Miss Josa Mellville today filed suit for $1,500,000 against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Movie corporation charging plagiarism and copyright violations in producing the film, "Call of the Flesh." The film was stolen, she asserts, from the scenario entitled "O Solo Mio of Love and Fame," which, she says, she submitted to M-G-M in 1924. She asserts the film netted M-G-M $1,000,000, in addition to which were proceeds from sale of the book form of the plot.

Assail Divorce Market Bidding Among States

Presbyterian Assembly Hits Movies.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1.—[Special.]—Competition for the national divorce market among Nevada and other states unanimously was condemned by the 143d general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. Hollywood and motion picture interests were pointed out as being responsible for present marital standards.

"We are witnessing a recrudescence of paganism, with Hollywood blazing the way and Nevada prostituting its statehood and pandering to the weakness of human nature for thirty pieces of silver," the adopted report asserted. "The fundamental trouble is that the attention of young people is generally directed through our newspapers, magazines, movies, plays, and fiction to marriage at its worst and not at its best."

Judge William J. Kyle, Waynesburg, Pa., who read the sections of the report bearing on legislative action, pointed out that reform of the divorce codes in the various states would result in little improvement of conditions. He declared that hope can only be found in "the adoption of legal restrictions wisely framed to raise the standards of matrimony by preventing hasty marriages and by prohibiting entirely the marriage of those mentally or physically unfit."

Birth control was too stormy a subject for the church to discuss at this assembly. The report of the commission included complete approval of continence as a means of birth control and a limited approval of the use of contraceptives. Statements bearing on such approval officially was published in the assembly "blue book," but these were not presented to the assembly for debate. Commissioners now point out that by sidestepping this stormy section of the commission's report the church is without voice, not only concerning the use of contraceptives but also of continence as a means of birth control.

The debate ordered for today in Saturday's session on the relation of the church to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America was postponed until tomorrow morning. Commissioners freely predicted there will be no debate. The calendar of the sessions was arranged during the Sunday recess to permit two popular reports favorable to the federal council to be presented for adoption before the direct debate of the council should arise. The first was the report of Dr. J. Ross Stevenson of Princeton seminary, chairman of the department of church union and interdenominational coöperation. He explained that the federal council is the sole voice of a united American Protestantism which many enemies would like to still. Dr. Stevenson's report unanimously was adopted.

The second report bearing on the federal council was that of the commission on marriage, divorce, and remarriage. This spoke of the medium the council offered for coöperative study of marriage and divorce problems with other denominational bodies. This coöperation involved financial aid to the council of $1,500, which unanimously was approved.

The Lord's Day Alliance was applauded by the assembly for its aid in the lobbies of the legislature of Pennsylvania against the rescinding of the blue laws in that state.

American citizenship should not depend upon the test of the ability or willingness contrary to conscience to bear arms to take part as a combatant in war was the decision of the assembly this morning. Thumbs of all commissioners were turned down on compulsory military training in colleges and high schools, while a movement was begun with official approval of the church to "establish the status of a Presbyterian who has conscientious objection to war as being the same as that of a member of the Society of Friends."

The Rev. S. Lewis Mudge, moderator of the general assembly, was elected state clerk for a period of five years. Dr. Mudge was nominated by Dr. David De Forest Burrell, his opponent in the moderatorial election.

Youngstown, O., June 1.—(AP)—A committee report describing the United States as experiencing a low state of morality was presented today to the United Presbyterian assembly here, together with recommendations for correction of the alleged conditions.

The report said the national conscience is asleep to the dangers of narcotics and liquor traffic, and asked all congregations to give "continued moral and financial support to all agencies looking to the maintenance and enforcement of the 18th amendment."

According to the committee, lawlessness in this country is "practically uncurbed." The group said it found "many deadly effects" in motion pictures and that it was worried by the "youthful multitudes who have no Bible knowledge or fear of God."

The committee "deplored the low moral tone of many daily newspapers and their attitude toward prohibition and the malign influence exerted by their portrayal of crime." It recommended that the assembly "pledge itself to encourage all efforts to elevate newspaper ideals."

Montreat, N. C., June 1.—(AP)—The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, southern branch, voted late today, 175 to 79, to withdraw from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The decision to withdraw was reported after a debate on the recent pronouncement by a committee of the federal council in favor of birth control under certain conditions.

Announcement of the vote brought forth applause which is prohibited by the rules of the assembly.

THE STAGE

NEW YORK, June 1.—[Special.]—Marc Connelly's Pulitzer play, "The Green Pastures," will end a run of sixteen months on Saturday night, June 27, at the Mansfield theater, where it was presented on Feb. 26, 1930, by Rowland Stebbins. The play, based by Mr. Connelly on Roark Bradford's book of sketches, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun" has been one of the outstanding Broadway successes of recent years. It has not been decided if the play will reopen here in August, or be sent to Europe, or make an American tour.

Another closing announced yesterday was that of "Tonight or Never," the last production made by the late David Belasco, which will end its run next Saturday night. The play, with Helen Gahagan as the star, opened at the Belasco theater on Nov. 18, when Mr. Belasco was seriously ill with pneumonia. He did not see the play until several months after its New York premiere.

The final performance of "Tonight or Never" will mark the end of the Belasco organization as a producing unit. No plans have been made regarding the future of the Belasco theater.

The remainder of the New York engagement of "The Wonder Bar," the Al Jolson starring vehicle which had been announced to close on June 13, was abruptly canceled today by the Shuberts. The star's recurring illness from laryngitis was given as the cause for the cancellation, following a conference between Lee Shubert, Mr. Jolson's physician and Morris Gest, who has been associated in the production. Mr. Jolson last appeared in the show on Friday night.

Delegates Hear at Convention of Deaf League

Show How Instruments Conquer Defects.

Five hundred members of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing gathered at the Congress hotel yesterday for the opening of their twelfth annual convention. Delegates from 98 cities were present to discuss problems pertaining to the 18,000,000 persons in the United States whose hearing is impaired.

The normal buzz of conversation issuing from the Gold room seemed to belie the fact that the majority of those present were deaf, some of them totally so. For natural ingenuity and medical science have enabled these men and women to communicate with one another almost as readily as if they were in full possession of their auditory faculties.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, delivered an address of welcome, after which the convention was formally opened by Dr. Harvey Fletcher, president of the federation.

During the speeches which followed some of the delegates listened through individual ear phones which were placed at each seat and connected to a microphone on the speakers' table. There were many who were unable to distinguish words even with the aid of these amplifiers, but their problem was solved in this way: Girls with normal hearing stood at intervals along the aisle with their backs to the speaker, repeating the words as fast as they were uttered. Those who couldn't hear understood by lip reading.

Dr. R. G. Gilpatrick, president of the Speech Readers' guild of Boston, contended that deafness is no handicap to an automobile driver. He pointed out that lights have replaced the policeman's whistle in directing traffic and said that the deaf driver, mindful of his defect, is extraordinarily careful, making his eyes do the work of his ears.

Dr. Richard Olding Beard, director of the Minneapolis League for the Hard of Hearing, discussed the treatment of deafness in children between the ages of two and six.

"Despite the fact that a child of this age is liable to diseases," he said, "these years when mental elasticity and physical ability promote recovery can be used to overcome hearing losses. Science is just beginning to solve the problems of the deaf."

Miss Clara E. Wewlee, head teacher in the deaf oral department of the Parker Practice school, stressed the importance of early recognition of hearing defects and the necessity of broadcasting information on this subject to the general public. She discussed instruction in lip reading.

Prof. Richard Madden of Columbia university, analyzed the difference between deaf and normal children.

"The main difference is in their personality," he said. "The hard of hearing apparently withdraw from the social situation to avoid the embarrassment which must accompany it. An analysis of an intelligence test given children with impaired hearing reveals that this type of child has a different life experience."

Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, founder and former president of the federation, said. "Lip reading for the child with impaired hearing will conserve his speech, bring school and college within his powers and assist him in his general social relationships."

Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy of Winnetka, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, discussed a summer roundup of children who are about to enter kindergartens. She advocated a thorough examination of these boys and girls, followed by immediate steps toward treatment of any defects in hearing discovered.

One of the features of the convention which will continue until Thursday, will be a contest for the national lip reading championship, which will be held tonight. Miss Evelyn Parry of New York will be present to defend her title, and Chicago's most formidable entry will be Miss Florence Linnell, a former champion. Preliminaries were held last night.

SYNOPSIS.

Clara, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously from her home in a remote section of Paris. Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel, a man of great charm but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to search for Clara, assisted by Tommy Rostetter, a journalist.

Iris moves to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. Iris and Alan plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan meets Marcel at Helen's and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Marcel at La Touquet, gambling heavily and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. That night Alan sees Marcel entering the home of Suzanne Marly, an actress. Alan receives a wire giving him an extra fortnight's leave in Paris.

A letter is sent to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel meets Iris and Alan at Helen's and drives them home. He accompanies Alan to his hotel room. Alan receives a faked message recalling him immediately to Africa.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

A GAS ATTACK.

Tommy drummed restlessly on the table, looking worried. "I don't mind telling you I don't like this faked telegram—not one little bit. You say the manager received it? Where were you at the time?"

"I was out of the hotel, only for about twenty minutes, on an errand that came to nothing. Which reminds me—I don't believe I mentioned the flower shop, did I?"—and he related the incident arising out of his talk with Iris.

Before he had finished his friend was regarding him in outraged consternation.

"What!" he roared. "Do you mean to tell me you've had this business up your sleeve all along and said nothing?"

"Sorry," said Charnwood, surprised. "I can't remember everything. There seems only a dim chance of its proving important."

"Dim chance! Here, let's have the whole story in detail. Don't omit anything." He gave acute attention while Charnwood described De Bertincourt's unexpected appearance, the note Iris had scribbled in the car, and his own failure to reach the rue Tronchet before closing time. Then he exploded, "Great God, man! Doesn't it occur to you that this fraudulent message was timed to arrive while you were out?"

"Timed? I hadn't thought of it."

"Well, that is obviously what happened. Whoever telephoned didn't want you to answer, but that's only a side issue." He sat thinking deeply for a moment, then leaned forward and tapped Charnwood's arm with his pipe stem. "Now, listen to me: first thing in the morning, before anything sidetracks you, I want you to hurry back to that shop and make your inquiries. Understand?"

"I intend to do so," replied Charnwood with dignity. "But why should I be sidetracked, as you call it?"

"Never mind." Tommy waved the question aside. "Another point—whatever induced you to tell your hotel you were disregarding those orders about leaving? Don't you realize that whoever sent that call will take pains to find out if you've gone? Alan, old son, be guided by me. Go now, inform that manager you're catching the 10:45 to Marseilles, fetch your traps over here, and let me give you a toss-down on the couch."

Charnwood looked affronted. All his rooted objection to intrigue, supplemented by a constitutional dislike to being turned aside from an appointed course, went into his stiff refusal.

He leaned from the iron rail of the balcony, drinking in great drafts of damp air.

"Rot! I'm not going into hiding to please anybody."

"Right, have it your own way," agreed Tommy with a shrug.

Charnwood was half undressed that night when the telephone tinkled and De Bertincourt's voice, low pitched and anxious, spoke to him over the wire.

"Is it you, monsieur? I trust I have not disturbed your rest. The fact is, I have spent several hours urging my wife to agree to our plan, but nothing can persuade her. She thinks the risk is too great. I am afraid we shall have to abandon it."

"I quite understand. Perhaps she's right."

"Of course, she may think differently in the morning. If so, shall I be able to get in touch with you then?" The question was asked nervously, as though the speaker were afraid Charnwood might change his mind about wanting to help.

"Certainly. I shall be here."

There was an infinitesimal pause. Then De Bertincourt said simply and gratefully, "It is understood, monsieur. Thank you again. Good night."

Charnwood hung up the receiver and prepared for bed.

The whole building was wrapped in silence, as it always was at this hour. Along towards two o'clock the inevitable hubbub would begin, heralding the return to the nest of the pleasure seekers domiciled next door. These blithe spirits made it their practice to enter boisterously when cash or sobriety failed, cast footwear about with utter disregard of their neighbors, and indulge in long diatribes which the thin walls transmitted in painful detail.

Charnwood hastened to turn in, hoping to get some rest before the performance started.

Sleep, however, was perversely elusive. The night was close, and as he tossed irritably, fighting with the yards of superfluous sheet, he found himself reviewing the incidents of the day, seeking vainly to wrest from them some satisfactory conclusion.

Throughout all a dominant figure loomed before him—the Comtesse de Castelmaurou. How the old creature enjoyed power, how she used that power to make others suffer—ay, and gloated over their anguish! To gain her will she would pluck out her niece's heart and throw it to crows to devour.

So profoundly did this conception stir him that he felt prepared to go any length to foil her game, even though by so doing he precipitated an avalanche of scandal. Only one thought troubled him. If the old woman was shown up, would not Clare stand revealed as a willing confederate? And if this were so, would not the disclosure plunge Iris into fresh misfortune?

It all depended on the girl's motive. Much could be forgiven the victim of adolescent zeal, led by a passionate desire to see her parents reunited. Fifteen was a dangerous age. Clare's conduct might spring from misdirected emotionalism. But there was an ugly alternative. What if she proved a conscienceless hussy, consenting to play her part for the sake of a bribe?

The elfin face of the child he scarcely knew mocked him at every turn. Almost he could hear her saying, "You'd give a lot to know, wouldn't you? And I shan't tell you!" Try as he would, he could not escape the maddening taunts.

Charnwood foresaw the two De Bertincourts drawing closer and closer together. He would return from Africa to find their marriage firmly cemented, himself pushed aside. The reconciliation begun by trickery would continue by virtue of the strongest trinity in nature—father, mother, and child.

Thus he plowed through trackless misery till fatigue dulled his faculties.

A door banged. Like claps of thunder four boots thumped to the floor. From some far off region a groan merged into a yawn like a lion's roar, and words uttered in a plaintive drawl seeped into the sleeper's consciousness, creating new material for dreams.

What was this—the Château de Castelmaurou opened to the public? It must be so, for here was a party of tourists prowling about amongst tapestries and Henri Quatre furniture. How their voices echoed up and down the dark galleries!

How stuffy these old castles were! Windows too small, or else the inhabitants never opened them. The whole place smelled musty—one felt positively drugged. O for some air!

Unwonted lethargy clogged his limbs; to lift so much as a foot was like drawing it out of a bag. Yet somehow he must reach that door, smash it in if necessary, or he would be suffocated. Now—a determined rush, one good blow aimed at the panes . . .

Crash!

With a sharp reentry to the living world, Charnwood opened dazed, smarting eyes. Round him the darkness pressed in, thick and evil smelling, an impenetrable fog. His mouth was parched, swollen. What beastly stench was this, saturating his lungs, sucking him back towards insensibility? He coughed, choked, and grew suddenly nauseated. Something deucedly queer was happening.

The next instant he had rallied all his forces to take a flying leap out of bed.

Gas! That was it. The room reeked, he lost his bearings and struck his head a resounding thwack against the wall. Stunned, but sufficiently conscious of his peril to inhale not another whiff of the poisonous fumes, he flung himself towards the window.

A shock greeted him. The casement, left wide open only a short time ago—minutes, or was it hours?—was now tightly fastened. Impossible! He must still be dreaming.

He leaned from the iron rail of the balcony, drinking in great drafts of damp air. Sweat poured from him, the foul gas streamed past into the night.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Second Meeting.

One day recently a girl friend and I went to lunch, and on the way happened to see two young men and flirted with them.

One evening my cousin called and asked me if I cared to have a date with a friend of her husband's. I accepted the invitation. Imagine my embarrassment when the young man she introduced to me was the one I had flirted with that noon. A. C.

Here Are the Latest Ideas for Bouquets for the June Bride

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"The bride carried white calla lilies and white tulips, tied with the palest of pale green satin ribbons.

"The bride carried a tiny muff of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

"The bride carried an old fashioned colonial bouquet, edged with tulle and white paper, just like a valentine backing."

The above are just a few flower suggestions for the bride gathered from reports of wedding scenes already enacted this year.

We hear from time to time that fashions in bridal bouquets change just as other fashions change, but it strikes this observer that the bride is the least changeable of women. (As concerns her wedding day appearance, at least.) Still there are fewer of the elaborate shower effects with the many streamers of narrow ribbon being worn by brides this year.

"Rather simple" is this year's command. One charming bride, seen lately, carried only a small spray of flowers with a white bound prayer book. And this style is being copied frequently.

The tiny muff adds an adorable touch to the classic white satin. The muffs are made of maline and completely covered with the small flower or flowers chosen. At one wedding reported tiny muffs carried by the bridesmaids were made of chiffon flowers, the same chiffon flowers that made the crown of their hats.

The tall bride goes in more generally for the stately calla lilies tied with white ribbon. Yet one of the tall girls expressed her preference for an arm bouquet of white lilacs, a lovely choice.

A tip from a New York florist is to have the bridal bouquet mounted on a satin covered handle. It's easier to hand to the matron of honor at the ceremony and easy to throw in the popular after-ceremony of finding out who the next bride will be, providing you, as the bride, throw gently.

The further into summer you go the wider your flower selection may be, for there is no rule against expressing yourself as individually as you care to on this romantic flower occasion.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Deception Hurts.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow who does not want me to go with a certain girl. I promised I wouldn't. Next day he saw me with her and now he doesn't speak any more.

"LONESOME SADIE."

What hurt most was finding you guilty of deception, Sadie. A frank admission of your guilt and your realization that he was right may help your cause.

Mother Can't Correct Child Without "Aid" of the Entire Family

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Sometimes I think that children have a hard lot and that it's rather amazing that they grow up as well as they do.

The boy was going through a period of having a decided lapse in table manners. Whether it was just too much absorption in big, important muscular affairs like baseball, wrestling, outdoor games, and growing and rebellion against conventions, his mother couldn't tell—at least she said she couldn't.

But one thing she could tell, she confided to me one day, was that she was going to lay the law down to her family if they didn't "lay off" her children. She let off steam: "If I correct Jimmy for pushing his potato on his fork with a convenient forefinger, instead of a piece of bread—conversation ceases. Everybody looks at Jimmy. His father adds a remark.

"Cousin Martha tells about the way she used to be sent from the table when her manners didn't suit her father, who was very strict. And grandpa describes how he used a system of fines with his children.

"And this happens whenever I correct the children—always one member of the family and sometimes more will have to put their finger in the pie. Sometimes I vow I'll never correct them—or else I'll read the riot act to the grownups at a special conference of my calling."

This is a widespread family failing, and especially where there's only one child and several adults. The poor child becomes the center of attention—all eyes turn on her or him—all take a turn in jumping on her or him.

Try to train your relatives to let a reproof begin and end with one person. It is a hard lesson for most grown people to learn. But it is one in which every mother and father should set a shining example to each other and to those relatives who form part of the family group.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

RIDDING STRAWBERRY OF PESTS.

Methods found successful by commercial growers of strawberries for ridding their berry patches of such insects as grubs or leaf rollers may be applied to home gardens as well.

C. C. Compton, entomologist with the Illinois state natural history survey, reports that lack of proper growing methods, failure to rotate the beds and neglect of renovation causes most insect troubles in the home plantings.

Losses from white grubs, one of the most serious strawberry pests, can be prevented largely by planting on ground that grew a cultivated crop the year before. Many growers erroneously believe that white grubs are carried into the strawberry patch in manure or straw. However, these grubs from manure will not hurt strawberries or other plants and will die if they cannot get decaying organic matter for food.

If strawberry leaf roller or other leaf rolling insects are troublesome, they can be controlled by spraying with arsenate of lead at the rate of 2 pounds to 50 gallons of water. It is a good plan to use the arsenate of lead with a 4-6-50 Bordeaux mixture, as the latter will help control and prevent leaf diseases.

Where the proper growing methods are used and strawberries are treated with the Bordeaux lead spray just before blooming and again just after blooming, there will be very little trouble with insects or disease. Close clipping and burning over the bed soon after picking will help keep strawberry pests in check.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' JACKET SUIT

Jackets hold an important place today in women's cloths, and this model in the collarless type, with seven-eighth sleeves shows the blouse sleeves below. A belt marks the normal waist line, and the skirt with its inserted panels flares gracefully at the bottom. Navy blue silk for the dress and jacket, with white silk crepe with large coin dots in matching blue for the blouse, will be ideal for sports wear.

The pattern, 3080, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material for the jacket and skirt and 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse.

Frequent Washing Will Not Hurt Hair, Declares Antoinette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

With the coming of warm weather your heads are in for more attention than ever. The outside of your head, I mean. You'll have to decide about the inside need of attention yourself.

In warm weather, you know, the fatty secretions of oil glands and the waste excretions of perspiration glands are more active. As a consequence, unless you do pretty regular hair cleaning, there may be a rancid odor about the hair. And that's not at all in line with the summer girl picture. In fact, some of our fair charmers go in quite strongly for this business of delicately scented hair. It's reassuring, if you're one of those maids who comes up about shoulder height, to know that your hair can please the big Adonis in scent as well as color. Look into this lure of the femme.

Today I've got to tend the practical lure of clean hair. There's only one answer to the question: "How often should one shampoo the hair?" It is, when it is dirty. And if you can't guess yourself, let your hair brush tell you. Naturally, you've got to be a hair brush user before you can extract this valuable tip from the implement.

Regrettably for the hair, many women's hair brushes are nothing more than lazy, pampered, toilet table pets. But when a clean hair brush grows soiled from contact with your hair—your hair needs cleaning.

Now, if you want to be among the real smart ones, you have two hair brushes—and not one of them for show, either. The showpiece must be a third and outside our consideration at the moment. Keep those two brushes just as clean as you can. Put a little alum in the rinsing water to keep the bristles stiff and you can wash them every few days.

Did you know that hair grows faster in summer than in winter? It does, slightly—not a terrific difference, but some.

The real point of introducing the clean hair, warm weather topic is that rumor, supported by much evidence, has it that this summer is to be such a "dainty girl" summer as hasn't been along for years. But you can see for yourself what those exquisitely feminine frocks will look like with hair that has a soiled look to it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

LIANA: RARELY DOES ONE find blackheads where the habit of taking a warm bath at night and a cold shower in the morning is established. The cold shower stimulates circulation, which in turn stimulates the oil glands to proper functioning.

Evelyn Lilly Is Bride of F. C. Bartlett

BY THALIA

THE announcement by Mr. William Fortune of Indianapolis of the marriage of his daughter, Evelyn Fortune Lilly, to Frederic Clay Bartlett of Chicago and Beverly, Mass., is of great interest in Chicago because of Mr. Bartlett's prominence and popularity. The wedding was performed at noon at Mr. Fortune's country place at New Augusta, near Indianapolis, with the Rev. Frank S. C. Wicks officiating and only relatives of the bride and groom, including Mr. Bartlett's son, Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., were present. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett departed for Washington, D. C., to visit Mrs. Marshall Field before sailing on the Europa tomorrow for 4 months abroad. On their return they will go to Beverly, Mass.

The former Mrs. Lilly is a member of a well known and prominent Indianapolis family. She is chairman of the Indianapolis chapter of the Red Cross and was a member of the board of incorporators of the National Red Cross 4 years ago. Since her divorce from Eli Lilly she has been living in Boston during the winter and at Beverly Farms in the summer. Her summer place is on the estate of Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge, who has been an intimate friend for a number of years. Mrs. Beveridge was not present, however, for the wedding, as she and her daughter, Abby, are now in Europe. Mrs. Lilly has had numerous artistic interests and devised the codfish shaped brown bottle for cod liver oil [copied from an antique brown bottle she found in a Boston antique shop] used by the Lilly company.

Mr. Bartlett is a generous and sympathetic patron of art and is a painter himself as well as a fastidious collector. After an orthodox schooling in art he became interested in the modems, and since then has done much to foster and encourage their protagonists. His talks about modern art, given before numerous organizations, have been said to be the most lucid representations of its aims and meanings. His Chicago residence is a recently completed apartment in the 1301 Astor Street building, and he also has a place at Beverly, Mass. He has contributed liberally to the Art institute, one of the gifts being the contents of the Birch-Bartlett gallery, a memorial to his late wife, Henry Birch Bartlett.

Launch New Yacht of Kenneth Smiths.

The Kenkora, the new yacht of the Kenneth Smiths of Winnetka, was launched with due and proper ceremony at the Great Lakes shipyards on Sunday. The boat is a little less than a hundred feet long and is to have a speed of 23 miles an hour. Its speed performance on the trial trip wasn't understand, up to expectations, so it was taken back for observation and adjustments. Somebody who saw the interior of the yacht tells me that it is perfectly stunning, all modern with inlaid wood and chromium. One salon has a panoramic Chicago skyline done in very intricate patterning of wood. The yacht's name is a composite of Mr. and Mrs. Smith's first names, Kenneth and Cora.

The third Chicago June bride of the week will be Miss Jane Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. George Lee of the Ambassador East, whose marriage to William Edward Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Graham, will be solemnized at 4 o'clock this afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church. A reception will follow at the Ambassador East. Miss Martha Lee is to be her sister's sole attendant and Ernest Graham is to be best man for his son. William Fellowes, George Edmunds Mixter, and Edwin O. Dulaney of Louisville, Ky., will be ushers.

About this thing and that — the Revice club adjourned for the summer yesterday after deciding that its annual musical revue, to be given at the Opera house on Oct. 24, will be called "Hit It Up" . . . Louis Eckstein has invited members of the Ravinia Opera club to be his guests at the Ravinia Opera company's performance of "Madame Butterfly" on Monday evening, June 22 . . . Called from the Lake Forester—Miss Edith Cummings gave a dinner on Saturday night for her house guest, Miss Marian Hollins . . . proceeds from the children's dog show that Edith Porter and Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor engineered at the Porter residence a week ago last Saturday were over a hundred dollars and were given to Arden Shore . . . the new Harvey Coates Reed memorial library is to be formally opened on Sunday, about 23,000 volumes having been transferred to its shelves from the old library in the city hall . . . Mrs. Frederick Hauck, the erstwhile Janet Chase, has shipped her favorite horse to Pittsburgh and she and Mr. Hauck have proceeded there after a few days' visit with the Chases . . . Miss Mary Elizabeth and Miss Ethel Johnston and their brothers, Hugh and Hulburd, have taken the John E. Baker house for the summer and are to take possession about the 15th [Mrs. Baker is going east for the summer, Mr. Baker will be at the Deerpath Inn, and the boys, John Jr. and Bruce, are to have a European trip].

Mrs. James M. Hopkins is having the final gathering and demonstration of the rhythm classes conducted by Mabel Katherine Pearce at the Hopkins' Lake Forest place on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Hopkins' daughter, Kay Goodman, is one of the rhythm pupils, and others to take part in the program are Joan Dixon, Sarah Peace, Diana Tagmose, Lucia Waller, and Roza, May, and Ruth Lee

An Informal Party of Song and Poetry.

Margaret Grover Tagmose has sent out invitations for an "informal party of song and poetry" at the Three Arts club on Thursday evening, June 11, at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Howard Linn is to be heard in recitation, and Florence Demorest is to be "at the piano." Supper is to be served in the garden at 10 o'clock.

The parties Miss Louise Badgerow, her prospective husband, Scott Johnston, and Mrs. John W. Douglass. Mr. Clark is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Clark. The wedding was a small simple affair, attended only by members of the immediate families.

Miss Edna Mae Tubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lorin Tubbs of 3100 Sheridan road, was married to Charles D. Peacock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Peacock of 2600 Lake View avenue, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the Drake hotel. The bride wore a Patou model of white satin and a rose pointe lace veil and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias. The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Swayne, wore a green organdy frock embroidered in silver and a wide brimmed picture hat. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Kingsley Colton, Miss Dorothy Tubbs of Hillsdale, Mich.; Miss Frances Paschen, and Miss Jane Lucey, were garbed in mauve organdy over taffeta slips and pink tulle hats. They carried showers of daisies.

Stewart Blair Peacock was best man for the groom and the ushers included Alfred Langtry, Kingsley Colton, Bernard Smith, and John Scott.

Tablet Bares Tax Fixing of Ancient Days

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—Once upon a time there was a rich man who lived in a palace in Seleucia-on-the-Tigris. He had a "drag" with the king, so he didn't have to pay the salt tax. Every six months the king gave him a salt tax exemption certificate. The family owned some beautiful jewels, but had to leave Seleucia quite suddenly, so the jewels were hidden hastily under the floor of the palace.

The jewels remained concealed about two thousand years. Then they were found by University of Michigan archaeologists led by Prof. Leroy Waterman.

Seleucia was a center of near eastern culture from about 300 B. C. to 200 A. D., Prof. Waterman says. At one time it had a population of about 600,000. On the site of the city of Seleucia once was the Babylonian city of Opis, built about 1900 B. C. by contemporaries of the Biblical patriarch, Abraham. Before this was the Sumerian city of Akshak, which dates back to 3000 B. C.

The story of the rich man who lived in Seleucia-on-the-Tigris was reconstructed from evidence found in the ruined palace. Clay tablets, dated six months apart over a period of 25 years, certified that the owner was exempt from the salt tax. A vase containing jewels was found under the floor. The gold and precious stones were as clean and polished as when the owner hid them.

Discoveries in the city of Seleucia, Prof. Waterman believes, will add to the long-sought knowledge of the Parthians. Seleucia was across the Tigris river from the Parthian capital, a Hellenistic city—the most eastern outpost of Greek civilization. The Parthians were impressed by Greek culture and looked to Seleucia for ideas. Prof. Waterman says the untold history of the Parthians in "one of the big gaps in the history of the near east."

Prof. Waterman has directed four seasons of excavation at Seleucia, and leaves soon for Palestine to start excavations near the city of Nazareth, in Galilee, before going to Seleucia in September. The excavations near Nazareth will be made at Saffuriyeh, in ancient times called Sephoris, capital of Galilee in the time of Christ.

The expedition at Seleucia consists of a staff of nine men, directing from 300 to 400 natives.

'A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Request for Old Lumber.

"I have been out of work for a long time and have a family of four to support. I own an empty lot which I bought when I was working and I'd like to build a house on it where we could live for the summer. The lot is near a golf course and it is quite likely that I could get some work to do there, too. If you know of some one who has a supply of old lumber to dispose of, I could use it to build the house. E. B. G."

If you are planning to tear down your frame house preparatory to building another perhaps you'd like to dispose of the old materials by giving them to this man. With them he could provide a fairly comfortable home for his family this summer.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Shirley Mae, aged 4, given a penny the other day, was teasing to go over to the corner store to spend it. I told her to put it in her bank, and she said, "Why shall I save it?"

I replied, "Save it for a rainy day."

She answered, "Yes, and then go out and get wet spending it."

Le Dernier Mot in Aprons Shown Today

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Looking smart at all hours is one of the biggest [if not the very biggest] of the many problems of the woman who directs her own household, plays with her own children, tends to her own garden and other little things like that.

While it is a comparatively simple matter for the business girl to keep looking sartorially fit, it is ever so much more complicated for the woman whose place has turned out to be the home, and yet she simply cannot afford to let herself slip.

Let her cast her eye on the Schiaparelli ensemble shown today and rejoice, for it is the last word in Paris chic and yet 100 per cent practical. Its outstanding feature is an apron. But what an apron! In grass green linen, it is worn over a divided skirt frock of white cotton sponge cloth. It is cut with the back of the bodice encroaching on the front, making a little yoke on the shoulders.

In back it deviates into two points, as you see on the small figure at the left, and these are fastened by white enameled clips, Schiaparelli having abandoned buttons. There is a high pocket in the right front of the skirt into which you stick a huge cotton handkerchief that has orange circles printed on a black ground.

The white cotton frock is shown on the small figure at the right. Inverted plaits mask its division. A wide stitched belt of the white cotton echoes the horizontal stitchings that run down the front from the décolleté to the top of the plaits.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover, who went to Hollidaysburg, Pa., to attend the graduation of her niece, Miss Janet Large, at Highland Hall, returned to the White House this evening accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, and Miss Large.

Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow of New Jersey have leased the Georgetown home of former Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. William J. Donovan for their future Washington home. The house, which stands at 30th and R streets, is a fine old mansion built in the early part of the last century and was the former home of Col. Corbin Washington, a great-nephew of George Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch of Chicago, who have spent the winter at the Mayflower in Washington, have closed the apartment and gone to their summer home at Cooperstown, N. Y., accompanied by Mrs. Loesch's mother, Mrs. Stephen G. Browning, who has been here with them this season. Mr. Loesch will return here from time to time for meetings of the national commission on law observance and enforcement, of which he is a member.

Start Trials Today for Best Chorus of Chicago Public Schools

This morning, among 135,000 school children in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Chicago public schools, a contest will be started to find the two best elementary school choruses. Elimination contests, in which 130 different choruses are entered, will be held in the various high school auditoriums throughout the city. These preliminary contests will take three days with the winning groups, numbering about 1,800 pupils, competing in the finals at Orchestra hall on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Grand pianos will be awarded the first place winner of the fifth and sixth grade group and to the victor of the seventh and eighth grade singers. The division for the advancement of music of Lyon & Healy will give the awards and also transport the finalists from the respective schools to Orchestra hall.

The preliminary contests will be held at 9:15 each morning.

Today—Sabin Junior, Gregier Junior, and Hirsch Junior High schools.

Wednesday—Le Moyne and Lowell schools and Hersl Junior High school.

Thursday—Tilden Technical and Phillips Junior High schools.

Food Talk.

M. H. asks: "Can you give me a recipe for fresh strawberry pie—not the crust, just the filling—the kind that seems to have uncooked whole berries with a transparent, red, jelly-like sauce over them?"

One quart of perfect berries is required to prepare such a pie. A cooled baked pastry shell is filled with 3 cups of the berries that have been sweetened. To sweeten the berries sprinkle sugar over them and let stand in the refrigerator for at least an hour. Personally I like to cut the berries in half because the sweetness more thoroughly penetrates the fruit.

Recently I made a strawberry pie and for the three cups of berries that went into the pie I used ¼ cup of sugar. The one making the pie, however, will have to use her own judgment about the amount of sugar used, because berries differ so much in their natural sweetness. The berries should stand long enough for the sugar to dissolve. Part of it will be absorbed and part will form a thick red sirup in the bottom of the container. While the berries are standing in the sugar prepare the jellylike sauce that goes over them.

This sauce in reality is an aspic. It is prepared from strawberry juice and pulp and only enough gelatin to produce a soft jelly. The following amount is enough sauce to cover three cups of berries. Crush the quart and pass through a wire strainer to remove the seeds and the coarse one cup of berries remaining from the there should be ¼ cup—and add to the gelatin mixture. Then stand the gelatin mixture in a pan of cold water. est fibers of the pulp. There should be about ½ cup of this pulp and sirup. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar and heat quickly to the boiling point, stirring as you heat. Have 2 teaspoons of granulated gelatin soaking in the meantime in 1 tablespoon of cold water. Add this softened gelatin to the hot strawberry liquid and stir until dissolved. Drain the collected liquid off the sweetened berries—In about 10 minutes the gelatin should start to congeal if the surrounding water is kept cold by changing it.

When the gelatin begins to congeal arrange the sweetened berries in the cooled pastry shell and quickly pour the gelatin mixture all over the berries, being careful to cover the entire surface of the berries on top. Let stand a few minutes, until the sauce gelatinizes, before serving. This red transparent sauce is not only attractive, but it also prevents the berries from oxidising and losing their fine color and it adds to the fine eating quality of the pie.

Kleenex is modern health measure—a delicate tissue you use once and destroy

MANY people began using Kleenex on the advise of doctors. Others, because their own feelings revolted at the use of a damp and soiled handkerchief.

Kleenex is a delicate tissue, so low in cost that you discard it after a single use. No used handkerchief touches your face, to expose your nose and throat to germs and possibly disease. You select each time a new tissue—exquisitely clean, fresh—and softer than old linen.

The use of Kleenex does away with unpleasant handkerchief washing. It is a great saving of money where washing is done commercially.

Kleenex is ideal for children. For office workers. For use during colds and hay fever. [Try Kleenex just once, and the old-time handkerchief will seem impossible.

Kleenex comes in smart, modern boxes, at 25c, 50c and $1. At drug, dry goods and department stores.

Bacteriological Tests Show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

These reports are based on tests performed on handkerchiefs in the laboratories of Dr. Bertram Feuer, Chicago bacteriologist.

WHEAT PROVIDES ONLY 8% OF FARM INCOME, U.S. SAYS

Agricultural Prices Show Further Decline.

BY PAUL POTTER.

That wheat provides less than 8 per cent of the cash income of American agriculture, with cotton, milk, hogs, cattle, and eggs and chickens each contributing a larger percentage, was shown in a report issued yesterday by the federal bureau of agricultural economics.

"Asked to name the most important farm product from the standpoint of cash income, a group of urbanites replied 'wheat, the newspapers are full of it,'" declared the report. "As a matter of fact, practically 60 per cent of the farmers' cash income from agricultural products is received from cotton, live stock, and poultry products."

The cash income from milk, as shown by United States department of agriculture, estimates for the fire year period, 1925 to 1929, is almost one and one-half billion dollars. It accounts for 14.52 per cent of the total farm income. Cotton lint and seed form 14.59 per cent, the report indicates.

Hogs Third in Income.

"Hogs, which use most of the corn crop, rank third in importance, with a value in excess of one and one-fourth billion dollars," the report states, "they provide almost 13 per cent of the total farm income. Cattle and calves are fourth with a cash income of over one billion dollars."

A further decline in farm commodity prices between April 15 and May 15 was recorded in the bureau's statement. On the latter date, the index of general farm price levels was but 66 per cent of the pre-war level, 33 points below a year ago, and the lowest since 1910.

Average taxes per acre of farm real est.te declined slightly in 1930 compared to 1929, the first decline in the seventeen years of record," the bureau report states. "The net decrease for the United States averaged about 40 cents per $100 of tax.

Coast Taxes Quadrupled.

Farm taxes have quadrupled in the Pacific coast states since 1913, the survey shows, while the 1930 index of the north central states was 238, compared with a basis of 100 for 1913.

"It is not improbable that we have reached a level of farm land values in areas of good land adapted to modern technical methods which will not be subject to serious further recession," declares Dr. L. C. Gray, the agricultural economics bureau specialist in charge of government studies of land values.

CONANT H. HATCH, 38, RICH MANUFACTURER, IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

St. Joseph, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—Conant H. Hatch, 38, wealthy manufacturer who was defendant in a $250,000 breach of promise suit in New York last winter, was sued for divorce today by his 25 year old wife, Mrs. Marjorie Woodruff Hatch.

The New York suit against Hatch, who is vice president of the St. Joseph iron works, was dismissed after the plaintiff, Huerta Rittel, Viennese beauty, had testified regarding her association with Hatch in Europe.

Mrs. Hatch charges cruelty in her divorce suit and also accused her husband of being constantly with Miss Rittel while he was abroad.

Night Flying to Speed Passengers from Coast

Under new air mail schedules which became effective yesterday over Boeing Air Transport's Chicago-San Francisco line air passengers will be able to breakfast on the Pacific coast and fly to Chicago in time for breakfast on the following day. The change in schedule, effected with the approval of the postoffice department for the improvement of air mail service, will bring night flying on the Boeing line between Rock Springs, Wyo., and Iowa City. There will also be two night departures from San Francisco and one each from Los Angeles and Seattle.

Policemen to Hear Dope Trial Verdict Today

The case against Sergt. Wellington Britton, who claims to be an Indian, and Detective James Howland, Negro, policemen accused of violating the federal narcotic law, went to the jury in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court yesterday afternoon. Judge Barnes instructed the jury to return a sealed verdict, which will be opened at 10 a. m. today.

The two policemen were accused of taking narcotics from two Negro dope peddlers and illegally disposing of the drugs.

The smartest and most practical of them all. With one simple gesture—donning or doffing the coat—you can change from a perfect sports frock to a tailored summer ensemble. Both the frock and coat are of silk, in the contrast which marks fashions of the newest chic.

SCALLOPED—on its short sleeves, its collar, its chic side closing—you'll lose your heart to this little sports frock. The separate coat is of eyelet embroidered silk with a twisted cord belt. In sizes 14 to 20.

DOUBLE breasted—a terribly smart little tennis frock—sleeveless, of course, with full pleats in the skirt. The separate coat slips on over the frock and transforms it into the most demure formality, 14 to 20.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM

The Railroad of a Great Empire

A Message from L. A. Downs, President Illinois Central System.

The Illinois Central System is producer of transportation service for a great inland empire, the economic heart of the United States.

Fourteen states with a population of 38,500,000 and with 56,900 industrial plants having an output of $18,300,000,000 a year constitute this empire.

This empire produces one-third of the cotton, three-fifths of the grain, one-third of the tobacco, nearly all the sugar cane, one-half of the livestock, three-tenths of the lumber, one-third of the coal and seven-tenths of the iron ore that are produced in the country.

Serving this great empire day in and day out—hauling its freight, carrying its passengers, contributing to its upbuilding—is the task to which the Illinois Central System is committed.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Chicago, June 1, 1931.

This is the first of a series of sketches descriptive of this railroad. Others will follow, telling about its properties, its owners, its personnel and its patrons.

AMERICANS LEAD BRITISH OPEN GOLF TRIALS

AHOY! TRIBUNE CANOE CRUISE STARTS JUNE 27

Scouts to Camp on Flambeau River.

BY BOB BECKER.

VINCENT SMITH.

Boys attention! The fourth annual Boy Scout canoe cruise will travel down the Flambeau river in northern Wisconsin beginning the morning of June 27.

This is the message that already has been flashed to the Boy Scout groups in Chicagoland. THE TRIBUNE will sponsor another river cruise for Scouts this year and boys who want to go along are advised to make their applications at once to Scout headquarters, 7 West Washington street, or to their scoutmaster. The cruise is planned by the executive board of the Scout council and worked out in cooperation with the staff of the organization.

Visit Fourth State.

Wisconsin will be the fourth state in the middle west to play host to the TRIBUNE'S annual camp and paddle expedition since these cruises were inaugurated. In 1928 a party of Chicago Scouts in 16 canoes paddled down the Rock river in Illinois from Rockford to the Mississippi river at Rock Island. In 1929 the expedition went to Michigan and covered nearly 100 miles on the beautiful Muskegon river. Last summer the cruise was held on the Tippecanoe river, starting at Winamac, Ind., and finishing on the Wabash at Lafayette.

Now since Wisconsin and one of its most beautiful streams, the Flambeau, according to plans being worked out in connection with Chicago Scout executives, the cruise will start at Park Falls and finish at Ladysmith.

The annual camping and canoeing trip for older Scouts who like outdoor life and have had enough experience to get along on such a cruise is designed to give a group of city boys a chance to practice many of the things that they have learned in their troops while working for merit badges. A trip such as this one leaving Chicago the night of June 26 will give the youngsters an opportunity to display all their camping tricks, their knowledge of woodcraft, birds, canoeing, and even fishing, because the Flambeau is a well known fishing stream, especially for pike and muskies.

Here Are Requirements.

Any 15 or 16 or 17 year old Boy Scout is eligible for the cruise. The only requirements are these: Every boy who applies to go as a member of the Flambeau cruise must be at least a first class Scout, capable of handling a canoe with some degree of proficiency, and know how to swim.

Vincent Smith of the Lincoln Park boat club, formerly single blade champion canoeist, will test applicants on their knowledge of canoe work before they are accepted for the cruise. This test will be given in Lincoln park about ten days or a week before the cruise starts. The exact date will be announced later.

Following the requirements of former years, no Scout will be considered for this cruise unless he has won his swimming merit badge. Inasmuch as the expedition spends most of its time on water, any youngster who does not know how to swim expertly would be out of place. Moreover, as a matter of safety, the ability to swim well is important.

Cost Will Be Small.

Complete details on the Flambeau cruise, the outfit required, and other facts may be obtained by writing Roy Ahn at Boy Scout headquarters. The expense to each boy who goes will be small.

Pup tents for the entire party, cooking utensils, food boxes and similar equipment will be furnished by Scout headquarters, but boys are required to bring their personal outfit and blankets and pay for their food while in camp. THE TRIBUNE, in sponsoring this river adventure in the big woods of northern Wisconsin, will assemble canoes for the party and bear other expenses of the trip.

This year, as on former cruises, two experienced Scoutmasters will be in the party to supervise the recreational activities of the boys. The presence of these assistants is assurance that the Scouts will have daily supervision comparable to that in a summer camp.

Spend Nights in Tents.

There will be no sleeping in fishing shacks or log cabins on this cruise. The leader will pick a camp site for the party each night and then everybody will set up tents and cook over open wood fires. And there will be kitchen police, wood to cut, portages to make, water to be hauled and other camp chores for everybody.

THE TRIBUNE will award a canoe cruise gold medal to every Scout who makes this Flambeau river trip and acquits himself like a real camper during the course of the trip. In addition, there will be opportunities to win special awards in swimming, canoeing, campcraft, firebuilding, and other outdoor sports, because one afternoon of the cruise is set aside for an outdoor sports contest. Inasmuch as the Flambeau river is well stocked with fish, lessons in bait casting and a fishing contest probably will be on the program this year.

THE GUMPS—MAYBE IT WAS TWO OTHER FELLOWS

Turners Guiding Force in U. S. Gymnastic System

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The American Turnerbund, Chicago members of which will take part in the Chicagoland Sports Congress to be sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field, June 21, had its origin in a movement similar to that which brought the Pilgrim Fathers to seek freedom in young America of the seventeenth century.

During the 83 years of their existence in the United States, the turners, as they are generally known, have become an integral force in American physical education, and it is to the teachings of Fried-Ludwig Jahn, their founder, that the modern public playground system in this country is attributed.

Hundreds of Chicagoland disciples of Jahn will participate in the Sports Congress, the largest demonstration of mass athletics ever held in the United States. The turners, a majority of whom are of German ancestry, will join other gymnastic organizations, including those of Bohemian, Polish and Scandinavian descent, in the mass drill which will climax the program. Approximately 5,000 men, women and children athletes from all parts of Chicagoland are expected to participate in this event.

Hundreds in Tug of War.

Preceding that mass drill will be a series of demonstrations bringing together champions and experts in gymnastics, marching, fencing, and calisthenics. Among other features of the Sports Congress will be a tug of war which will engage hundreds of men. Relay races also will be run on a grand scale, with dozens of teams from the various societies competing.

The Sports Congress will be the first of its kind engaging Americans of various racial origins in one place and at one time. Each society, of course, holds its own annual meet, such as the turners and the Czecho-Slovakian Sokol clubs. At five year intervals, each of these journeys to its home country to compete with thousands at Prague and Cologne.

The turner organization sprang from and was nurtered by adversity. Jahn founded it at a time when the national vitality of Germany, laboring under Napoleonic oppression, was at a low ebb. By encouraging physical exercise and fostering patriotic ideals among his students, he hoped to supply his country with thousands of young men who would be fit and willing for a fight to liberate their fatherland.

Hundreds Respond to Call.

Accordingly, in the spring of 1811, he organized near Berlin the first Turnverein, from which hundreds of others soon sprang. The boys and young men of the German capital responded to his call in large numbers, and the first turners were a success, although they were later to encounter difficulties which ultimately led to the founding of the American Turnerbund.

Jahn and his turners soon found their activity and the patriotic purpose back of it under suspicion by the parties in power. Jahn eventually was imprisoned on charges of treason, but his organization continued to flourish, attracting members from all parts of Germany. Before his death in 1852, Jahn was recognized as a national hero.

The political turmoil in Germany eventually caused hundreds of the turners to flee to this country. Notable among these were three of Jahn's disciples, Carl Beck, Carl Follen, and Francis Leiber, who arrived in New York in 1824. Beck, a cultured patriot who had been banished to Switzerland for his writings against the government, founded a boys' school at the summit of Round Hill in Northampton, Mass. There he built the first American gymnasium with a system of physical education based on Jahn's teachings. His work soon bore fruit, for Yale and Amherst students took up turner methods of exercise a few years later.

Teaches at Harvard.

Follen, who taught at the Round Hill school, later was called to Harvard university as professor of church history, and later German language and literature. At Harvard he introduced German gymnastics and established the second gymnasium of this country under the Jahn influence.

Leiber was another German patriot, a friend of Beck and Follen, who came to America and played an important part in popularizing the turner system. Eventually their proficiency in other fields led them to abandon the teaching of gymnastics, but the pioneer work of this trio planted the seed of the turners who came to America following the suppression of the Ger-

GOV. CARLTON'S RACE BILL VETO SHOCKS HIS HOST

It Seems He Bit Hand That Fed Him.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—Indignation is rife here among the members of the Florida winter drinking and gambling set over the veto of the Florida parimutuel bill and persons are going around town uttering profane remarks about Doyle Carlton, the governor of the state, and wondering how he happened to come unhitched.

It had been widely understood, or misunderstood, that the governor was, if not favorable to the bill, then, anyway, not hostile to it, and he could have spared the local contingent of the winter drinking and frittering set the bitterness of disappointment if he had announced his position a while ago. He also might have saved much of the time of the Florida state legislature, although this would have been a negligible saving at the best and perhaps shouldn't be mentioned.

Wrath Will Be Awful.

The wrath of the local contingent of the set is likely to be pretty awful as the members are announcing flatly that at least a thousand of them who are not entitled to the vote in Florida would not vote for Gov. Carlton even if they were entitled to do so.

A delicate social and moral question arises now that the governor has vetoed the bill, because his excellency was taken up socially and entertained openly at dinner at one of the most expensive mansions on Palm Beach quite a spell ago under the impression that he was in favor of the mutuels.

One member of the set offers the opinion that under the law the host of that evening in Palm Beach could make the police back the wagon up to the state house in Tallahassee and arrest the governor for obtaining a full program of millionaires' type caviar, as big as mothballs, terrapin, and the breast of honey-fed humming birds, together with refreshments for self and wife, under false pretenses.

But the governor might be able and willing to make a cash settlement of this score, whereas he can hardly undo the precedent. A Florida politician has been entertained in the principality of Palm Beach, the intention having been to put him at his ease with his betters and also put him in a frame of mind, just as sometimes King George brings in trival kings from Africa whom it is desired to put in a frame of mind and entertains them at Buckingham palace. The difference is however, that the tribal kings deliver, whereas the governor of Florida did not, and the unfortunate host can't efface the affair by crying "out, damned spot."

Splits Palm Beach, Mainland.

The least worst consequence of this deliberately unfriendly act of the governor will be a severance of diplomatic interests between Palm Beach and the mainland, a terrible but appropriate revenge.

Mr. Joseph E. Widener, of Palm

Three Horses Scratched in English Derby; Field Cut to 28

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 1.—Derby week opened today with some sensations and some straight tips on Wednesday's great race at Epsom Downs by owners, trainers, and jockeys.

Nineteen persons who drew Carmelus, including two Americans, James Duncan of New York and H. A. Harrell of Cambridge, Mass., and those who drew Spanish Main and Poker D'As in the Irish sweepstake, had their hopes of winning $150,000 dashed when these three horses were scratched.

A field of twenty-eight runners is left, but that figure is almost certain to be reduced. Link Boy is not a positive starter. He is being examined by an expert for an internal disorder and will be taken for the deciding gallop tomorrow. Doubts about his condition dropped the betting price to 33 to 1. Primitif, at 100 to 1, also may not run, while Boyd Davis, who has three 100 to 1 entrants—Te Hau, Te Kuru, and Klatere—has not decided which of the three will run.

Discuss Derby at Luncheon.

Famous figures in the racing world discussed the chances of their own and horses of others today at the annual Press Club Derby luncheon. Edgar Wallace presided.

Lord Derby has no horse entered in the race, but he tried to draw some indication from the toast that was drunk "To the Derby Winner."

He said he noticed that some owners remained seated and some stood up. The Aga Khan, Dick Dawson and Michael Beary, owner, trainer, and jockey of Pomme D'Api, kept their seats while the toast was drunk, but Lord Roseberry, owner of Sandwich, on the other hand, stood up.

The Aga Khan said his trainer had told him to hope for the best and expect the worst.

"Whenever I expect a horse to win he doesn't," he declared, adding, "Usually the unexpected happens."

Dawson admitted frankly that he fancied Pomme D'Api, saying: "I will be disappointed if he doesn't fulfill my hopes."

Donoghue Picks Cameronian.

Steve Donoghue, Link Boy's rider, said he was sorry to be unable to advise backing his mount, although he hoped he would be all right by Wednesday. "My fancies at the moment are Cameronian, then Dr. Doolittle, with Orphen for third place," he said.

J. A. Dewar, owner of the favorite, Cameronian, said if his horse did not win he would like to see the race go to Dr. Doolittle.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

CUBS AND SOX.

WHEN "White Sox Fan" wrote to this column criticizing sportsmanship of north side fans and "Cub Fan" retorted in kind, it started a flood of contributions. While The Wake does not purpose to become a clearing house for argument, a few pot shots at one another may not be unwholesome for our local rooters. At any rate, it shows that loyalty still survives. On that theory, listen to this from a feminine fan:

"For years I have been a Cub fan of the breed which sticks to our team, win or lose. And let me tell you something—I may be a Cub fan, BUT I certainly don't pan the Sox. If Mr. Sox Fan would attend a few games at Cub park he would find a great difference in atmosphere at the two parks. For one thing, we don't utter 'Boo' noises when the Sox score goes up on the board. In fact, we like to see them win.

"There are real fans at Cub park. However, I wonder if fan is the word for it. I hate it. I think we mean true sportsmanship, and that's hard to find in crowds of thousands when those thousands are not the same people every day. Bad sports are everywhere, and they are the ones who make themselves seen and heard. We, the real supporters of the team, overlook these distasteful incidents and let it go at that. We have a fine team, a good manager, and we're back of them—and how! Betty."

"Why all this razzing of Hornsby and the Cubs? Are we Cub fans a bunch of impatient sports? Let Hornsby run the team. Many of those who criticize would resent having their own methods criticized.

"Ellis Horn."

"Cub fans deserve the criticism they receive. For years they professed a great superiority over us south siders, and each fall our Sox players, no matter what their league position, trimmed the Cubs in the city series. Then the scale turned, and now they have only sarcasm and jibes for fellows trying just as hard as their own overtouted athletes.

"Michael D."

THAT OLD ARTESIAN WELL.

In attending a Kiwanis meeting in the west side sector we way back whenned to the time when dad hitched up the horse and buggy, placed two or three jugs therein, and drove way out to Garfield park to the old artesian well, where the jugs were filled with the sulphur water. The reminiscence was at the Midwest Athletic club, located opposite Garfield park.

Immediately a Kiwanian interrupted to reply that a tributary of that well was in the club basement, where it was necessary to harness it in building lest it undermine the foundations. After the meeting we were taken down among various light and water mains and given a drink of the water. It was good water, but it somehow seemed to lack the flavor as of ancient eggs which we had known as a boy. Things just ain't what they used to be no more!

U. S. C. Picked to Retain U. S. Track Honors

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Southern California, which successfully defended its intercollegiate track championship last Saturday at Philadelphia, appears likely to repeat its 1930 victory in the national collegiate meet at Stagg field this week-end. The Trojans scored 46 and a fraction points on Franklin field last week, placing in ten of the fifteen events, and in that scoring they compiled records which, in the main, should withstand the assault of the stars of the central and southern states in the tenth renewal of the national games.

Last year the Trojans won with 55 27-70 points. But the scoring in the national collegiates is double that of the scoring used last week at Penn. Five places count, with 5 points awarded for first place, in the eastern meet. At Stagg field the scoring will be: First, 10 points; second, 8; third, 6, fourth, 4; fifth, 2; sixth, 1. Southern California's score last week, by this system, would have been more than 92 points.

Place in Ten Events.

The Trojans won six events at Philadelphia and placed in four others. Four of these individual champions can be expected to win titles here, while two others probably have an even chance against the field. Another, James Stewart, who high jumped 6 feet 4 inches for second place, with William O'Connor of Columbia the winner at one inch higher, must be counted in the competition for the national collegiate title.

Champions and Marks.

The four intercollegiate champions and their records, which if produced again this week-end should win national titles, follow:

Frank Wykoff, 100 yard dash, 9 6-10 seconds. Eddie Tolan, second at Penn and other sprinters in this section can run as fast, but Wykoff, who holds the American record of 9 4-10 seconds, must be considered the favorite.

Victor Williams, 440 yard dash, 47 4-10 seconds. Williams' time at Penn equaled the world record.

Richard Barber, broad jump, 25 feet 3½ inches. Barber's only competitor is Edward Gordon, of Iowa, present N. C. A. A. champion, who jumped 25 feet last year. Gordon set a relay record at Kansas in April of 25 feet

ROBINS IN TOWN FOR FOUR DAYS; CUBS ARE READY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The picturesque and efficient Brooklyn Robins are in town, ready to start a four game series with the Cubs this afternoon. The game will be the first east-west contest in Chicago this season and the second of the year between the two teams.

The Robins were the victors in the one encounter between the teams this year. They won on May 15, 6 to 4, after Bob Smith had blown up in the fourth inning to give up a pass, a homer, a double and a triple for four runs after having had a 4 to 1 lead.

The featured players of the Brooklyn troupe, including Babe Herman and Frank O'Doul, who were slow about getting under way, are now going good and are eager to get well up in the first division.

Through winning eight out of nine games last week the Cubs have moved up to where it may be mathematically possible for them to go into first place during the series with the Giants, which opens next Saturday.

Cards Battle Giants.

The Cardinals and Giants, who have been alternating the first place and second place occupancy during the last few weeks, this afternoon will start a four game series which is expected to be a grand cutthroat party. If it is and the revived Cubs can resume their 1928, 1929 and 1930 habitual supremacy over the Robins, the Cubs will be in swell shape to open the Giant series. When the Giants come here, the Robins move to St. Louis.

The club is getting fine work from two of its staff of three lefthanders, Les. Sweetland and Jakie May, who between them have won seven of the Cubs' 21 victories, while being charged with none of the 15 losses.

In starting Hemsley in two of the first three games since joining the Cubs, Manager Hornsby has indicated that the brisk young catcher will share much of the work with Gabby Hartnett. Hemsley, despite the belief that all catchers are supposed to be slow afoot, is one of the fastest runners in the majors.

SOX AT PHILADELPHIA

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox went away from Chicago at noon yesterday in the style and elegance of a twenty hour train, and they hoped that two weeks hence their owner still will have reason to think they are good enough to be transported homeward in the same extra fare fashion.

The jaunt that will take up the attention of the South Siders for the next two weeks is scheduled to open today in the home of the world champion Athletics. Manager Bush is going to let the Macks have a look at Pat Caraway, the long southpaw who already has won six games.

Reynolds on Train.

Among the players taken on the train was Carl Reynolds. The best hitter the team owns left his pet charley horse at home. Thus he is physically able to go back to work, and he will do that today in right field. Mr. Smead Jolley, the other ailing outfielder, didn't go along.

Another cripple on the list is Luke Appling, whose case of stage fright a couple of weeks ago caused him to move to the dugout, whence he hasn't budged so far as actual playing is concerned. Luke has a badly jammed second finger on his right hand.

If a southpaw doesn't pitch against the Sox today, Bush is going to try another outfield combination. Fothergill, of course, is going to stay in left until Jolley returns, and Reynolds is a fixture in right as long as injuries are avoided. But Johnny Watwood is going from his temporary job in right to center. If a Mack lefthander appears, the center field work will be assigned to Eichrodt, who is the best fly grabber of the entire troupe. He may not hit many triples but he can catch a lot of them.

Galahad Wins, but Gives His Trainer Scare

BY FRENCH LANE.

A trainer has to be a very patient fellow who handles a horse like six year old Galahad, which won the Thornton claiming purse, the feature race at Washington Park yesterday, and he has to be a man with a very smooth working heart.

His patience would be extended because the old horse fails so often. The condition of his heart would be tested when the old horse finally dashes up to win his race, but shows such a desire to quit within the shadow of victory that he is able to stagger home only by a whisker. So while the people who played Galahad to win the Thornton may think the old son of Prince Galahad, which was quite a noted stretch runner in his day, was the hero, his trainer, Phil Reuter, may deserve the honors.

Mr. Reuter must be a patient man to have fooled with Galahad so long. He must possess an iron heart to have it stand up under the strain and worry Galahad brought him in the last couple of dozen jumps. If there had been one more jump to go even Trainer Reuter's heart might have stopped beating, for Maya would have beaten his horse.

Ever since last Thanksgiving day in New Orleans Galahad has been trying to win a race and fine things were expected of him. One failure after another came until he hit the heavy track at Washington Park yesterday—the sort of track on which he runs best. He was made the favorite mainly because Trainer Reuter had such faith in him.

Galahad, as usual, was last in the early stages. He moved up on the turn and passed 'em all except Maya, which had been in the lead from the start. Next he passed Maya but was going so wide nobody knew where he was going to finish. Then he faltered. Maya, hugging the rail, crawled up an inch at a time and if there had been a few more inches to go would have beaten him.

Far back of the two leaders came Portmanteau in third place. Suitor and Chene brought up the rear guard. Galahad paid $6.42. His very slow mile was run in 1:42 4-5.

MAC SMITH'S 70 BEST OF FIRST ROUND SCORES

Manero Shoots 72; Course Is Heavy.

BY EUGENE SPECK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 1.—This sodden stretch of seacoast in the Firth of Tay today became the scene of a marine battle in the first two qualifying rounds of the British open golf championship, in which a band of native professionals are striving to win the title from the Americans for the first time since 1923.

MAC DONALD SMITH

MacDonald Smith, who had been playing in his native Carnoustie for two months, led the field at the end of the first day's play with a card of 36—34—70. He is ahead of all the probable qualifiers and his play today strengthened the challenge he made last summer, when he followed Bobby Jones by two strokes in both the British open and the American open.

Manero Turns in 72.

Smith turned in his score over the Panmure course at Barry, where half of today's field played. The other half went around over the Carnoustie course, which was chosen for championship play for the first time in its history. Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen made the best American scores at Carnoustie, both coming home with 75's. Joe Turnesa, with a 76, and Joe Kirkwood of Chicago, with a 77, followed them.

Tony Manero, New Jersey professional, was right behind Smith, with a 72 in the play at Panmure. Horton Smith, with 76; Willie Hunter, with 77, and Tommy Armour with 79, were among the other Americans who played over the Barry course.

The scores were mostly ordinary as a result of two days of steady rainfall. Players who watched out for the lakes on the soaked course turned in the best cards at the end of the first 18 of the 36 qualifying holes. The first 100 and ties for the hundredth place will be chosen to go on to the championship play tomorrow night.

Both courses were saturated with rains and covered with casual water. The fairways at Carnoustie were bordered with silt, which was deposited by last night's tide on the brinks of the two brooks which rushed through the links today in miniature freshets. There was a steady rain this morning, and when this relented at noon, a high surface wind sprung up sufficient to blow drives off line, but not high enough to sweep the rain clouds away.

Most Scores High.

The scores were generally high and it is conceded that a pair of 79's will be sufficient to admit anybody to the field for Wednesday's titular competition.

It is the most "open" open championship Great Britain has known since Jones and Hagen started their partnership for the title in 1924. Only Jim Barnes has won it since. A dozen of the professionals present are capable of winning the crown, valued by Hagen at $25,000. Most of these contented themselves today by playing in the middle seventies and the average score of the probable qualifiers was 75.

Today Smith wanted a four yarder at the 18th for a 69, but he failed to get it down. He played level fours out, slipping in a birdie to make up for his mistakes. His second shot overran the hole at the second and he took a five. He was forced into another three at the 155 yard fourth, but a birdie three at the sixth when he holed a 15 yarder and another three at the short seventh carried him out in par.

Has 34 Coming In.

He played championship golf coming in. At the short tenth his tee shot was ten feet from the pin and he dropped it in two. He gained on another birdie at the twelfth. His drive landed within pitching range. A mashie shot landed on the edge of the green and he then pushed a long putt into the cup and walked off with three under fours. He took a five at the long thirteenth and played level fours thereafter for his in card of 34.

Those who played at Carnoustie shot from short tees because the course was bathed by steady rains and it was impossible to gain any roll on the fairways. The best card here was a 72, turned in by R. A. Whitcombe of England. Charles Whitcombe, captain of the British Ryder cup team which will play the Yanks at Columbus, shot an 83.

Among the Yanks at Carnoustie Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, former American open champions, played a steady game. Sarazen displayed brainy golf, with his caddy marking the puddles ahead. Both shot for the highlands to escape the water and both were satisfied with the day's round, since it was only a qualifying round.

One of the features of today's play was the hard going of all the British Ryder cup players. Ernest Whitcombe got a 76, but Fred Robson finished with a 78, and Herbert Jolly, 84. At Barry the scores were a little better. Archie Compston reaped a 72, Bill Davies a 73, and George Duncan a 75.

MUD, LONG SHOTS ORDER OF DAY AT BELMONT TRACK

Beau Jolie Whips My Broom, St. Brideaux.

4—Cousin Jo, Lady Fingers, Flimsy.
5—SWEEP ALL, Pittsburgher, Sunny Lassie.
6—Gold Step, Tombereau, Agincourt.
7—Woodlot, Brush, Volt Meter.

BELMONT PARK.
1—Towee, Happy Play, Floor Walker.
2—Beacon Hill, Luckite, Fair Moss.
3—Seb, Sea Fox, Follow Thru.
4—Pintail, Brocade, Parry.
5—SUNVIR, Impish, Blind Lane.
6—Sims, Condescend, Cuchulain.

New York, June 1.—[Special.]—Mud and beaten favorites today were the order of the day at Belmont Park, where some of the most highly fancied starters wound up at the eighth pole far to the rear of lightly regarded horses. Such was the case in the Pennant purse which saw only three go to the post because of scratches. Beau Jolie, which has the distinction of having punctured the reputation of the fleet Morstone, did the same to the reputation of the Greentree stable's St. Brideaux.

By St. Germans, the sire of Twenty-Grand, St. Brideaux has been dashing hither and yon all spring as a workmate to his illustrious stable mate, which won the Derby, and the two lesser colts Surf Board and Anchors Aweigh. St. Brideaux worked well enough with that trio to send him to the post the 6 to 5 choice in the Pennant but he was a sorry last to Beau Jolie and My Broom.

Beau Jolie won easily by two lengths from My Broom, and five lengths more to the rear, and a very weary runner, was St. Brideaux.

St. Brideaux was in under 108 pounds as against 109 for the winner and 110½ for My Broom. Jockey Tommy Malley sent Beau Jolie to the top right after the break and there the colt stayed. He scored in 1:38 3-5 for the mile and was the fourth consecutive favorite to lose.

Indianapolis Race Result Will Remain Unchanged

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—(AP)—The standing of the leaders in the 500 mile automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway will remain unchanged, the contest board of the American Automobile association announced late today in disallowing protests filed by Harry Hartz, Los Angeles, and by Louis Meyer, Southgate, Cal.

Honor Purdue's First Curve Ball Pitcher

Lafayette, Ind., June 1.—[Special.]—The first curve ball pitcher on Purdue's baseball team, William E. White, son of the third president of the university, will be an honored guest at the annual gala week festivities at Purdue university next weekend. Mr. White, deputy insurance commissioner of West Virginia, is one of three surviving members of the class which was graduated from Purdue in 1881.

In a letter to O. M. Booher, Purdue alumni secretary, Mr. White recalled several interesting incidents of the time when he was in school. He was pitcher on the Purdue team which won the state championship from 1879 to 1881, and his brother Edward was catcher. Edward was a member of the class of '82, and died that same year. White was the first Purdue pitcher to throw a curve ball, and the White brothers battery became well known throughout the state.

Baseball gloves were not in style at that time, and masks for catchers were just coming into use. Mr. White laments the loss of a practice game, 7 to 4, to the Indianapolis professional team in 1881, the loss coming because Edward White broke his thumb catching a foul tip and was unable to continue the game.

Emerson E. White served as president of Purdue from 1876 to 1883. He reorganized the plan of study and laid the foundation upon which was built the present teaching system.

William E. White has been a teacher, lawyer, banker, and since 1916 has been deputy insurance commissioner of West Virginia, with his home and headquarters at Charleston.

nard, gave the crowd a thrill in the fourth race, but had to take a licking by about an inch at the hands of Johnny Schorr's Baggage Maid. It wasn't Ada Epinard's fault, for Jockey J. McCoy, who rode Baggage Maid, was the balance of power. He rode a finish like you read about in the fiction books, whipping, kicking, yelling and pushing. It took everything he had to get the narrow verdict. After he sent Baggage Maid to the front a hundred strides from the line of finish the daughter of Epinard came again and would have won in one more jump.

The others in the field of 11 were far back. All Girls getting third money, but the battle between Baggage Maid and Apa Epinard is one to write home about. It thrilled the crowd. A crowd that wouldn't warm up to such a finish would not be a typical race crowd. Those sons and daughters of Epinard all seem to be game to the core.

Trainer Jack Middleton will have to do a lot of fast work to get Epithet ready for the American Derby, for when the colt that beat Jamestown last year was turned over to him at Lincoln Fields yesterday, Middleton learned that the fastest he has gone in a trial this year was a half in :53.

"He looks as if he had been near the point of racing and had been let up on," Middleton said. Middleton hopes to get Epithet ready for the American Derby, but is the kind of trainer who will not rush a horse to the extent of breaking him down for any sort of stake.

Down east some horsemen claimed Epithet was troubled with mushy ankles. If so this has not been discovered since he reached Chicago.

SENN SENIORS QUALIFY EIGHT FOR PREP MEET

Senior field athletes of Senn High school yesterday qualified for eight places in the city high school outdoor track championship meet which will be held Saturday morning at Dyche stadium. Austin was next with five qualifiers. The trials were held at Stagg field.

In the junior qualifying competition Roosevelt led with fourteen places. The qualifiers:

ARIZONA POLO FOUR MAY STAY EAST FOR MEET

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The Arizona university polo team may stay in the east to compete in the intercollegiate championship tournament opening here on June 13 if proper mounts can be borrowed and the unanimous consent of the five schools that make up the Intercollegiate Polo association is obtained.

Arizona did not bring ponies east for the three week invasion and Saturday's 11 to 9 defeat by Yale, despite a six goal handicap, was attributed partly to the team mounts. Arizona defeatd Army in a previous match.

F. S. O'Reilly, secretary of the Intercollegiate Polo association, said that definite word on the unanimous consent probably would be received by tomorrow from Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Penn Military, and Army, the five association members.

GOV. CARLTON'S RACE BILL VETO SHOCKS HIS HOST

It Seems He Bit Hand That Fed Him.

Beach, has been operating the racing plat at Hialeah, outside Miami, for several winters, but he has often intimated that if the state did not give him a pari-mutuel law he would abandon the plant to the weeds and the people to their fate. If he should now do this, the reprisal would inflict serious hardship not only on the merchants and hotel owners of Miami but also on a large number of nonresident or part time Miamians engaged in the bookmaking, faro-dealing, piano sitting, crooning, bootlegging and horse professions, to say nothing of the bell hopping, touting and short order cooking and waiting professions.

May Be Test of Law.

Mr. Widener had promised to spend a million dollars, employing Florida labor, to beautify the Hialeah track and the population of Miami, at least, was adequately grateful to Mr. Bountiful from up the coast. If the bill had been beaten in the legislature, his patience might have been less severely tried, but the governor's unexpected veto after the bill had passed, must be considered with the Palm Beach dinner in mind. He might even buy the state and fire the governor.

There may now occur a direct test of Miami's ability to exist according to law. The gambling industry was almost suppressed in the two Miamis, except at the horse track, last winter, and if the same enforcement is imposed next winter and the racing plant lies idle, there will be little entertainment there to divert the spending element from Cuba. If the climate is quite as gentle, it is cheaper, and the children graduate from school until they translate a handbook.

Mr. Widener's earnest belief, repeated, that horse racing is cost to keep the United States cavalry plied with excellent mounts, never has communicated itself ers. It seems an expensive and about way of achieving the The same amount of money spent on racing one way and would keep the United States ices supplied with planes. It seem more frank merely to he and his rich friends like to race horses and that the people to gamble and watch them run.

Tuned in with MAN Style

By a landslide vote men elect Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians and the Robt. Burns Panatela their preference in orchestras and cigars. Both sound a keynote in MAN STYLE, and every Monday night Lombardo's music broadcasts manliness in smoking.

Substance—sweetness—style! That is what all men like. The Robt. Burns Panatela has all three—smart shapeliness, unusual mildness, and masculine smartness which men, more and more, relish in their smoking.

Listen in every Monday night to Guy Lombardo's rhythmic man style—light a Robt. Burns Panatela—and slip into time with smoking that has been the gentleman's choice for generations.

HOLD CATHOLIC LEAGUE TRACK MEET TOMORROW

The annual Chicago Catholic High school league track and field meet, which was postponed because of inclement weather last Saturday, will be run tomorrow at Soldiers' field. De La Salle academy, which won the title in two consecutive years, again appears as the favorite.

De La Salle's hopes of amassing points rest on Harry Smith, who won the quarter mile event last year, and Harry Hehir, who set a record in the half mile race last year. Loyola, St. Ignatius, and Leo are among the leading contenders for the championship.

ATTORNEY FOR ESTELLE TO SEE DEMPSEY IN RENO

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1.—(AP)—Discussion of plans of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and his wife, Estelle Taylor of the movies, which have been kept secret, are to be continued again in Reno, Nev.

Joseph Scott, attorney for Miss Taylor, left tonight for Reno, where he will confer with Dempsey and the ex-actress' attorney. Scott was in Reno last week, but was called home by other business matters.

CALIFORNIA SENDS ITS CREWS EAST FOR BIG REGATTA

Berkeley, Cal., June 1.—(AP)—Varsity and junior varsity crews of the University of California left today for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to compete in the annual intercollegiate regatta, June 13.

Lake Forest Wins Title in Two College Circuits

Mount Morris, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—Lake Forest College baseball team won a 2-0 decision over Mount Morris college today, thereby establishing itself champion of both the Little Nineteen and Northern Illinois conferences. Capt. Orth of Lake Forest turned in a fine pitching performance, allowing Mount Morris only six scattered hits and striking out thirteen.

Tryon and Mills Named Co-Captains at Illinois

Champaign, Ill., June 1.—[Special.]—With the vote a tie between them, R. E. Tryban of Duquoin and George Mills, Waukegan, were elected co-captains of the University of Illinois baseball team for next year. Tryban, a junior, served as captain this year. Frank Purma of Ellsworth, Kas., was elected captain of the Illinois track team for next year.

Joe Farley, Star Swimmer, Knife Victim at Dance

Carmel, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—Joe Farley, 25, New York Athletic club star swimmer, was stabbed several times and seriously injured during a free for all fight in a dance pavilion yesterday, it was made known today. Two men charged with attacking Farley are held for the grand jury on assault charges.

Ray Ruddy, American swimming champion, also was involved.

Several men came into the dance pavilion at Lake Oscawana, nine miles north of Peekskill, and a fight started. Farley, who is a boxer as well as a swimmer, felled three of his assailants before he dropped to the floor with deep knife wounds in the back, chest, and over the eyes. Ruddy was not injured.

Police arrested Frank Paonessa, 30, and Peter Garulla, 25, both from Stamford.

U. S. C. Picked to Retain U. S. Track Honors

4⅝ inches, but he has not jumped within a foot of that since.

William Graber, pole vault, 14 feet ½ inch. Graber will be pressed by Verne McDermont of Illinois and Tom Warne of Northwestern. Neither has jumped 14 feet, but each has come within less than 2 inches of that height during college competition. Incidentally, Graber's mark last Saturday lacked one inch of tying the world's record.

Two Unlikely to Repeat.

The other two Trojan I. C. A. A. A. title holders, Bob Hall, shot put, and Capt. Ernie Payne, in the 220 yard low hurdles, probably will not repeat their victories at Stagg field. Hall won at Penn with a mark of 49 feet 1⅞ inches. Sammy Behr of Wisconsin has beaten that and so has Hugh Rhea of Nebraska, while Clarence Munn of Minnesota is a possibility.

Payne won the low hurdles in 23 6-10 seconds at Pennsylvania. Jack Keller of Ohio State was timed in 23 5-10 seconds when he won in the recent Western conference games. Lee Sentman, second to Keller that afternoon, won the low hurdles in the national collegiates last year in 23 2-10 seconds. Payne was fifth in that race.

Thirteen Trojan track stars scored in the meet last week, and marks of the seven men who did not win championships also are of sufficient merit to gain points at Stagg field, particularly since six places will count in the scoring.

Stanford Strong in Field.

Stanford university, which placed second in the eastern meet, of course is Southern California's greatest rival. Fifteen Stanford athletes placed in the intercollegiates, although only two, Bob Jones in the discus and Ben Eastman in the half mile, won championships. If Jones repeats his throw of 159 feet 2¼ inches, he ought to win at Stagg field, but Eastman's title is threatened by Dale Letts of Chicago. Letts won the Big Ten race in 1 minute 54 4-10 seconds, the same time Eastman had last Saturday.

Stanford's strength is in the shot put and discus, where it had six men in the intercollegiates. The three shot putters, who took second, third, and fourth less than a foot behind Hall, will have Sammy Behr of Wisconsin, Hugh Rhea, Nebraska, and Clarence Munn, Minnesota, threatening their positions.

Stanford also had first, third and fourth in the discus, but Kabat of Wisconsin should be in the top flight at Stagg field to check an increase of points in that event.

Strong Competition in Hurdles.

Butler and West of Stanford took third and fourth in the broad jump in the east and certainly cannot improve with Barber and Gordon in the competition. Alvin Ray, Stanford's fourth place javelin thrower at Penn, may advance to third position Saturday, but that will be offset probably by Nisbet dropping a notch in the low hurdles. He was third in the east, but Sentman, Payne, and Keller are rated superior.

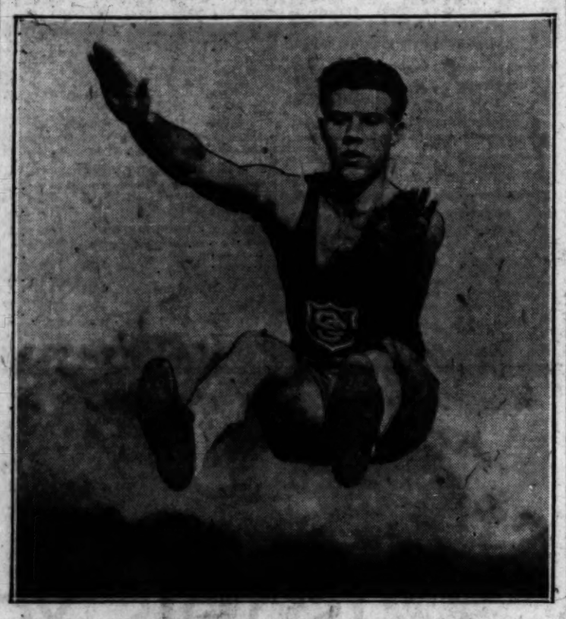
Stanford does not rate to win as many points Saturday as a week ago, while Southern California's chances are as good as they were in the east.

Interest in the meet rests largely on third place, which should go to a Big Ten team. Wisconsin's Big Ten supremacy, based largely on field events, will suffer in the national competition, and thus Michigan and Illinois at least have an equal chance with the Badgers to finish third behind the two coast universities.

RICHARDSON TEAM WINS.

Home runs by Block and Ross featured the 14 to 2 victory of O. W. Richardson & Co. over Mandel Bros in the State Street Merchants' Baseball league yesterday. Root, the Richardson pitcher, allowed three hits.

SEEKS NATIONAL HONORS



Richard Barber, University of Southern California athlete who set a new eastern collegiate broad jump record of 25 feet 3½ inches at Philadelphia last Saturday, will perform in the national college meet at Stagg field Friday and Saturday. The national record is 25 feet 10⅝ inches, set by De Hart Hubbard of Michigan in 1925.

CROFTON PLANS BIG RACE PLANT; COST $2,000,000

San Francisco, Cal., June 1.—(AP)—James N. Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente Jockey club, today announced plans for a similar $2,000,000 racing plant near here, a few hours after another promoter said he proposed erecting a track at San Diego.

Gene Normile, president and general manager of the Fair Oaks Polo and Racing club, which is to be erected soon 30 miles south of San Francisco, said his associates also were seeking a site for a plant near San Diego.

Golden Gloves Fighters on Western Stadium Card

Golfers Tire of Yelling "Fore!" at an Airplane

El Paso, Tex., June 1.—(AP)—The city council today received protests that an airplane was "swooping down" at players on the municipal golf course when they tried to get off their shots.

"It's downright annoying to have a plane come at one just when he is about to make a hole in one," said Ald. Rosenfield.

Other councilmen agreed. A letter was sent to officials of an airways company asking it to forbid annoyance of players.

Sisk, Pollock, Saunders Win Welterweight Bouts

Dick Sisk, Patsy Pollock and Tony Saunders won their bouts at the welterweight boxing show at the Logan Square ball park last night. Six hundred saw the show.

Sisk defeated Larry Kaufman; Pollock bested Frankie Burns and Saunders shaded Tony Kluth. All three bouts were eight rounders.

Harold Fates, Hurdle Star, Heads Yale Track Squad

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—(AP)—Harold Leighton Fates of Orange, N. J., low hurdle star, was elected captain of the Yale track team tonight at a banquet officially concluding the season.

Sparboys Say Strib Packs a Potent Punch

Geauga Lake, O., June 1.—[Special.]—Young Stribling's sparring partners, who are paid a small amount per punch for fitting the Georgian for his heavyweight title bout with Max Schmeling at Cleveland July 3, are showing no enthusiasm over the challenger's next ring workout, scheduled for Wednesday.

The spar boys were put through six rounds of catching blows yesterday and helped the championship ballyhoo along by reporting that Stribling is punching harder than ever.

Sunny Jim Williams, under orders to keep boring in, did so for a couple of rounds and then retired in favor of the taller and heavier Sam Ward, Cleveland Negro, whose height and reach equals Stribling's. Gene Stanton gave Stribling a good workout for a round and a half, until a left hook caused him to hang on.

Pa Stribling announced that he will continue to toss heavyweights into the ring against Will until about June 15, when smaller and faster boxers will be brought into camp.

Johnny Risko, who dodged through the turnstiles free as a guest of the Striblings, repaid the kindness by predicting the Macon fighter will win by a knockout.

Turners Mold U. S. Physical CultureSystem man revolutionary movement in 1848.

The oldest Turnverein in the United States which flourishes at present was founded at Cincinnati in November, 1848, at the instigation of Friedrich Hecker. Within two years societies had been organized in Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Brooklyn, and in 1850 these combined to form what is now the American Turnerbund.

The rôle these German pilgrims played for their new country during the civil war is now a part of American history. And it was a tribute to the ideals of Jahn that these turners, many of whom organized themselves into whole regiments, were so physically and mentally fit as a result of their work in the Turnvereins that few of them were rejected.

D., a member of the United States Military academy track team, was in a hospital here today suffering from head injuries he received in the Army-West Virginia university track and field meet Saturday. Glattly ran into a javelin that had struck the ground near him. The butt of the shaft entered his mouth. He suffered concussion of the brain and possibly a skull fracture.

CANADIAN TRACKS SHOW BIG DROP IN RACE WAGERS

TORONTO, Ont., June 1.—(AP)—A decided drop in wagering at the spring meets of the two local race tracks, Woodbine and Thorncliffe, is shown in the report of the Ontario treasury department today.

At Woodbine, which closed Saturday, the amount wagered was about $1,750,000, compared with $2,000,000 last year, and Thorncliffe also was shown to have fallen off. As a result, Woodbine officials may call off their fall meeting.

SCHNEIDER AND FRAME RENEW RIVALRY AT ROBY

Winner of 500 Mile Race Meets Runner-Up.

The big speed argument held in Indianapolis last week will continue at Roby speedway Sunday, with the first three place winners in the 500 mile automobile event among the starters.

Fred Frame and Lou Schneider, who are still arguing over whether the officials made an error when they declared Schneider the winner, will hook up in the 100 mile A. A. A. race at Roby. Ralph Hepburn, only a few seconds behind Frame in third place, also will be in the struggle.

Treat for Chicago.

With a score of drivers and the cars they wheeled in the big race in Indianapolis, this event will give Chicago speed fans a chance to see the big shots of the motor race world in their first endeavor on the dirt tracks this year. Roby is now a part of the national circuit on which the contest board of the A. A. A., headed by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, sanctions speed tests. Later in the season a race for championship points will be held at Roby.

Bitter Feeling Among Drivers.

Sunday's contest probably will be one of the bitterest ever held, as the feeling between Frame and his backer, Harry Hartz, and the Schneider camp is strong. Schneider is at home on dirt tracks, particularly so at Roby, where he has raced many times while he was building up a reputation.

Fred Frame, who according to official recheck of the records was 59 seconds behind Schneider, will drive his Deusenberg straight eight Sunday, and will be accompanied by his mechanic, Lou Schneider will have as his mechanic Jigger Johnson, who held down the stepbrother seat all the way in the 500 mile race.

ACTIVE CHICAGO SHARES PLUMB NEW BOTTOMS

Rise in Selling Volume Inflicts Losses.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Stocks on the Chicago exchange underwent one of the most thorough reactions of the current decline yesterday when the increased volume of selling carried practically all the active shares to new low price territory and resulted in net losses from last week's final quotations of from one to four points.

The sudden increase in liquidation on the New York market, with the consequent sharp declines in the "blue chip" stocks, was a contributing factor to liquidation here. The failure of the market Friday to hold the prices established on the previous day's moderate upturn was credited with bringing out further selling from discouraged security holders. The run of the day's trade news was of the same character which has been coming through the mill for several weeks and could not be blamed for the new outbreak on the selling side.

U. S. Radio Shares Drop.

The government's huge financing occasioned considerable discussion in the trading community but announcement of the scheme had been expected for several weeks.

U. S. Radio, the stock which was the pet of the bull traders early this year, was the hardest hit in the reaction here. On transactions involving about 1,300 shares the stock was knocked down 4 points to 12¾ after which it recovered a fraction of its loss. For the first six months of the company's fiscal year earnings substantially in excess of last year were reported. There has been no report on current operations of the company.

Automotives Ease.

A variety of shares of all descriptions ranging from Acme Steel to Zenith Radio were caught up in the wave of selling, sustaining losses of a fraction to 3 points. The automotives were uniformly lower, Borg-Warner pointing the way with a recession of 1¾ points net.

Despite the general pressure against the utilities, Commonwealth Edison held at its previous resistence point of 230 and a moderately heavy volume of selling was not able to force the stock through that level. Other Insull shares came in for losses of a point or so. As in other sections of the list, the final prices represented new lows for the stocks.

There was one stock in the list which was able to move against the current. Foote Gear was bid up to $1.00 a share, a fractional advance, following announcement of proposed plans for merging the company with the Dodge Manufacturing company.

STOCK VALUES OFF 60% FROM BULL MART PEAK

Recede Around 7 Billions in May.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Probably seven billion dollars of quoted values was wiped out last month in the decline of prices of stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange. It was the largest depreciation incurred since September, 1930, and marked the third successive monthly recession.

Two compilations appearing yesterday offered testimony to the severity of the May break in stocks. These data embrace only part of the New York stock list, but they afford an inkling of what the complete report to be issued by the New York Stock exchange within the next few days will show. In general, they indicate that the average price of stocks now is back to the levels of 1925 or 1926.

The summary of the Standard Statistics company embraces 225 common stocks. These had an aggregate market value of $25,491,376,105 on May 29, compared with $29,770,109,487 on April 30, thus showing a shrinkage of $4,278,733,382, or 14 per cent. This decline followed shinkages of $3,125,-[illegible] in April and $3,500,128,190 in March, so that the total decline in the last three months has been $9,904,-940,937.

Based on 100 Issues.

Stock prices have declined about 60 per cent from the level established at the peak of the bull market in August, 1929, according to a compilation by Frazier Jelke & Co. A compilation of 100 representative common stocks shows an aggregate market value of $17,423,561,000 at the end of May, compared with $43,447,945,000 on Aug. 30, 1929. This marks a decline of $26,009,384,000.

Last month these 100 stocks declined $2,897,686,000, or 14.2 per cent, and this decline followed shinkages of $1,364,512,000, or 10.4 per cent in April and $1,097,112,000, or 8.4 per cent, in March. The decline for the three months ended with May totaled $7,-[illegible],000, or 29.7 per cent.

In May, 12 of the 13 sub groups constituting the Jelke index declined, the largest loss in dollars being $744,-[illegible],000 in the rails. The utilities dropped $235,520,000. The merchandising group, due to a net gain of one stock, actually advanced $2,197,000, or 1-10 of 1 per cent.

On a percentage basis, the drop of 27.3 per cent in the mines was the largest loss of the month. The steels dropped 21.7 per cent; the rails, 20.8 per cent; the equipments, 18.1 per cent; the amusements and the motors, 17 per cent each; the miscellaneous industries, 16.2 per cent; the chemicals, 16.1 per cent; the utilities, 12 per cent; the electrical equipments, 11.4 per cent; the foods, 10.9 per cent; and the oils, 3.4 per cent.

SLASH OIL PRICES

Another slash in midcontinent crude oil prices was made yesterday by the Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing company, subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The new schedule of prices for crude oil purchased in Kansas, Oklahoma, north and north central Texas just about cuts the former prices in half. The new price for oil of 40 gravity and above is 37 cents a barrel, compared with 67 cents previously paid. The new price for oil below 29 gravity is 25 cents a barrel, compared with 42 cents formerly paid.

"During the last week purchasers of east Texas crude oil reduced their posted prices 30 cents a barrel," R. S. Wilson, president of Stanolind, explained. "Approximately 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day is now being sold throughout the midcontinent field at about half what we have been paying. We can not go on paying more for our raw material than is paid by our competitors. Economic law rules alike the producer of crude oil and the marketer of gasoline. Existing low prices are the result of current overproduction and, in our opinion, will continue until that overproduction ceases. We will gladly pay better prices for crude oil the moment that economic conditions in the industry warrant our taking such a step."

Vienna Bank Firm Fails; Liabilities, $5,000,000

VIENNA, June 1.—(AP)—Announcement of the insolvency of the banking firm of Auspitz Lieben was made on the bourse today. Liabilities are estimated at about $5,000,000. It became known a week ago that the institution was in difficulty.

Tells of Energy Saving in Some Industrial Plants

BY SCRUTATOR.

Meat packing plants have the reputation for using "everything but the squeal," which means that every part of the animal is put to some economic use. Such complete utilization of by-products is not effected in all industrial activity.

Coal, for example, is widely converted into two forms of energy—heat and electricity. But each is usually produced separately.

Exhaust steam after it leaves the electric turbine to be condensed usually goes to heat the water of a nearby lake or river.

There is a similar waste of energy in industrial plants where steam is used for heat and its potential ability to turn a wheel and generate electric energy on the way is only partially exploited or ignored entirely.

Interesting Experiments.

Manufacturers and utility men are aware of this waste and for a long time have been considering ways to eliminate it. Interesting experiments have been undertaken.

Down at Baton Rouge, La., the Standard Oil Company of New York has a refinery and the Engineers Public Service company a generating station. The refinery uses a great deal of heat and some electric power and the power plant consumes much fuel.

A year ago a hookup was completed. The generating station now pipes its exhaust steam to the refinery for heat and receives in turn refinery waste for fuel. It now produces 150 per cent more power than the refinery can use and the surplus is put on the transmission lines and distributed from Baton Rouge to Lake Charles.

By-Product of Combination.

Electric energy is the by-product of this combination. An arrangement of this sort works well where operations are steady, but it would be less advantageous with other types of plants, such as rubber factories, where operations fluctuate. A widely variable supply of electric energy can only be used as dump power. For base power a steady uniform supply is required.

V. D. Simons, industrial engineer, recently completed a survey of 23 large industrial plants to determine the feasibility of building joint power plants where electric energy would be the primary production and heat for the factory the by-product, thereby insuring a steady source of power for base load purposes.

He concludes that for a little additional cost in equipment many industrials can profitably produce not only heat and electricity for their own user but surplus power for sale at a cost lower than the average utility generating station produces it.

Uses Less Coal.

The Munising Paper company at Munising, Mich., last fall put into operation a new plant embodying this principle. It now uses less coal than before and by creating higher pressure is able to produce not only enough electric energy for its own use but sells from 1,500 to 2,000 kilowatts to Cliffs Power and Light company.

Mr. Simons recommends that such joint plants be owned and operated by the utility companies under an arrangement with the manufacturer whereby the latter is assured heat and power cheaper than he could produce them for his own use.

Adoption of such a plan, according to Mr. Simons, would enable the utilities to get additional industrial business that at present they are unable to compete for, it would enable the industrials to get their steam and power at the lowest possible costs, and would, in addition, make available to the utilities from five to eight billion kilowatt hours of energy at very favorable unit costs.

U. S. FINANCE PLANS ARE WELL RECEIVED IN BOND QUARTERS

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The most important event of the bond market today was the announcement of financing plans of the United States treasury. This news was regarded so favorably that transactions in the new bonds on a when issued basis were made above par before noon and the price advanced to 100½ by the end of the day.

Another evidence of the generally favorable reception of the announcement was the fact that the certificates of indebtedness due on June 15, which are exchangeable for the new issue up to a maximum of $325,000,000, advanced moderately, whereas issues of such short maturity usually are steady in price. Outstanding government bonds made good gains.

The action of the rest of the bond market was a contrast to the popularity of the treasury issue. Losses were common among all groups and a number of new low record prices were reached. Sales totaled $13,472,-000 at par value, the largest daily aggregate in about eight weeks. Even some bonds of high grade or gilt edge rating did not resist the general trend, but of course the losses among them were smaller than among the speculative issues.

New York Central Cuts Round Trip Fares 25%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—The New York Central railroad today announced a 25 per cent reduction in round trip passenger fares to middle western points, effective Saturday, June 6. The new rates apply to Erie, Pa., Detroit and points west on the New York Central, including Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, and Mackinaw City. The road states that the reductions are designed to stimulate week-end travel to summer resorts.

Loan Plan Is Approved by Australian Premiers

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 1.—(AP)—The conference of premiers today approved a recommendation by Australian bankers to extend over a period of thirty years the internal conversion loan by which the government hopes to alleviate Australia's economic difficulties. It was decided that portions of the loan will mature in periods ranging from seven to thirty years.

In taking office the new president said he would continue the present policies with a particular view to the widening of the scope of the exchange, extending the present ticker facilities and promoting coöperation with the industrial and business interests in other cities of the middle west. Three new members of the governing committee of the exchange also took office yesterday. They are Arthur M. Betts, Thomas F. Furness, and Charles Swift. Other governors and officers were reelected.

Ship 6,717 Auburn and Cord Cars During May

Shipments of 6,717 Auburn and Cord cars for May were announced today by R. H. Faulkner, president of the Auburn Automobile company. This is an increase of 714 cars over April, the all-time record month for the company. Shipments for the first five calendar months of 1931 total 24,438, making 10,715 more cars than during the entire year of 1930.

STOREY UNCERTAIN REGARDING ATCHISON EARNINGS PROSPECTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—Beginning with June the figures for Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé railway will be governed by a different set of conditions than have prevailed in the comparison with last year for the early months, according to W. B. Storey, president, who pointed out today that the sharp reduction in expenses on the road began in June last year. Mr. Storey was in New York today for the regular meeting of directors to be held tomorrow.

Discussing the results so far this year, Mr. Storey said:

"We were able to show increases in March and April net this year because last year we did not begin cutting expenses in earnest as revenue fell off until June 1, with the result that net in March, April and May, 1930, dropped sharply to levels below $900,-000 in each of those three months.

"On the reduced expense basis maintained since June 1, 1930, we were able to show a good increase in March net. In April, however, the decrease in gross was somewhat more than the decrease in expenses, and it was only with the aid of lower tax accruals and equipment rents that we were able to report an increase of $21,000 in net for the month. In May our loadings continued to show about the same precentage decrease as in April, but we have, of course, no idea yet as to what our gross and net will be."

RESERVE BANK GRANTS CREDIT TO AUSTRIANS

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The New York Federal Reserve bank announced today that, in association with other reserve banks, it has agreed to participate in a credit arrangement for the Austrian National bank. The announcement, which did not disclose the amount of the credit, said the reserve banks' participation will be in the form of an agreement to purchase prime commercial bills. Other banks of issue and the Bank of International Settlements will provide part of the credit.

While no more than a brief announcement concerning the credit was made by the bank, it was learned in banking circles that the credit will be used to finance Austrian business. No part of the credit will go to the state, bankers said. The Austrian National bank is the central bank of Austria. Bankers said that participation by the reserve banks in such a credit to help a foreign country had a precedent in similar assistance given in the past to England and Hungary.

Farm Body Pays $7,000,000 for 8,000,000 Bu. of Wheat

Minneapolis, Minn., June 1.—(AP)—The Farmers National Grain corporation, acting for the Grain Stabilization corporation, today paid $7,000,000 for about 8,000,000 bushels of wheat. It was the second such deal in a month, the same corporation paying $18,000,000 for 23,000,000 bushels of wheat May 1 last. Harry F. Shepherdson, northwest manager of the Farmers National, said that body had planned to accept delivery on 14,000,-000 bushels today, but only 8,000,000 bushels were transferred to its credit.

Western Rail Men Meet Here to Discuss Rates

Presidents and representatives of twenty-three western railroad systems met in Chicago yesterday to hear a report prepared by the traffic officials of the roads on ways of means of increasing revenue and the advisability of seeking interestate commission authority for an upward revision of freight rates.

The meeting ended without any definite decision, it being decided that conferences should be held with the committee recently formed by the eastern carriers before a further action be taken. The eastern roads have already committed themselves for higher rates and the eastern committee is now working on plans for seeking a revision of rates. Heads of some of the western roads will hold informal conferences with members of the eastern committee within the next ten days, it was learned.

Some Wary of Increase.

That the western roads might adopt a program differing from that to which the eastern carriers have committed themselves was said to be unlikely by those who attended the meeting.

The meeting was held behind closed doors at the Union League club and those attending declined to discuss the nature of the changes proposed in the tentative report. The meeting began at noon and lasted until shortly after 3 o'clock.

The southwestern roads, it was asserted, are wary lest a boost in rates should divert more traffic to the pipe lines. The survey of the rate structure presented at yesterday's meeting was made as a result of the resolution adopted by the Association of Railroad Executives at their meeting in Chicago last month, which directed that such studies be made for the entire country.

Favor Partial Regulations.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—(AP)—Extension of railroad operations to highway transportation with partial regulation of common carrier trucks was recommended today to the interstate commerce commission by the New York Merchants association and the shippers' conference of Greater New York in a brief filed in the commission's investigation of coördination of motor transportation.

The New York organizations suggested that highway motor lines be allowed to file joint through rates with railroads and that they be regulated in this respect. Where they do not act in conjunction with railroads, however, they argued there should be no regulation. The commission also was urged to consider seriously store door pick-up and delivery systems for the railroads.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in a brief filed at the same time argued that truck regulations was not in the interest of the public service and would be disadvantageous to the railroads. Regulation, it asserted, could not be effective unless contract carriers also were included, and this has been held unconstitutional by the courts.

U. S. TRADE WITH RUSSIA SLIPS; EUROPE GAINING

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The Amtorg Trading company, soviet union commercial representative in the United States, while declining to comment today on the absence of Russian discussion at the national foreign trade convention, said Russian business with America had declined greatly in the last few months in the face of increasing European trade.

Though the soviet was included on the official program at other foreign trade conventions, it, along with Canada, was not formally represented at the New York meeting which ended last week.

The Amtorg statement pointed to long term credits granted by Germany, Italy, and other European countries under government guarantees as the reason for Europe's increased trade.

Ten Years Ago in Finance

Dun reports 333 weekly commercial failures in the United States, against 118 last year.

On small sales Quaker Oats was off 4½ points on the Chicago Stock exchange.

Discontinuation of dividends by several more industrial companies reflects the dullness in business. The Pierce-Arrow company has passed its current quarterly dividend on its preferred stock and the American Chicle company has deferred payment of its 1½ per cent quarterly dividend on its preferred stock.

Despite irregularities and uncertainties which are existing throughout the whole field of activities, business and industry show a tendency to settle down to a level where real progress can begin, according to a summarization of conditions made by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—A fresh run of "pessimistic" selling converging on the railroad shares sent the stock market plunging into new low territory today. Values shriveled up from $2 to $5 a share in many departments, including the tobacco, utility, and mining groups in addition to the carriers.

United States Steel common selling ex dividend brought gasps of despair from the trading community by breaking below 85. The motors were under heavy pressure and the amusements weak.

Sales exceeded 3,000,000 shares for the first time since April.

Beyond the announcement of the government's new $300,000,000 financing program, which proved to be about in line with unofficial forecasts, and for that reason of little effect marketwise, there were no special developments to account for the increased liquidation. Rather it seemed to reflect the general despondency of the speculative element—a pessimism intensified seemingly by the failure of repeated little rallies of the last two or three weeks to carry through, and the persistence of the list in breaking through one so-called resistance point after another.

Fails to Arrive.

Many had come down today expecting some sort of recovery as a sequel to last week's steady run of liquidation, which reached its climax Friday afternoon. It has been the history of the market from time immemorial that a double week-end holiday coming after a protracted decline has

HE LEFT ON HIS VACATION FREE FROM INVESTMENT WORRIES

ON THE advice of his doctor, Mr. D* had made plans for his first long vacation in sixteen years. But who would look after his investment interests while he was away?

Feeling this responsibility, he was much relieved when he learned that, by means of an Agency Account, he could obtain the services of Central Trust Company of Illinois as "his investment secretary"—at a fee so small as to be relatively insignificant.

Mr. D gave much of the credit for the success of his trip to his Agency Account. He reasoned that without it he could not have had a completely care-free vacation.

The arrangement proved so satisfactory that he has continued his Account with us indefinitely. We do practically all of the work connected with managing his investments, while he retains full control over his securities—wherever he may be.

The story of Mr. D's release from work and worry over investment management is told in our new folder, "His Investment Secretary". A copy will be sent to you on request.

One year ago	10.50@12.25
SHEEP—Western range lambs	$ 8.00@10.25
One month ago	8.00@12.25
One year ago	12.00@12.50
Top yesterday, $10.50; average, $9.00.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 4,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 9,000.

After a week or more of almost continuous price slashing, the trend of live stock markets was reversed on yesterday's session. Cattle receipts at 13,000 were smallest for Monday since March 30 and compared with 21,010 two weeks ago. The hog total at 40,000 was below normal for the first Monday in June, while sheep receipts were moderate at 15,000.

Some cattle sales at the finish showed gains of 25@50c when only 4,000 were estimated for today's market. The 20 leading markets yesterday showed a decrease of 15,000 head, or 24 per cent compared with a week ago and were almost 30 per cent smaller than a year ago. Although cattle receipts have been among the smallest on record for some time, beef has been piling up in the coolers, indicating the narrow outlet for meats. Production of cattle is smaller than it was 40 years ago.

The May total at Chicago at 175,120 was smallest for the month since 1915. Only two May totals have been smaller since 1879. The record for May at 299,000 was established back in 1890. Despite small supplies the May cattle aervage at $7.15 is lower, with two exceptions, since February, 1912. Yesterday's top yearling steers reached $8.25 on the bulge, being 25c above the highest price paid last week.

Hog Futures Dull.

Hog futures were dull yesterday, with bids and offers far apart in most months. June light were offered at $6.75 for delivery before the middle of this month. September light were offered at $7.65 and bid $6.75, while mediums for that month were offered at $7.00 and bid $6.75. Heavy grades for September delivery were offered at $7.00 and bid $6.75. On the "to arrive" market, light weights for today's delivery were bid $6.20.

The extreme top price for hogs on the cash trade yesterday was unchanged at $6.25, but this price was paid freely for 160@220 lb averages. Numerous sales of 225@275 lb averages showed gains of 5@10c and raised the general average price 5c at $5.85, highest since last Wednesday. Small packers and shippers bought readily at the upturn, while larger houses refused to follow.

Word of slight declines at other points had some effect late and weakness was noted at the extreme close. Supplies are being held down. Five markets expect only 51,000 today against 65,100 last Tuesday. The May hog total at 504,618 was smallest for that month since 1914.

Best Lambs in Demand.

Best grades of strong weight fat lambs were in good demand at steady prices yesterday, while others had to be peddled on a "catch as catch can" trade, closing weak to lower with some of the poorest light weights carried over. Native lambs, previously classed as springers, were sorted at $10.00@10.50, while culls sold at $7.00@7.50. California range lambs were sold at $9.75. Yearling stock, formerly classed as shorn lambs sold at $8.00 and below, although top notchers were quoted at $8.25@8.50.

KENNECOTT CO. PUTS DIVIDEND ON $1 YEAR BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 1.—Directors of the Kennecott Copper corporation today cut the dividend rate from $2 annually to $1 a year by declaring a quarterly distribution of 25 cents a share. The action had been foreshadowed by the failure of the board to act on the dividend at the regular dividend meeting held May 19.

This is the third cut in the dividend by the Kennecott company within a year. The first reduction was made in July, 1930, when the rate was lowered from $5 annually to $3 by payment of a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share. The second cut was made the following September, when the company paid only 50 cents a share.

GRAINS FOLLOW STOCK MARKET IN GENERAL DECLINE

Bearish News Fails to Arouse Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation in the stock market in New York found its counterpart in grains yesterday, the effect of the former more than offsetting continued drought reports from the Canadian northwest. Claims that under the most favorable conditions the Canadian wheat crop would be much below normal failed to induce buyers to take hold in an aggressive manner and the September and December deliveries dropped to a new low for the day. Speculative interest generally was at a low ebb, with the pit element disposed to stand aside and see what the future had in store for operators on either side.

There was a decidedly pessimistic feeling in evidence in the grain trade, the belief prevailing that there was little to be gained by taking the bull side as long as stocks continued on the downgrade. Buying against bids checked the break in wheat, but the finish was at net losses of 1⅜@1¾c, as compared with Friday. July closed at 55⅜@55⅝c, September 57⅛@58c, and December 60⅞@61⅛c.

Heavy Damage in Canada.

Reports from the three prairie provinces yesterday were of a sufficiently sensational character to have advanced the world's wheat price in a drastic manner under normal conditions, but they failed to create even a ripple either here or abroad. In parts of southern Alberta and Saskatchewan the newly settled crop was reported as dying or dead as the result of continued drought and no rain of consequence was shown over the weekend, although the forecast was for showers. Dry weather talk also came from the American northwest. Winnipeg was off 1¼c from Friday, with the July 59¼c, the lack of export business having considerable effect.

Private estimates on the winter wheat crop will be given to the trade today and are expected to suggest a yield well above the 653,000,000 bu shown by the government a month ago, and will compare with 604,000,000 bu harvested last year. A little hard winter and Canadian wheat was reported as sold for export yesterday, but the amounts were limited. Liverpool declined ⅝@7⅛c from Friday's finish, with a slow demand for cash grain.

Farm Board Buys.

The federal farm board continued to buy old crop cash wheat in the leading markets at the "pegged" prices yesterday to protect producers and others who failed to ship their wheat during the month of May, and it is expected to buy until the movement of new grain become sa factor. An increase of 2,106,000 bu in the domestic visible supply was regarded as a reflection of the liberal movement during the last week in May for delivery on futures contracts. Total stocks are 193,514,000 bu against 116,646,000 bu last year.

Weakness in securities and in wheat combined with favorable weather for the new crop led to local and commission house selling of corn with the December selling down to 46¼c, a new low for the season. Buying against bids checked the decline, but the finish was ⅞@1¼c lower with the July 55⅝@55¾c, September 52⅞@53c, and December 46⅝@46¾c.

Cash corn handlers are inclined to look for the annual after planting movement of grain to get under way in the immediate future. No improvement was shown in the shipping demand, although the spot basis was unchanged. A decrease of 2,327,000 bu in the visible supply brought the latter down to 11,412,000 bu against 10,825,000 bu last year.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Butter, egg and potato futures declined on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday. November butter closing off ¾c, June off ⅛c. November eggs off ½c, June off 1c, and the potato deliveries off 1c. Selling pressure came in heavily in both butter and eggs at the start, the statistical news over the week-end failing to encourage material buying. New selling, particularly hedging, came in as the prices started drifting lower and only at the close did enough support enter to hold the market. Sales: Butter—59 cars; eggs, 130 cars; potatoes, 7 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 3 cars; butter, 6 cars. Prices follow:

SOL H. GOLDBERG ADDS TO BUILDING SITE ON LINCOLN

Attorney Buys Residence in Winnetka.

Sol H. Goldberg, president of the Hump Hair Pin company, is increasing the size of the building which he is erecting on Lincoln avenue, just south of Belmont avenue, as the result of a ninety-seven year lease closed yesterday on 24x135 feet of adjoining property. Construction has alreaqy started on the original ground.

The building, which is to contain seven stores and about fifty offices, will front 170 feet at 3921-41 Lincoln avenue, with a depth of 135 feet, and, it is stated, will cost about $500,000. Leichenko & Esser are the architects. The lease closed yesterday with the Lake View Trust and Savings bank as trustee calls for an annual rental of $7,500 for the first three years and $8,000 annually for the balance of the term. The term rental for the original parcel is $4,534,000.

Buys Winnetka Home.

Harry Thom, an attorney associated with Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, has purchased a two and one-half story English type residence on a half acre of ground at 300 Sunset road, Winnetka, for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Kraut of Fond du Lac, Wis., were the sellers. The Winnetka office of the E. E. Stults Realty company represented all parties.

The Wood Candy company has renewed its lease on its shop at 930 North Michigan avenue for ten years at a rental which it is stated is more than 50 per cent higher than the average annual rental which it has been paying. Krenn & Dato are the lessees. Oscar Friedman represented the Wood company and Armond King represented Krenn & Dato.

Sears-Roebuck Lease.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. have leased a store, 25x76 feet, at 3022 East 92d street for a period of from three to five years at an undisclosed rental from Arthur H. Hanson and Amy Lykke. The store will be of the C type and will handle automobile accessories, radios, washing machines, wall paper, etc. Nicholas M. Gakich of the office of B. Pocnanovich & Co. was broker.

The Walgreen company has leased from the estate of Frederic B. Skillman the store at 6350 West 22d street, Berwyn, for ten years with an option for five years' additional. The rental was not given.

Associated Telephone Utilities.

I hold some bonds of a corporation that has been acquired by Associated Telephone Utilities company, which company is giving me the privilege of exchanging the bond I hold for its series C 5½ per cent bond. Will you please give me some information on it? Thank you in advance.—G. P.

Associated Telephone Utilities company supplies telephone service through its subsidiaries to 1,615 communities in 22 states. At the close of 1930 it serviced 454,157 telephones.

Net income has shown a steady increase since incorporation in August, 1926, due mainly to acquisition of properties.

Reflecting increased capitalization the margin by which fixed charges have been earned has shown a downward trend. Fixed charges were covered 1.58 times in 1930, 1.70 times in 1929 and 1.71 times in 1928.

On Dec. 31, 1930, funded debt of the parent company was $55,676,800, against $51,856,700 the year before.

A press dispatch on March 18, 1931, stated that the company planned to spend $12,000,000 for additions, betterments, etc., during 1931.

The 5½ per cent convertible debentures, series C, due May 1, 1944, are convertible into common stock on the basis of 33 shares of common for each $1,000 debenture to May 1, 1932; thereafter to May 1, 1935, on the basis of 30 common shares for each $1,000 debenture. The bonds are not convertible after May 1, 1935.

These bonds are a direct obligation of the company but are not secured by specific mortgage. They are regarded as suitable for a business man's surplus funds.

Western United.

Do you regard Western United corporation sinking fund collateral trust 6½s, due 1955, as a sound investment for spare funds? Thank you for an opinion.—W. M. M.

Western United corporation supplies utility service through its subsidiaries to 89 communities in Illinois.

Fixed charges were covered 1.54 times in 1930, 1.59 times in 1929 and 1.47 times in 1928. Bond interest was earned 2.01 times in 1930 and 2 times in 1929.

The thirty year 6½ per cent sinking fund collateral trust bonds, series A, due Dec. 1, 1955, constitute the only funded debt of the company and are secured by pledge of all the common stock of Western United Gas and Electric Company of Illinois, Mid Egypt Pipe Line company and Mid Egypt Gas and Oil company.

They are regarded as suitable for a business man's surplus funds.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 1.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unsettled today after showing small declines but recovered in the last hour and closed net unchanged at 3.25c for spots duty paid.

Futures were irregular and early steadiness as a result of more favorable London cables was followed by reactions, with the market closing 1 to 2 points net lower on active positions. Sales were 29,050 tons. Prices follow:
